15 ARE FEARED DEAD IN BLAST RAZING PLANT

Seven Bodies Taken Out of Explosion Debris in St. Joseph, Mo.

NINE KNOWN HURT; SIX OTHERS MISSING

Officials Vary in Blaming Both Ammonia and Natural Gas.

FUMES HINDER MEN SEARCHING IN RUINS

Two Days May Be Needed to Extricate Those Caught on Ground Floor.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 8 (A.P.).—About fifteen persons, some of them women, were believed to have been killed late today in an explosion that demolished the smokehouse of the Armour & Co. packing plant in south St. Joseph.

Seven were known to be dead and nine injured. Six were known to be missing in the wreckage and officials of the plant believed seven to nine others were trapped and killed. The entire six-story building was wrecked. It appeared as though the structure had been lifted and then settled down.

While the cause of the blast was undetermined, police and fire department officials advanced the theory that huge ammonia tanks in the building had exploded.

List of Known Dead.

The known dead:

Verna Drukin, unidentified woman, Gerald Munden, Ray Rickman, Arthur Rogers, Earl Hansen, Dexter Bowen.

The known missing:

Tille Loar, Mary Johnson, Maggie Willis, O. E. Scott, loading dock foreman; Ames Staples, George Roberts.

The injured:

Orville Wise, condition critical; Carl Pape, 24, gassed; George Kless, 34, burns; Kim Stark, 53, fractured shoulder, burns; Walter Kline, 34, fractured ribs and burns; Gottlieb Weidman, 60, slightly injured; Mrs. Flora Miller, 60, fractured ankle and burns; Mrs. Louise Webb, 23, severe burns; Clemm Bates, gassed.

Trapped Victims Gassed.

No fire followed the explosion, but choking ammonia fumes spread through the wreckage, gassing the trapped victims. A force of 35 girls was employed on the fifth floor. Virtually all of them were believed to have left the building before it was torn asunder. The debris was piled to about the height of the third story. Rescut workers estimated it might take two days to extricate the bodies of those caught on the ground floor.

When the ammonia fumes subsided sufficiently for the rescue workers to attack the ruins, the arm of Earl Hansen was seen sticking out. A space was cleared about his head and he was given water and stimulants in answer to his pleas. Death ended his suffering before he could be removed.

Two hundred and fifty employes of the Armour plant and approximately $500 volunteer rescuers toiled with axes, crowbars and every instrument that came to their hand to clear away the wreckage. Flood lights were set up to illuminate the scene after dark.

Manager Blames Natural Gas.

W. E. Renfrow, general manager of the Armour plant, declared after an investigation that he believed natural gas caused the explosion. Mr. Renfrow said there were no major ammonia lines in the building which could have caused such an explosion. He said that the fact that no fire followed the blast indicated that leakage from underground and not from pipes in the building was responsible.

Pape, one of those injured, is a gas company employe who turned off the gas following the explosion and was overcome by ammonia fumes. Lucian Lowe, smoking room forman, told of noticing a gas leakage in the building.

Walter Kline, a foreman in the sausage making department, was rescued alive from under three tons of debris and taken to a hospital. Jacks were used to lift the debris high enough from his body for workers to reach him.

Swith Engine Employed.

A railroad switch engine was prssed into service to pull away heavy timbers and blocks of debris. Other cables attached to movable parts of the building were hauled at by squads of men numbering up to 150.

Within a few minutes after the blast a crowd of 1,500 spectators and frantic relatives of persons trapped in the structure milled about the gates of the big plant. The scene was one of wild confusion. Firemen, fighting against the strangulating ammonia fumes, sought to clear their

FREED ON WRIT

WRIT FREES CAPONE AND TRIO IN FLORIDA

Miami Officials Warn Them of Arrest Every Time They Visit City.

LAWYER SEIZED IN CHASE

Miami, Fla., May 8 (A.P.).—Alphonse (Scarface Al) Capone and three companions spent 2½ hours in Miami Municipal Jail today until a writ of habeas corpus, signed by Circuit Judge Uly O. Thompson, freed them from custody and the general charge of "investigation" which followed their arrest.

Capone's brother John, 26; Albert Driguano, 38, and Nick Circules, 37, all of whom gave their addresses as the Capone estate on Palm Island, Miami Beach, were arrested with the gang leader.

After they were placed in the municipal jail, the quartet was advised by Director of Public Safety S. D. McCreary that Mayor C. H. Reeder has adopted "the Chicago plan," and that Capone and his companions will be arrested whenever they are found within Miami city limits.

They were photographed, fingerprinted and searched before being locked up in a cell block. None of the four was armed. Capone had $1,161 in cash and a diamond he said he valued at $10,000; his brother had $22; Circules, $110, and Drignano, $1.40. Despite protests, police held the valuables, giving the gang leader a receipt that he demanded while angrily asserting that newspaper publicity was responsible for his arrest.

J. F. Ritz Gordon, one of Capone's attorneys here, furnished a side light on the affair when he broke away from policemen who were searching him before permitting him to visit his client in the cell block, and ran out of central police station and for a half block before he was caught by three policemen and returned for completion of the search.

Pennsylvania Air Crash Results in Three Deaths

Downington, Pa., May 8 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed tonight in the crash of an airplane 1 mile east of here. The plane as it fell burst badly burned.

The ship was piloted by Carman Van Leer, 27, of Glen Loch, near here. From automobile licenses and other papers found on the bodies of the two passengers, Coroner Herbert Ford said he believed tthey were Norman Donnelly, of West Chester, and Robert Stanford, 29, of Frazeer.

REBEL DEAD TOTAL ESTIMATED AT 27

British Soldiers Quell Riots After Many Foreigners' Homes Are Looted.

London, May 9 (Friday) (A.P.).—Unofficial reports reaching here early today say that yesterday's riot at Sholapur greatly exceeded any disturbance since the beginning of the civil disobedience campaign. One dispatch said three policemen were murdered and that their bodies then were soaked in kerosene and burned on a street.

Five others were reported missing, probably murdered, and several more were injured.

The Daily News learned that civilian authorities hadd all but lost control and were anxiously awaiting arrival of troops.

25 Rioters Reported Killed.

Reports of casualties among the rioters differed greatly, the highest placnig the number of killed at 25 and those injured at 100.

At one time, during the height of the rioting, the police were hopelessly nutnumbered and withdrew toward headquarters. The mob, composed mostly of millmen, followed with gathering strength and spread terror en route. They concentrated on stray policemen, liquor shops, police stations and other government buildings.

The district courthouse and several police stations were burned, the rioters firing them with kerosene looted from the shops.

European Women Removed.

When the main body of police emerged from headquarters with reinforcements the rioters scattered in various directions, reassembling wherever they saw no policemen. The police were showered with stones before they broke the demonstration at that point, however.

By night the magistrate ha dde--cided that the city was unsafe for Europea nwomen and children, and more than 200 of them left in two special trains for Poona. They were mostly families of railway officials and mill managers. The rioters have looted the quarter where the majority of Europeans live.

The Daily Mail's Bombay correspondent said the riot had been quelled early today, adding that two companies of British infantry had arrived from Ahmednagar and that additional police had been rushed from Poona.

Hope for Peace Wanes.

Bombay, May 8 (A.P.).—Hope of an early end of difficulties with the cohorts of civil disobedience went down in blood and ashes tonight while cavalry forces rode upon Sholapur, where 27 were killed during strife that lasted all day.

Nightfall did not bring quiet to the scene of the most severe clash since the internment of Mahatma Gandhi signaled the seeming end of passive resistance.

With its lists of dead and probably more than a hundred wounded, Sholapur this evening sent out calls for troops and more troops. It was evi-

Langley Field Crash Kills Two, Hurts One

Famous Siamese Officer and United States Lieutenant Die When Planes Lock Wings at 200 Feet as Maneuvers End.

Locking wings suddenly at a 200-foot elevation at Langley Field, Va., during exhibition air maneuvers, a seaplane and an observation land plane plunged to their deaths two fliers, one a famous Siamese officer, and seriously injured a prominent Army aviator late yesterday afternoon.

The dead are Lieut. Col. Pha Amara, 35 years old, distinguished veteran of the Siamese Air Corps, who is widely known in Washington, and First Lieut. Robert J. Brown, jr., Army Air Corps, 36 years old, of Framington, Mass. The injured man is Capt. Percy G. Black, Eighth Field Artillery, 36 years old, a son of Maj. Gen. William M. Black, U. S. A., retired.

The crash was the finale of maneuvers staged at the field by 29 Army planes for a notable array of visitors, including principally members of the executive council of the American Bankers Association, in session at Old Point Comfort.

Out of formation at the termination of the exhibition, the observation craft, declared to have been piloted by Capt. Black, with Lieut. Brown as a companion, and the seaplane, with Lieut. Col. Amara at the controls as the only occupant, swept over the field not far apart in preparing to land.

Coming down to a 200-foot elevation, both pilots apparently failed to realize the proximity of their craft in centering their attention on the field below. Without warning, the planes tangled wings in a splintering impact which crumpled both into an almost unrecognizable mass of canvas, steel and wood as they shot to the field.

Lieut. Col. Amara was killed instantly. Lieut Brown, knocked into insensibility, died an hour later in the Langley Field Hospital. Capt. Black received severe lacerations about the head, a broken left arm, a broken wrist and elbow. In the Fort Monroe Hospital he was reported as critically hurt, with chances for life slim.

All three were students in the Air Corps Tactical School at Langley Field. As a mark of courtesy to the Siamese Government, which had sent to this country last year both Lieut. Col. Amara and Maj. Luang Deves, rated as two of its two foremost fliers, the United States Government had admitted both to its training course at Langley Field.

Both men were completing the course this month after having been stationed there since last September. They came to Washington last June and had flown many times at Bolling Field. Lieut. Col. Amara had a distinguished World War record, and was one of several famous fliers sent by Siam for service with the French during the war. He had won a decoration from the French Government for his exploits.

Lieut. Brown, a native of Massachusetts, entered the Army in June.

COL. BELL RESIGNS POST IN COVINGTON

Former Washington Man Quits as City Manager After Disagreement.

PRAISED BY EDUCATOR

Special to The Washington Post.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 8.—An apparent disagreement over patronage at the Covington (Ky.) City Hall resulted today in the unexpected resignation of Col. J. Franklin Bell, formerly of Washington, D. C., city manager of Covington for the last four months.

The resignation becomes effective at the pleasure of the board, probably May 15. It was presented by Col. Bell during a conference today of the city commissioners, following a series of conferences in the last few days between the commissioners and the members of the city manager campaign committee.

Col. Bell declined to make a statement on the situation, but intimated that one would be forthcoming later. The commissioners, however, issued this statement:

"The methods of operating the various city departments under Col. Bell were not in accord with the wishes of the commissioners. It was decided to confer with the members of the city manager campign committee, and it was agreed that the commis-

U. S. AGENTS AID POLICE

A 25-gallon still, a quantity of alleged Chinese liquor, an assortment of narcotics and implements for the manufacture of both liquor and drugs were seized late yesterday afternoon in a raid conducted by Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman and Federal agents on the Kuo Min Herb Co. on Pennsylvania avenue northwest near Third street.

Moy Sheuck, 45 years old, said to be the proprietor of the place, was charged with sale and possession of liquor, possession of implements to manufacture liquor and with possession of several forms of narcotics. Joe Moy, 25 years old, found in the place, was charged with possession of the seized goods and implements, but no sale charge was placed against him.

Raiders reported that they found several dozen bottles of liquor secreted under steps in the rear of the place, while most of the narcotics seized were found in an upstairs room. A weird assortment of dead Chinese turtles and snakes, herbs and medi-

Hoover Going Fishing To Study Court Post

Liberal Group Advances Judge Cardoza For Supreme Bench

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover will probably go off to the cooling breezes of his Rapidan fishing camp this afternoon to try to forget his worries over the Senate, perhaps the Senate itself.

He has turned to looking for another Supreme Court candidate and although a host of names bob up in speculation about the only thing definite is that he will have one in ample time for the Senate to act upon before adjournment.

A liberal group, though just what that is, is not known, but a group that had quite an influence in the defeat of Judge John J. Parker, has advanced Benjamin N. Cardoza, chief justice of the New York Court of Appeals and is understood to be campaigning at the American Law Institute meeting here in his behalf.

Judge Cardoza is reputed to be a brilliant jurist but he comes from a section of the country already very heavily represented on the court. The liberals, however, say they do not recognize sectional but only mental lines.

The names of Owen J. Roberts, special prosecutor in the oil cases, and Newton D. Baker, together with Judge William S. Kenyon and former Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, are also heard but not from any one professing to know anything about the mental processes of the President.

It seems definite now that the President is to make no comment, not publicly at least. The impression is obtained though that it has been quite a struggle on the part of his advisers to keep him from saying something.

JUDGE B. N. CARDOZA.

The air about the White House on the day after seemed to be one of resignation rather than dejection. The attitude seemed to be that after all the Senate is a necessary branch of the Government, a necessary evil, so to speak, but nothing was said on the subject.

Little hope was entertained among the Southern senators that another Southerner would be appointed. The argurient made during the fight that another Southerner would go the same way as Judge Parker, is rather

SENATE VOTES $12,000,000 AS DISTRICT FUND

House Lump Sum for City Upkeep Boosted by $3,000,000.

APPROPRIATION BILL TO BE PASSED TODAY

Half Amendments Meet Approval at First of Sessions.

M'KELLAR OFFERS RIDER TO MEASURE

Method Sought to Forestall Retirement of Tindall, Veteran Employe.

Taking up the 1931 District of Columbia appropriation bill late yesterday, the Senate promptly approved the provision for a $12,000,000 Federal contribution toward the city's upkeep

The House in passing the bill provided for a $9,000,000 Federal contribution, a sum so small that, should it prevail, an increase in the tax rate here is inevitable.

When the Senate recessed at 4:30 o'clock yesterday, it was with the understanding that the District bill will be the first order of business today. This mean that the bill will be passed early this afternoon. It will then be sent to a Senate and House conference.

Half of the Amendments Approved.

In the half hour or so that the bill was under consideration yesterday, about half of the Senate amendments were approved. The others will be taken up first thing today.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, announced that he would offer a rider to the bill authorizing the Commissioners to continue D. William Tindall in the service of the District government.

A bill giving the Commissioners such authority was passed by the Senate the day before, but when it reached the House Chairman Lehlbach, of the civil service committee, announced that no action would be taken on it. Thus, if Dr. Tindall is to be saved from the operation of the retirement act in August, he must be taken care of in the appropriation bill.

Employe for 61 Years.

The veteran, an employe of the District for 61 years, now is in charge of the municipality's information bureau, and officials and citizens alike have asked that he be retained.

Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, who is in charge of the District bill, told Senator McKellar yesterday that while he is in sympathy with the movement to save Dr. Tindall, he will have to object to the proposed rider on parliamentary grounds. The rules bar new legislation in an appropriation bill.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, sought to eliminate two Senate amendments to the bill, but finally agreed to let them go to conference after Senator Bingham promised that they would be reconsidered.

Center Appropriation Cut.

One of the amendments strikes out the House appropriation of $20,900 for the paving of Iris street from Thirteenth to Sixteenth; the other knocks out a House appropriation of $15,700 for the paving of Thirteenth street, from Alaska avenue to Kalmia road.

As it now stands, the District appropriation bill carries a total of $43,910,855 to run the city government for the fiscal year of 1931, which begins next July 1. This sum is $1,422,262 less than the bill carried when it passed the House, but is

M'BRIDE BARES DECLINE OF DRY GROUP'S POWER

TAKES STAND

F. SCOTT McBRIDE.

Lobby Committee Hears Head of Anti-Saloon League in Inquiry.

RECEIPTS LAST YEAR UNDER EXPENDITURES

Ohioan Says 30 Bodies Form Policy on Liquor Laws by Congress.

APPLAUSE FOLLOWS CLASH WITH BLAINE

Never Talked to a President, Drawls Witness, Disclosing Contrast to Wheeler.

The waning power of the Antisaloon League was revealed to the Senate lobby investigating committee yesterday through financial records showing that its receipts last year did not meet its expenses, and through testimony of F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, that leadership of the dry forces has passed to a committee representing several prohibition groups, including the league.

Dr. McBride spent most of his time on the stand denying that the league does things that the late Wayne B. Wheeler was wont to boast about in the days when Wheeler was in command, and according to his testimony, the league's expenditures ran into millions annually. Wheeler's proud declarations that he controlled Congresses and dictated to Presidents found no echo in McBride's statements yesterday. In fact, he testified that he had never talked to a President of the United States and said that most of the work of lining up congressional support was attended to by the State organizations at home."

Expense Exceeds Receipts.

A heavily built, serious-looking man with a prominent fighting jaw, Mr. McBride seemed to have stepped from a woodcut of Cromwell's "Ironsides." He has risen to his present eminence from a farm in Ohio, not far from Westerville, birthplace and shrine of the Antisaloon League. His slow, drawling speech, respectful and pleasant-toned, was totally unlike the sharp whip-cracking sentences of Wheeler.

For his appearance yesterday, McBride wore a neatly pressed blue suit with a heavy gold watch chain running from his lapel to breast pocket, and an obviously new haircut of the full neck shave variety. He is a Presbyterian minister and explained to Senator Blaine (Democrat), Wisconsin, that he was "what you call a doctor of divinity," adding that "a group of college trustees are responsible" for the latter.

In 1929, the league's receipts amounted to $269,916.82 and its expenditures were $273,049.14, according to a financial statement submitted by Dr. McBride. Among the receipts was an item marked "bad checks, $685." Presumably, the difference between receipts and expenditures in 1929 was made up by a balance of more than $4,000 shown as coming over from the previous year.

Balks at Publicity.

When the witness was excused for the day, Senator Blaine was just getting under way with a series of questions concerning details of the league's finances. Blaine indicated that he will continue the line of questioning today and the committee ordered Dr. McBride to produce additional financial records, including a complete list of contributors. The latter demurred at this last demand and asked if a list of those contributing $1,000 or more would not suffice, saying that it is sometimes embarrassing to contributors to have their names published. However, the committee insisted on having the full list produced.

Dr. McBride testified that representatives of 30 prohibition organizations, which he did not name, meet annually

BACKING OF CHURCH SOUGHT BY CANNON

Bishop, Asking Vindication, Says He Opposed Smith as Private Citizen.

RAPS DRY LAW CRITICS

Dallas, Tex., May 8 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, asked the church today for vindication of his activities against the liquor traffic.

Bishop Cannon declared that in the last presidential election he openly opposed Gov. Alfred E. Smith's election "not as chairman of your board on temperance and social reform, but as an individual citizen with a record of 40 years of active antiliquor warfare."

Taking the position that the general conference had gone on record as opposing liquor in every legitimate fashion, Bishop Cannon reported that despite the church rulings, the board had taken no part in the campaign and that no funds of the church had been used.

He asked, however, that the church go on record definitely as to taking part in campaigns in the future.

"Surely," the report said, "the church will notify the advocates and defenders of the liquor traffic that the moral forces of the country will not be driven from the field by the cry that they are bringing the church into politics because they oppose the election of men whose personal and official records both brand them as enemies of national prohibition.

"Unless we must surrender all we have won by many years of conflict, we will declare to the world that we must place moral principles above purely partisan politics. We must not permit party politicians to confuse our counsels or to obscure the definiteness of our position or to change our positive determination to defeat wet candidates at the polls."

The report declared the church had "distinctly and emphatically" injected its influence into the final legislative settlement of the prohibition question by appealing to the President and Congress for passage of prohibition legislation, that the church had asked its people to vote for dry candidates, and that the conference specifically included the office of President in the list of those who should be so elected.

Despite this authority, the report said, the chairman had not fought Gov. Smith as an official of the Actuated by detector strips on the street, the lights are controlled so that traffic right of way is given in the order of the arrival of the vehicle, and at the Bethesda crossing, right of way for street cars also is worked out by the robot.

The ceremonies yesterday were attended by Maj. Gen. Herman B.

Glass and Norris Ridicule Idea That Insects Infest Capital.

Relaxing after its terrific battle over Judge John J. Parker, the Senate late yesterday turned its attention to mosquitoes—particularly Washington mosquitoes. Today a vote will be taken, and from all indications it will be in favor of the mosquitoes.

For a mass crusade against the pests, the District Commissioners, the Public Health Service, and Col. U. S. Grant 3d asked Congress for an appropriation of $60,000.

Col. Grant, who is in charge of public buildings and parks, planned to use a part of this fund for a drive on the White House, a favorite hangout for the insects.

before each session of Congress and formulate the attitude of the dry forces with respect to prohibition legislation. Emergency cases coming up between the annual meetings are handled by a legislative committee, he said, which acts in harmony with the broad principles laid down by the general conference. After the annual meetings, he said, letters are written to all members of Senate and House stating the dry position and, when necessary, individual legislators are interviewed.

Keeps Home Fires Burning.

"Most of the work is done in the home districts," McBride said, explaining how the league seeks to obtain legislative support for its measures.

"You keep the home fires burning," suggested Chairman Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, a dry.

"Yes," Dr. McBride admitted.

"Do you ask people back home to bring pressure to bear on members of Congress?" Mr. Caraway asked.

"It is not often necessary if the work is done properly in the primaries and elections," the witness replied.

Mr. Caraway read from the league's constitution a statement that the organization is nonpartisan. "It seems to me there never was a time when I was in Ohio that the Antisaloon League was not with the Republicans," Mr. Caraway observed.

Backed Democrat Governor.

"You have not been there all the time," Dr. McBride said. "Mr. Donahey, the Democratic Governor of Ohio, has had the support of the Antisaloon League; that's the reason he was elected three times."

Senator Blaine interrupted to remark that Donahey had run against other drys, who were also indorsed by the league, and McBride then went back 25 years to point out that the league had once supported a dry Democrat against a wet Republican in Ohio.

Under persistent questioning by Chairman Caraway Dr. McBride admitted that the league collects information as to the prohibition records of district attorneys and Federal judges, but insisted that this was just an informal, more or less accidental, circumstance.

Argument on Appointments.

"The information comes in our correspondence from our State leagues and from the public," he explained.

"And then you write it back to the public," suggested Caraway.

"Yes," Dr. McBride said.

"A sort of mutual aid society," Caraway commented.

There was a long argument between Caraway and McBride on the question of whether the league recommends the appointments of public officials having to do with prohibition enforcement. Apparently, McBride had anticipated this line of questioning for he produced a batch of mimeographed statements which he said covered the official policy of the organization. The policy thus set out is as follows:

Places Prohibition First.

"1. Never to permit the league to be maneuvered into assuming responsibility for the appointee. Such responsibility is resident solely in the appointing power and no action by the league should ever give color of authenticity to the charge that the league is responsible for the appointee.

"2. Always endeavor to furnish the appointing power with the fullest information possibly obtainable about candidates for appointive offices dealing with prohibition. This should not be in the form of an indictment or an indorsement, but should tend to show fitness or unfitness and serve as a guide whereby the appointing power may be assisted in coming to a decision.

"3. Consistently stand as a friend of prohibition rather than as either friend or foe of candidates for appointive offices and to be ever ready to form an impartial judgment of the appointing power in the light of efficiency and honesty of his appointees and based on his own final responsibility."

Some Good, Some Bad.

"You say this man is good and that this man is bad?" asked Caraway.

"Yes," the witness replied.

"How do you differentiate that from making recommendations?" Caraway asked.

The witness said he did not think the two were the same.

McBride then produced his statement of policy and Caraway commented that "that was to get from under."

McBride explained that the declaration was drawn up because the "unfriendly press" had accused the league of trying to dicate appointments.

"Did you write that statement?" Caraway asked.

"Yes," Dr. McBride said.

Introduction of Volstead.

"Well, you certainly chose your words very carefully," the senator remarked.

Caraway then brought up the question of whether the league wrote the Volstead act and McBride, at first, denied all responsibility, saying the House judiciary committee had written it.

"I was a member of that committee at that time," Caraway observed, "and the first time we saw the bill we saw it all. I may add that I was not very much impressed with Mr. Volstead's knowledge of its provisions."

McBride finally admitted that the league "probably helped" and added that its legal department "wouldn't be efficient if it did not."

Assistance to Prosecutors.

The witness also admitted that State branches of the league make it a practice to furnish briefs to prosecuting attorneys when the latter are trying prohibition cases.

"Do you ever furnish them to the trial judge?" asked Caraway.

"I think not," Dr. McBride replied.

Answering a further query from Caraway, Dr. McBride declared he thought it entirely proper for groups interested in legislation to form organizations to make their wishes effective. Then he launched into a long explanation of how the league had wrested control of the Illinois legislature from the wets and restored it to "the people."

"You think it was harmful to have the wets take charge of the legislature?" Caraway asked.

"Yes," McBride replied.

"Then do you think it proper for the other side to do the same?" Caraway went on.

"We don't do it in the same way," Dr. McBride explained.

Dr. McBride told Senator Caraway there is no basis for the assertion that there is more drinking now than before prohiibtion.

"If there were, the wets would be better satisfied," he said.

An interchange between Senator Blaine and Dr. McBride brought two outbursts of applause from the audience and forced Senator Caraway to warn the spectators, when Senator Blaine accused the drys of "silent resistance to the law" by advising prohibitionists not to vote in State referenda on wet and dry questions.

Wets Laugh Last.

"You are setting up alibis to use after you are defeated," Senator Blaine charged. "You fear the results of a popular referendum on this question."

"You are hardly in a position to speak for our organization," Dr. McBride replied, at which there was an outburst of applause from the group of professional dry who have occupied the front seats in the committee room ever since the wet and dry phase of the investigation started.

"That is extremely complimentary to me," Blaine retorted, thereby provoking a second outburst from the rest of the audience greater in volume than the first. Chairman Caraway, reinforced by a suggestion from Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, another dry, then decided that the demonstrations had gone far enough and warned the spectators to refrain from further applause.

COURT FINES SECOND PASTOR FOR ACTIONS

West Coast Minister Found Guilty of Interfering in Case With Letter.

METHODISTS SEND WIRE

Los Angeles, Calif., May 8 (A.P.).—Alleged interference with the superior court today for a second time in less than a week brought a pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church South here to trial with the result that the Rev. B. E. Wall was fined $1. The fine was suspended.

Last Monday the Rev. R. P. Shuler, pastor of the church was fined $100 and sentenced to twenty days in jail for his utterances over a radio concerning the procedure of the superior courts in connection with Julian Petroleum stock swindle case.

Mr. Wall, the associate pastor, was cited for violation of court rules in writing a letter to Superior Judge Walton Wood, in which he discussed the case of William Russell, charged with grand theft. The associate pastor was found guilty by Judge Clair S. Tappaan, who sentenced Mr. Shuler.

Judge Tappaan said Mr. Wall acted with good intention, but nevertheless was guilty of interference with the court.

Dallas, Tex., May 8 (A.P.).—"Fighting Bob" Shuler, Los Angeles minister sentence dto jail for contempt of court, was sent a wire of sympathy and confidence by the Methodist Episcopal Church South, today.

The telegram was sent by the general conference in session by a unanimous vote of the delegates, after several of Mr. Shuler's acquaintances had extolled his high character, declaring him the "greatest force for moral good on the Pacific Coast."

The action came just before the conference adjourned for today. Earlier in the session a motion to send him a wire had been defeated because, many delegates explained, they were not entirely familiar with the charges, and did not wish to cast disrespect upon the court that sentenced him.

The vote was unanimous, however, when several West oCast delegates, and Bishop Sam R. Hay, under whose jurisdiction Mr. Shuler is, made highly complimentary speeches concerning him.

Trick Donkey Caught After Avenue Chase

Uno, 17-year-old trick donkey, started toward the Capitol yesterday when he escaped from his keeper at the Fox Theater.

Uno was being led into the theater by Al Wheeler, his keeper, when he broke away, dashed through an alley into Pennsylvania avenue, and proceeded to throw traffic into hysterics. Pursued by Wheeler and scores of passerbys shouting "stop him," he got as far as Thirteenth street where the crowd was too much for him and he gave up, to return docilely to his place on the bill at the Fox.

Committee Upholds Fight For Sex Equality

The House committee on foreign affairs yesterday reported unanimously the Fish resolution expressing the approval of Congress of the action taken by the United States delegation at the recent Conference on the Codification of International Law in voting against the convention on certain questions relating to the conflict of nationality laws.

The resolution further declares it to be the policy of the United States "that there should be absolute equality for both sexes in nationality and that in the treaties, law and practice of the United States relating to nationality there should be no distinction based on sex."

Premiere of Passion Play Witnessed in Rain by 5,000

Delineators of High Priest and Judas Win Greater Praise Than Lang.

Oberammergau, Germany, May 8 (A.P.).—The endurance and devotion of the 1930 Passion Play performers were tested severely today by the elements.

Amid almost incessant rain and in temperature so low that their breaths were visible to the audience, they gave their first public production of the year before 5,000 guests in anticipation of the formal opening Sunday.

To the chorus members especially belongs credit for continuing bravely and devoutly, as they were entirely unprotected and were in the open all the time, whereas the principal actors were on a covered section of the stage at least part of the time.

High church dignitaries, headed by the papal nuncio, representatives of the German and foreign press, members of the Federal and Bavarian governments and individual celebrities such as Oscar von Miller, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Krupp von Bohlen and others, including a good sprinkling of Americans, sat reverently through the eight-hour performance, although chilled to the bones.

Probably the most sublime heights of the performance were reached in the scene of the Last Supper, when Alois Lang as the Christus, with infinite tenderness and dignity, distributed bread and wine among the apostles. There was a touching scene at the end during the crucifixion, both as to Lang's actions on the cross and the acting of the women at the foot of the cross.

Although Christ is the central figure, Alois Lang was not the strongest actor of this performance. Hugo Rutz as the High Priest Caiphas appeared to many to shine above the others. Some observers awarded the palm to Guido Mayr, impersonating Judas, whose role, after that of Christ, is the most important.

The women commanding the greatest interest are the blonde Anni Rutz, impersonating the Virgin Mary, and the brown-haired Johanna Preisinger, in the role of the Magdalen.

Neither young woman appeared the least excited by her role. Fraulein Preisinger until midnight last night helped serve the guests at her father's hotel. She told an interviewer she was overjoyed that her bishop had blessed her before the performance, although he added good-humoredly that he never expected she would act such a sinful part as the Magdalen.

Fraulein Rutz, too, was visited by the bishop during today's noon intermission and was much more flustered by that than by her role. As though nothing had happened she waited on customers at the souvenir shop she has been running since her father's death, as she is the sole support of her family.

CARAWAY, ROBINSON BRANDED 'SNOOPERS'

Head of Wet Association Says They Failed to Bare His Congress Expose.

SCORES GRUNDY, DAVIS

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 8 (A.P.P.).—Henry H. Curran, of New York, president of the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, accused Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and Senator Robinson, of Indiana, with "snooping" into his private lteters and with refusing to make public confidential reports "about some drinking drys" in Congress at a mass meeting here tonight.

Curran, who recently appeared before the Senate lobbying committee, made the charges in an address given in support of a "wet" Republican ticket, headed by Francis H. Bohlen, of Philadelphia, as the sentorial candidate, which the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is supporting.

"After a lively and intimate experience with those two senators for about two weeks," Curran said in referring toCaraway and Robinson, "I do not think they can make good laws for anybody a tall. They began by snooping in my private, taken out of m office, although they had nothing to do with the lobbying in any manner at Washington, and they ended by refusing to make public one of my confidential reports which told about some of the drinking drys in the United States Senate and the House of Representatives, including a few right here i nthe State of Pennsylvania."

Curran referred to Senator Joseph R. Grundy, whom Boehlin is opposing, as a "pussyfooter," and described Secretary of Labor Davis, also seeking the Republican senatorial nomination as a "bone dry" dominator."

CANNON EXPLAINS ANTI-SMITH DRIVE

church, preferring a more definite church stand on the question.

Gov. Smith's stand against prohibition, he declared, was a definite, unmistakable call to vote against the "Democratic candidate," although up to that year prohibition had not been made partisan politics.

"No prohibitionist," said the report, "claims that the prohibition law is fully enforced, or that conditions can not be greatly improved, but it is confidently asserted that the condition of the masses of our people has improved under prohibition.

"Despite the ceaseless clamor and insolent bitterness of sections of the metropolitan press, the vicious, hypocritical assaults of representatives representing districts with large, foreign-born wet population and the brazen defiance of so-called high society life, friends of prohibition will meet the issue firmly with assurance of the support of the majority of the steady, substantial citizens of the country."

Bishop Cannon bitterly attacked newspapers which have "led in circulation of the defeatist propaganda, declaring that many of them have been traitors to the fundamental elements of constitutional government, criticizing officials from the President down for their efforts to comply with their oaths of office."

Some idea was shaping tonight of the work before the quadrennial general conference law making body of the church. Prohibition, upon which the church probably will take an unqualified stand; woman's place in the church; political activities of church officials and others were subjects of general interest with an apparent definite place in the scheme.

Matters more purely of church interest were election of new bishops, and their tenure of office, boundaries of church conferences, and adoption of a new church constitution.

Memorials offered included:

From north and south Georgia and south Florida, to limit the tenure of bishops, both Georgia conferences four years, and the Florida conference eight-year terms.

From Virginia and Covington, Ky., to rescind the law regarding the use of tobacco by ministers.

From Virginia, to require that a bishop named for a mission field be obligated to spend at least one quadrennium in that field.

He was treated at Emergency Hospital and later sent to his home.

FIVE STATES VOTE BONE DRY IN POLL

Enforcement Ballots Forge Ahead of Modification for First Time.

KANSAS TOPS ARID LIST

New York, May 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Three more States vote bone-dry in the latest returns of the Literary Digest's prohibition poll tabulated in tomorrow's issue of the magazine, making a total of five showing a clear majority for enforcement. North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee join Kansas and Arkansas in the dry column.

For the first time since the poll started, the vote for enforcement passes that for modification. Of the 4,150,017 listed in the eighth weekly report, 1,248,589 or 30.9 per cent are for enforcement, 1,231,489 or 29.68 per cent are for modification and 1,669,579 or 40.23 per cent are for repeal.

Only three States, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, register a majority for repeal, but Louisiana and New York are represented bya vote of more than 40 per cent for repeal.

While there has been no marked change in the ratios of the three groups, the magazine notes a general trend in the later reports toward a dryer vote.

Kansas continues to lead as the most arid State in the poll, while Connecticut still heads the wet column. In the following States, a higher than average enforcement vote, more than 40 per cent of the total was recorded: Alabama, Colorado, owa, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Carolina and Texas. More than 40 per cent of the ballots in Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the District of Columbia favor repeal.

Chattanooga, Tenn., is the only city showing a majority vote for enforcement in the figures of the cities. The poll of cities:

NINE BRONZE BUSTS GO IN HALL OF FAME

Seven Massachusetts Men Honored; 65 Pedestals Are Now Filled.

POLLARD MAKES SPEECH

New York, May 8 (A.P.).—Bronze busts of nine more illustrious Americans were placed in the Hall of Fame at New York University today, filling all of the hall's 65 pedestals.

A former President, other statesmen, an inventor, a poet, educator, historian and an author took their places in the colonnade among the other 56 men and women who had been previously honored.

A large gathering looked on as tributes were paid to these men—James Fenimore Cooper, the romantic author; James Russell Lowell, the poet; Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine; George Bancroft, historian, statesman and founder of the Annapolis Naval Academy; Joseph Storey, one-time associate justice of the Supreme Court; John Lothrop Motley, historian; aPtrick Henry, the brilliant orator of Virginia; John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States, and Horace Mann, educator—as their busts were unveiled, seven of them by direct descendants.

Senator Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, wehre seven of the men were born; Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia; William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education; John Bassett Moore, member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration; Dr. William Lyon Pehlps, of Yale, and Prof. John Erskine, Columbia University, delivered their tributes. Two others by David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador to Germany, were read.

HIGHER SUGAR RATE IS SOUGHT IN APPEAL

Hershey Aid Says Hawley May Reopen Hearings on Institute's Plea.

(Associated Press.)

A statement that an attempt will be made to reopen by concurrent resolution the sugar schedule, already agreed upon in the tariff bill, in order to obtain higher levies on refined sugar was made yesterday by John E. Synder, vice president of the Hershey Corporation, of Hershey, Pa. Mr. Snyder, whose firm maintains sugar refineries in Cuba, asserted that Rudolph Spreckles, of New York, president of the sugar institute, was behind the move and that Mr. Spreckles had received "definite assurances" that Chairman Hawley, of the House ways and means committee, would sponsor a resolution to amend the schedule.

The Hershey official challenged the right of Mr. Spreckles to have the subject of refined sugar reopened.

"If Congress were to permit the adoption of a series of last-minute concurrent resolutions to provide higher duties on various articles which already have been disposed of by both Senate and House," he said, "Doubtless there would be no end of tariff making."

Republican leaders did not deny Mr. Snyder's statement but said it was an "exaggertion" of the situation.

Mr. Hawley said there had been "some talk" of a concurrent resolutoin to correct a possibly unintentional error by the experts in figuring out a proper differential for refined sugar based on the 2 cents a pound duty fixed on Cuban raws.

He understood, however, that Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, would oppose such a move.

Senator Smoot said a resolution to change the refined duty would have to originate in the House, but declined to amplify this assertion.

Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, which would have jurisdiction over such a resolution, said from what he knew about the subject the Snyder statement was "a very exaggerated one."

"This question will not be reopened," he said, "unless some technical and unintentional mistake has been made by the experts in figuring the differential on various degrees of refined sugar."

The main controversy over the sugar tariff has been over the rate on Cuban raws. This has been fixed at 2 cents as against 1.76 cents in existing law. The rate on Cuban 100 degree refined has been fixed at 2.12 cents as compared with a present duty of 1.91 cents.

As both houses have settled arguments over these rates the only way open for a change now is by concurrent resolution after the final conference report has been accepted by the Senate and House and prior to enrollment of the measure for transmission to the White House.

sioners would proceed with the selection of a new city manager."

Four of the commissioners, who went into office under a pledge to give $3,000 yearly from each of their salaries to pay the city manager, voted to approve the resignation. Mayor Thomas F. Donnelly, saying the resignation was news to him, voted against it.

Following the meeting one commissioner said the charter group had agreed that Col. Bell was not making the progress he should. Another said, "util there is a weeding-out process and men are placed in city positions who are in sympathy with us, we can not get any where. I do not know what Col. Bell's views were on this matter, but he has not done anything about it. The citizens want results."

Dr. Charles W. Reynolds, president of the Covington Board of Education, said tonight that:

"Col Bell resigned rather than be a piece of putty in the hands of those chosen by Covington at her last municipal election. Col. Bell is a man of ability and soundness in thought and action. He came into this city a stranger and in the short time he has been with us he has stamped himself as an able gentleman, a constructive executive and a wise city manager.

"The best thing that the campaign committee could have done for the city would have been to put the commissioners to sleep for a year or two after they had selected Col. Bell.

"Was not this planned in advance, to get rid of Col. Bell and then slip back into the old routine of peanut politics, which has been the curse of this city for several geneartions? The whole thing is absolutely disgusting. God pity Covington."

Col. Bell was brought to Covington at a salary of $12,000. No contract was made, the agreement being possible of termination at the pleasure of the commissioners. He formerly was a member of the District of Columbia commission and came to Covington with high recommendations.

Col. J. Franklin Bell was named Engineer Commissioner of the District in 1923 and served until early in 1929. He had previously been in charge of river and harbor work at Pittsburgh and in charge of levee construction at New Orleans following distinguished service during the World War.

Coal Leases Are Cause Of $30,000 U. S. Suits

Alleging that terms of contracts for three leases of coal lands in Utah had not been carried out, the Government yesterday filed a trio of petitions in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $30,000, the full amount of three bonds guaranteeing the execution of the terms of the contracts. The Royal Indemnity Co., a New York corporation with offices in the Colorado Building, is named as co-defendant in each suit, while other defendants are the Utah Fuel & Iron Co., a Nevada corporation; James B. Quinn and Delbert F. Densel, both of Salt Lake City, Utah. The Government alleges that each of the defendants agreed to spend $250,000 in actual mining operations, developments and improvements of the property covered in the respective leases. The Indemnity Company was surety on bonds of $10,000 guaranteeing fulfillment of the terms of each of the lease contracts, the Government alleges.

NEW TARIFF PARLEY APPROVED IN HOUSE

Senate Request for Second Conference Criticized by Cramton.

SPEAKER CITES MANUAL

(Associated Press.)

The unusual request of the Senate for another conference on the tariff bill before both houses had acted upon partial agreement of the first conference was accepted yesterday by the House, but only after the Senate's action had been sharply criticized by Representative Cramton (Republican), of Michigan.

A surprise attempt by Representative Garner, of Texas, the majority leader, to instruct House conferees to accept the Blease amendment exempting from the 6 cents a hundred pounds levy cement intended for State and municipal public works, was defeated, 155 to 138.

The conferees will meet today in an effort to reach a supplemental agreement on the six remaining major points in controversy—the Blease cement provision, rates on silver and lumber, the export debenture plan, the legislative flexible tariff clause, and the tariff commission reorganization proposal.

Statement by Cramton.

Despite assurances from Speaker Longworth that the conferees could not open up for further revision any of the 1,200 or more changes agreed to in the first conference and approved by the House last week, Representative Cramton insisted the Senate should have acted on the partial agreement before asking a second conference.

"I do not believe," he said, "that it ever should be necessary for this House to abandon the orderly, well-established methods of parliamentary procedure at the whim of some other body."

Speaker Longworth was asked for an opinion of the Senate's request, but he declined with the statement that he was barred by Jefferson's manual from expressing an opinion of anything the Senate did. Vice President Curtis recently ruled Jefferson's manual was not controlling, and in the absence of a Senate rule Senators could use their own discretion in commenting on House acts.

Garner's Move Causes Stir.

It looked for a time that the House would refuse to agree to the second conference unless the Senate acted on the partial agreement. Mr. Cramton objected to a request by Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, for the conference, but later withdrew his objection when Republican leaders threatened to bring out a rule to accept the Senate request.

Mr. Garner's move on the cement amendment caught the majority chieftains off guard but they quickly summoned enough strength to win by the slight margin of seventeen votes. A similar motion last week was rejected 222 to 167, a majority of 55.

The Senate conferees still are pledged not to recede on the export debenture and the flexible provision withdrawing from the President power to change customs duties before asking instructions from the Senate. They are free, however, to work out an adjustment, of the remaining provisions in dispute without violating any informal understandings.

INDIAN REVOLTERS BURN THREE POLICE

dent that a stubborn encounter still was in progress.

Women and Children Leave City.

Thirteen European women and children tonight had been evacuated from the city. They were removed to a point of safety said to be Poona, where earlier in the day it had been reported and denied that the mahatma had been spirited from his internment quarters to a fortress at Purandhar.

The famous Duke of Wellington's west riding regiment clanked its way from Ahmednagar this afternoon.

Sholapur authorities, however, demanded more troops to stop the chaos which had reigned except for a few hours since last evening. The killing of two policemen, the burning of six police stations and all of Sholapur's liquor stores had created an untenable situation and one against which the city authorities and the reservists were wholly powerless.

Demonstrations Precipitate Fight.

Sholapur, an important seat, 220 miles southeast of Bombay, was awakened to its peril last evening when the police ban on liquor shop picketing and mass demonstrations precipitated the struggle. Firearms were brought into use immediately after a sharp clash. Quiet followed in the night. Early today, however, fierce attacks were launched by the natives and the killing began.

The Sholapur outbreak came as a serious blow to the brighter prospects which had been the result of yesterday's comparative calm. It makes the outlook for Saturday, which the Nationalists will celebrate as the anniversary of the Indian mutiny of 1873, decidedly more unpromising.

The government's only consolation was that today's dispatches bore news of no other serious disorders in India.

The Indian Chamber of Commerce, the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, the Calcutta Iron Merchants Association and ten other bodies with headquarters in Calcutta have addressed a letter to Viceroy Lord Irwin, drawing his attention to the "policy of general terrorism" pursued throughout India by the authorities, urging on behalf of the Indian mercantile community that he should "stop the repression."

Painter Hurt as Ladder Hurls Him to Sidewalk

Morris Howard, 40 years old, of Glenn Carlin, Va., was seriously injured late yesterday when a ladder he was climbing fell backward throwing him 15 feet to the concrete sidewalks. The accident happened while Howard was painting a building at 743 Fourteenth street northwest.

Howard, a painter foreman and father of nine children, was removed to George Washington Hospital. His skull is believed to be fractured.

Virginians May Phone Europe at Lower Cost

Telephone calls from Virginia and West Virginia to Europe will be reduced by $15 on each three-minute conversation after May 10, it was announced yesterday by officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. The new rates will become effective on all calls after midnight May 10.

The charge for each additional minute, under the new rate, will be reduced $5 This reduction should mean an annual saving of $450,000, the telephone officials said. Increased use of service has made the reduction possible, it was pointed out. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has cooperated in making the reduction, it was announced.

Man Acquitted at Trial In Burglary and Theft

James M. Kelly, colored, was acquitted by a jury before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday in District Supreme Court of a charge of housebreaking and larcency. The jury was instructed by the court to return a directed verdict of not guilty on the larceny charge and deliberated only a few minutes before acquitting the Negro on the housebreaking count.

Kelly, who was represented by Attorneys George H. Happ and Charles F. Sanford, was accused of having climbed through the window of the apartment at 1321 Fairmont street northwest. The defense was based on the contention that the defendant was not the man and that he had been implicated through another person who had a grudge against him.

GUARDS' GUN KILLS TWO OHIO CONVICTS

Shooting Accident Follows Destruction of Tents by Prisoners.

MUST SLEEP IN OPEN AIR

Columbus, Ohio, May 8 (A.P.).—Their heads pierced by machine gun bullets, accidentally discharged by Ohio National Guardsmen, two Ohio Penitentiary convicts lay dead tonight, the latest in the long string of prison casualties and disorders dating from the Easter Monday fire when 320 convicts met death. A third convict was wounded in the shooting of this morning, a few hours after unruly prisoners, confined in a barbed wire stockade within the prison yard, destroyed their temporary shelter tents by firing them.

The two dead are Albert Freeman, Negro, and Frank Ross, both of Cuyahoga County, serving long terms.

Tonight, scores of convicts who had been housed in the tents pending repairs to the cell blocks they damaged, had only the ground as a bed and the sky as a cover. Many left "homeless" by the incendiary fire, found shelter in improvised "pup tents" made from sections of burned tents, blankets and other bed clothes. Authorities were firm in the determination that the unruly men would sleep in the open until the cell blocks are repaired.

Officials of the National Guard investigated both the fire and the shooting. The reports were submitted to the adjutant general, who said they would be withheld from publication. The names of the guards men who had charge of the ill-fated machine guns were not made known.

After comparative quiet within the prison since the mutineers in the White City Idle House were overcome and put into the stockade by National guardsmen, the peace within the old prison walls was shattered early today by the cry of fire. Unruly convicts, armed with paper firebrands, ran about the tent colony, firing the canvas shelters. Within a short time, 87 of the 88 tents had been consumed by the flames as the surly convicts stood by and watched.

All was quiet again until shortly after dawn when a sudden burst of machine gun fire startled the watchful guards. The bullets, fired accidentally from a gun mounted in front of the chapel, carried death and injury into the dormitory through a barred window. The wounded man, Ernest Warren, Cuyahoga County Negro, will recover.

STATE DEPARTMENT HALTS BARLOW CASE

Report States Action Would Not Be Appropriate at Present Time.

U. S. ENVOY VIEW CITED

(Associated Press.)

The Joseph E. Barlow land claim of $9,000,000 against the Cuban government, which has troubled State Department officials during the last two administrations and the Cuban government for the last twelve years, was definitely tabled yesterday in a State Department report.

"In the present position," said the report, "the department does not feel that any action in regard to Mr. Barlow's claim would be now appropriate."

It followed submission of a lengthy discussion of the case by Harry F. Guggenheim, American Ambassador to Cuba, who flew to Washington recently to discuss Mr. Barlow's affairs and those of Charles Harrah and Walter Fletcher Smith, with Joseph P. Cotton, Undersecretary of State.

Opinion of Ambassador.

Ambassador Guggenheim said he concurred in the general view of his two predecessors that Mr. Barlow had not exhausted his legal remedies in Cuba and could not be said to have suffered a denial of justice in the Cuban courts.

Following issuance of the department statement, Mr. Guggenheim said "the Department of State's support of a claim of this kind would, I am firmly convinced, lessen its effectiveness in assisting other American citizens whose claims are justified."

Accompanying its statement that the Barlow claim had lost merit with a summary of his case, the State Department said the Barlow case involved claim to possession of a certain tract of swamp land "largely undeveloped," in the City of Havana.

Titles Held Conflicting.

Conflicting titles have grown out of questions of priority of grant and the meaning of certain conveyances and maps under Cuban law, the report said.

The department said that Mr. Barlow had frequently expressed belief that the Cuban courts were prejudiced against him for personal reasons and that a plan of private arbitration before a neutral tribunal had been agreed to by both governments, but that Mr. Barlow had objected.

The Cuban claimant to the property had agreed to the plan.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

MAY 9, 1917.

Great Britain announced that its war bill totalled $37,250,000 daily.

Herbert Hoover reported to President Wilson on the Allied food needs.

Congressional leaders approved President Wilson's merchant marine program and will appropriate $1,000,000,000 for it.

Strong reinforcements were used by the Germans in two new attacks on Fresnoy and Gavrelle.

MORO BANDITS KILL FOUR POLICE; 18 HURT

Outlaw Casualties Not Yet Known in Clash With Constabulary.

U. S. OFFICER WOUNDED

Manila, May 8 (A.P.).—One of the sharpest clashes in years between the Philippine Constabulary and Moro outlaws occurred on the Island of Mindanao today, resulting in the death of a constabulary officer and three privates and the wounding of three officers and fifteen privates. The number of Moro casualties had not been determined.

The fighting took place in the mountainous Kawayan district. The size of the rebel force was not known, but its ranks included murderers, cattle thieves, robbers and tax dodgers and others sought for law violations and, judged by the nature of its resistance, it was believed to be large. The outlaws were entrenched in an old fort.

The wounded constabulary officers included an American, Capt. J. R. Grinstead, commander of troops in Lanao Province on the Island. His wound was in the leg, but considered possibly fatal. Capt. Grinstead, a native of Ridgeway, Mo., holds the Distinguished Service Cross, awarded for bravery in France in 1918, while he was a sergeant in the Thirty-fifth Division.

The officer killed was Lieut. A. C. Maynes, a Filipino. He fell when constabulary troops attacked the fort. Lieut. Garcia, another Filipino officer, was wounded in the head during the attack.

Moro outlaws have long been a source of trouble to the constabulary. Many Moros, who are Mohammedans, have opposed Christian Filipino sovereignty, saying they would acquiesce in foreign domination if ruled by Americans. Other Moros, as represented by their datus, or chieftains, have declared willingness to submit to Filipino rule if certain abuses were removed and if allowed sufficient home rule.

Moros have always chafed more or less under taxation, and the constabulary has often had to go into the Mindanao and Jolo regions to quell uprisings growing out of objection to taxation and other regulations.

way through the mass of debris. Women screaming in the crowd of spectators added to the uproar.

Three firemen were overcome before the fumes cleared away. Others became ill and gas masks were donned.

Building Valued at $75,000.

Officials of the company said the smoke house was valued at $75,000.

The immense size of the timbers hindered the work of clearing the wreckage. The building was of brick construction with joists of 4 by 12 inches. Huge sections of flooring, some 10 to 20 feet square, were mixed in the debris and had to be smashed apart to permit access to lower levels.

Eight box cars on nearby sidings were crushed as the building toppled. A second building adjoining the smokehouse was left standing, but part of the wall was shattered and it towered dangerously over the rescuers.

SUIT AGAINST R.C.A. BY U.S. IS DUE SOON

Couzens Informed Justice Department Will Act in Several Days.

SARNOFF LETTER READ

(Associated Press.)

Assurance that the Justice Department would institute suit against the Radio Corporation of America "within the next several days" was voiced last night by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee.

The committee in executive session was informed in a letter from John Lord O'Brian, special assistant to the Attorney General, of the status of department investigation contemplating action against the corporation.

Senator Couzens said, however, that he was not informed whether suits would involve the corporation's pending unification of its radio holdings with those of Westinghouse and General Electric, or whether it would involve action against R. C. A. in connection with its own radio patent holdings.

Mr. O'Brien transmitted to the committee a letter from David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation, to the Attorney General. This letter, Senator Couzens said, was "the reason why suits against the company were delayed by the department when it was ready to file at the first of this week."

The letter from Mr. Sarnoff referred to announcement to the company by Attorney General Mitchell that "it may be necessary for the Department of Justice to test the legality of the unification program recently proposed by the company." Assurance was given that the meeting of stockholders last Tuesday would "not in any sense complete or consummate the proposed unification of property," but would deal "with the creation of stock proposed to be issued in payment for the property."

"In order that the status quo may be preserved pending completion of your investigation and any possible interest of the public protected without the ultimate necessity of any application for a stay order," the letter from Mr. Sarnoff said, "the company gives you assurance that the deeds, bills of sale and other documents of conveyance will not be delivered, and the stock of the company will not be issued or the title otherwise conveyed without such notice in advance to the Department of Justice as will enable you to take such action, if any as you may think desirable."

WICKERSHAM FLAYS AMERICA'S PRISONS

Conditions Are Disgrace, He Says as Law Institute Opens Convention.

HUGHES MAKES SPEECH

(Associated Press.)

An attack by Chairman Wickersham of the Law Enforcement Commission upon the Nation's method of keeping criminals, under augmented penalties, in conditions "which cry aloud to high heaven," yesterday marked the opening of the eighth annual meeting of the American Law Institute.

He was followed by Chief Justice Hughes, who, in his first address since assuming a Supreme Court seat for the second time, commended the judicial fact-finding efforts of the institute. He added that when the information now sought becomes known, "even legislation may become intelligent."

More than 600 State chief justices, Federal and State judges, professors of law and lawyers attended the start of the three-day convention. During the afternoon they were received by President Hoover at the White House.

Model Code Considered.

Earlier, the delegates considered a voluminous draft of a model code of criminal procedure, already approved by the institute's council, and now awaiting their adoption. Among its recommendations were changes in the methods of determining insanity in criminal cases, and of modifying the necessary unanimous verdicts of juries in other than capital cases.

Chairman Wickersham, speaking as president of the institute, assailed as "fundamentally wrong" the entire method of dealing with criminal offenders in the United States. He asserted the "present day practice of endeavoring to prevent crime by augmented penalties" was based upon a "fallacy that has time and again been demonstrated."

Assailing prison conditions, Mr. Wickersham said, "Men and women are being sent to prison—to antiquated, overcrowded, unsanitary and unsafe institutions, under conditions which cry aloud to high heaven for immediate improvement."

Immediate Action Urged.

"I would not have the construction of new, fairly decent and adequate prisons wait upon the reformation of the penal laws, he continued.

"No problem is perhaps more urgent at this moment than that of the disposition of those unfortunates who have been convicted of crime and sentenced to terms of imprisonment."

The law enforcement commission chairman said he believed the institute's proposed model code of criminal procedure would be "a distinct contribution to the improvement of law enforcement." He added that as director of the preparation of the code he believed the long consideration and research it required furnished an "answer to those impatient reformers who demand results over night."

Hughes Hails Efforts.

Chief Justice Hughes spoke extemporaneously. He said:

"I suppose it is characteristic of our day that the evils that afflict the administration of justice are attacked from so many angles by disciplined forces under high command.

"We are today seeking in many ways an expansion of knowledge with respect to the actual working of the mechanism of justice. Even law professors are looking for facts. The survey is being made not in a sporadic but a scientific manner. I hail all those efforts."

Mr. Hughes earlier paid tribute to the late William Howard Taft, whose place on the bench he assumed.

Attempt at Seaplane Altitude Mark Fails

New York, May 8 (A.P.).—With his altimeter registering 27,500 feet, just 249 feet less than the record, one engine of Capt. Boris Sergievsky's plane faltered today and he had to postpone his attempt to set a new mark for seaplanes carrying a load of 500 kilograms, or 1,102 pounds.

Capt. Sergievsky already holds the seaplane altitude records for dead loads of 2,000 and 1,000 kilograms and the speed record with a 2,000 kilogram load over a 100-kilometer course. The record he hoped to beat today was established in Germany in 1927 by Fritz Harder, who got up 27,719 feet.

G.O.P. TRADE STAND IS HIT BY ROBINSON

Senator Declares Country Will No Longer Accept Official Views.

SAYS CONDITIONS WORSE

Associated Press.

Asserting that the unemployment situation is steadily becoming worse and that prices of leading securities are now lower than ever, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said yesterday the country had lost faith and "now accepts no administration declarations as valid."

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, Mr. Robinson said that two months ago President Hoover issued a statement on business conditions which said "all the evidence indicate that the worst effects of the crash upon employment will have been passed during the next 60 days * * *."

"A week ago," said Mr. Robinson, "President Hoover delivered a speech before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in which he reiterated his declaration that the business slump is nearly all over.

Stock Market Crash Cited.

"The day after this speech the stock market experienced a crash that carried the prices of securities to lower levels than the abyss of the black November days of last year. The President, of course, did not bring about the panic, but it should not be forgotten that he asked his election on the ground that it was the only way to continue prosperity in this country."

The Democratic leader said that in the campaign "Mr. Hoover took credit for himself and his party for our national prosperity."

"He attributed nothing," he continued, "to the expansion of business and opportunity resulting from the war. He allowed nothing for the ingenuity, enterprise and intelligence of the American people.

"Moreover, though he had been for eight years at the head of our Department of Commerce with his fingers constantly on the pulse of industry and investment, he issued no word of warning of the catastrophe that lay just ahead, although after it had happened he was glib in his explanations of the why and wherefore of the catstrophe.

Alleges Misleading Statements.

"Conditions have grown steadily worse, despite the Pollyanna statements of the administration and the misleading reports of some of its members, notably James J. Davis, the Secretary of Labor. Mr. Davis' figures on unemployment have been so absolutely wrong that the country has lost faith and now accepts no administration declarations as valid.

"However blameless the President may be for the initial panic, it is most unfortunate that added disappointment should have come from his persistent coloring of real conditions."

"It may be urged," he continued, "that the President merely guessed wrong in his judgment of market conditions. The Government has no right to guess, for people do not take the statements of their officials to be mere expressions of their desire. They think, and have a right to think, when from the head of the Government there comes a statement backed by impressive statistics that the ebb is over and the tide of prosperity is again flowing, that they can rely on it."

4-Year-Old Reveals Drowning of Parents

Fayetteville, Tenn., May 8 (A.P.).—A 4-year-old girl returned to her home near here today and with lisping tongue tried desperately to make neighbors who crowded around her understand. After much questioning, she was understood to say, "Papa and mamma drown."

Men of the community hurried to the banks of Elk River nearby and after searching the stream for several hours recovered the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Holt, parents of the child. The little girl told of going with her parents to the river for a swim. As she stood on the bank watching them, they were caught in a swift current and sank out of her sight.

Committee Badly Split On Rivers, Harbor Bill

(Associated Press.)

Confronted by controversy over major provisions of the House rivers and harbors bill, the Senate commerce committee was so divided yesterday that Chairman Johnson said he had "no idea" when the measure might be reported to the Senate.

The committee decided to close hearings next week after taking additional testimony on a provision for acquisition and operation of the Erie Canal, in New York State, by the Federal Government.

HYGIENE CONGRESS DISCUSSES DREAMS

Effect of Death Instinct on Health Also Described to Delegates.

YOUTH PROBLEM CITED

Dreams and their causes, the "death instinct's" effect on health and comparative maturity periods among youth were among nearly a score of topics discussed yesterday before the First International Congress on Mental Hygiene.

At last night's session in Constitution Hall Sir Maurice Craig, of England, spoke on the importance of mental hygiene in other departments of medical practice, and Dr. Rene Sand, of Paris, France, discussed mental hygiene and its relation to world health. Dr. William A. White, of Washington, president of the congress, presided.

Earlier in the day Dr. Franz Alexander, of Berlin, explained that "dreams with painful content" were caused by a guilty conscience, as well as by repressed or unsatisfied wishes.

Wish for Death Cited.

Dr. Alexander said that when a boy returns to sleep after being awakened to attend school, he often dreams that he is in the schoolroom because of a subconscious sense of duty, which reminds him that he should be at classes instead of in bed.

Mary Chadwick, fellow of the British College of Nurses, said that evidence supported the claim of a "death instinct" that made people desire a return to an inorganic state. Many deaths from influenza during the war, she added, were caused by the patient's wish for death more than by the actual physical effects of the disease.

The "death instinct," Miss Chadwick explained, often caused suicide phantasies, in which people get some thing of the sensation of death through imagining that they are dead.

"The strange conditions assumed by some creatures that hibernate," she said, "convince me that there is a close relation between sleep and death."

Columbian Savant Speaks.

Dr. S. M. Gruenberg, of Columbia University, told the delegates that in point of maturity and responsibility the modern youth does not compare favorably with the youth of several generations ago.

Lengthening periods of schooling, he said, delayed the dawn of maturity by keeping the youth from facing economic problems. "The problem," he explained, "is to discover a technique whereby the adolescent may be projected into a situation where the stakes are real, and the issue worthy of concern."

Others who engaged in a discussion of modern youth and attendant educational problems were Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, of Yale University, and Dr. Leta S. Hollingsworth, of Columbia University.

POLICEMAN INJURED PURSUING SPEEDER

Hurtled 60 Feet When Cycle Sideswipes Citizen During Chase.

PEDESTRIAN ALSO HURT

Hurtled 60 feet along Wisconsin avenue near Davison drive in nearby Maryland when his motorcycle was wrecked in sideswiping a pedestrian during a speed chase, Montgomery County Policeman Joseph Oldfield, 30 years old, of the Bethesda substation, sustained painful hurts.

Removed to Georgetown Hospital, Oldfield was reported suffering from several broken bones in the left hand, probable fracture of ribs on the left side and possible internal injuries. His condition was not regarded by attendants as critical.

Luther Dodd, an employe of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises about the face and body sustained when he was brushed by the motorcycle. Dodd was reported to have leaped from a W. R. & E. Co. truck and to have started across the Avenue to fix a street railway light. He did not see the motorcycle approaching. He was later removed to his home at 1301 E street northeast.

The accident occurred while Oldfield was pursuing a speeding automobile, bearing Michigan license plates, which was proceeding along Wisconsin avenue at a rate of about 60 miles an hour.

Montgomery County Policeman James E. Shoemaker, also of the Bethesda substation, responded to a call and removed both men to the hospital.

Oldfield recently had returned to work after having suffered a fracture of the right foot several months ago in a crash with an automobile on the River road.

Mercury Hits 97; More Heat Today

Low-Pressure Area Must Be Dissipated Before City Gets Relief.

Gentle southwesterly breezes brought a modicum of relief to sweltering Washington yesterday, but showers that were expected to cool things off failed to materialize, and the high reading of 97 degrees on the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk was but one degree lower than Wednesday's mark.

The Weather Bureau's high reading was 90, shortly after midafternoon. Fair weather was forecast for today. Appreciable relief from the unseasonal heat of the last few days will not arrive until a low pressure area including the South Atlantic States is dissipated, officials of the bureau said, and it is impossible to forecast definitely this development.

The highest official local temperature for May for the past 53 years was recorded on May 23, 1925, when the mercury touched 97 degrees.

Pope to Give Radio Talk From Vatican

Address in the Near Future to Initiate Use of Sending Station.

Vatican City, Rome, May 8 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI will inaugurate the Vatican's new radio broadcasting station with a personal address upon its waves, it was stated authoritatively today.

While no official Vatican pronunciamento has been issued to that effect there is little doubt that his holiness' voice will be the first to be heard in a regular program.

Ceremonies, including the blessing of the station, will mark its introduction. It was made known today that although the Pope recently had expressed himself as undecided upon what part he would take in the ceremonies he has received many appeals to participate. The station will be in experimental operation within five weeks and ready for its broadcast debut in a month and a half.

TANKER BLAST DOES $3,000,000 DAMAGE

Millions of Gallons of Oil Are Consumed as Fire Roars in Bayonne, N. J.

INJURED MAN MAY DIE

Bayonne, N. J., May 8 (A.P.).—Flames flung in all directions by the explosion of a 10,000-gallon gasoline tanker today swept the 13-acre plant of the Gulf Refining Co. and destroyed property valued at more than $3,000,000 before being brought under control.

The flames roared with volcanic force among a nest of tanks containing millions of gallons of crude oil, fuel, gasoline and naphtha, but fortunately did not reach any gasoline tanks. One after another, 16 tanks exploded, with detonations heard for miles, and burst into flames.

One structure, housing 10,000 50-gallon drums of oil was shattered, and a rain of metal barrels, bricks and flaming oil descended.

Backfire Seen as Cause.

Seven men were injured and for a time residents feared the destruction of the city. Gunner Frieden and Charles Nostdahl, members of the crew of the Tanker Schutia, were seriously injured. Frieden may die.

In addition, three city firemen and an employe of the company were overcome and Inbert Hoarlenst, of the Schutia, was injury slightly. Between 150 out 200 others were given first aid treatment at the scene for minor injuries.

The first explosion, on the Schutia, was believed to have been caused by a back-fire. The tanker was tied at the company's docks on the Kill Van Kull, a small body of water dividing New Jersey and Staten Island, and connecting New York Bay with Newark Bay.

5,000,000 Gallons Lost.

Within a few minutes, the flames spread from pier to pier. A barge burned and sank. Its crew reached shore.

Eating under the piers, the flames reached a small tank, exploding it and scattering flames among the fifteen other tanks in the water-side section of the plant. Flames shot 300 feet in the air and black smoke clouded the skies for more than half a mile.

Fire companies from Bayonne, Jersey City and Staten Island and seven fireboats aided in battling the flames.

Company officials said approximately 5,000,000 gallons of oil and other fuels had been lost. They were unable to explain the origin of the first explosion.

FILIPINOS STRONGER FOR NATIONALISM

High School Students Force Resignation of American Teacher.

BOYCOTT U.S. CIGARETTES

Manila, May 8 (A.P.).—A growing spirit of nationalism has become increasingly noticeable in the Philippines.

One of the outstanding evidences of this was the strike in which 3,000 high school students participated to force the dismissal of an American teacher. They accused her of having insulted the Filipino people, won their point and obtained her dismissal from the service.

To older Filipinos the strike was a revelation. One said that when he was a student he and his classmates took what they considered insults and never even thought of protesting, much less striking. He attributed the walkout not to a greater degree of assertiveness on the part of present-day youth, but to a greater tendency on the part of Filipinos to think in nationalistic terms.

Other evidences of the growing national feeling include an attempted boycott of American cigarettes, a move to obtain the appintment of a Filipino as vice governor general, now that Eugene A. Gilmore has resigned, and the recent Philippine Independent Congress.

The cigarette boycott is still in progress. A Filipino seen smoking an American fag is asked by those supporting the boycott to throw it away. If he refuses, he is assaulted. Numerous such cases have occurred, but no Americans have been molested.

The agitation for a native vice governor is not new; political leaders have long aspired to have a Filipino in that post. But a new and nationalistic argument has been added—that a Filipino would be just as good for the post as an American. Heretofore, their chief argument has been, "If you wish us to learn to govern ourselves, how are we going to do it if you keep us from prominent positions in the government?"

The Philippine Independence Congress was called primarily to demonstrate that the Filipino people is united in the desire for independence. Although the speeches at the congress showed no radical attitude toward American sovereignty, they disclosed that the Filipino leaders would rather see their country a poor one, but paddling its own canoe, than a prosperous one under an alien power.

These displays of nationalism follow in the wake of the anti-Filipino riots in California, the efforts to restrict the entry of duty-free Philippine products into the United States, and the efforts to stop Filipino immigration to the United States.

They also are regarded as being due in no small degree to the liberality of the American administration. Under the Spanish, natives were constantly told of the uncomplimentary views the Spaniards held toward them and any sign of protest was dealt with severely. Today, Filipinos are limited in the freedom of their speech only by the laws on sedition and criminal libel, while their acts are limited only by the laws against violence. This enables them to express themselves freely as Filipinos.

134 NAVAL AIRSHIPS WILL FLY OVER CITY

Air Armada Is Expected to Reach Capital Little Before Midday.

ADAMS TO GREET FLIERS

Washington, shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, will be privileged to witness the largest armada of fighting planes ever to fly over the Capital. The fleet of aircraft will include 134 Navy planes which yesterday conducted maneuvers over New York and New England.

Commanded by Capt. Kenneth Whiting, U. S. N., chief of staff, aircraft squadrons, battle fleet, the planes will land at the Naval Air Station in Anacostia for refueling and for feeding the 200 men manning the ships.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Charles F. Hughes will conduct an inspection of the planes at 2 o'clock this afternoon after which the ships will take off for their carrier bases, the U. S. S. Lexington at Hampton Roads and the U. S. S. Saratoga and the U. S. S. Langley at Norfolk Navy Yard.

This naval aviation force left Hampton Roads Tuesday, and upon its return each ship will have flown a thousand miles, while the entire squadron of light bombing, fighting, scouting and torpedo planes will have consumed 37,500 gallons of gasoline and 1,680 gallons of oil.

Hnndling of the 134 planes at the Anacostia Field and serving luncheon for the men will comprise the largest single operations order in the history of the field, but naval authorities there anticipate no difficulty during the exhibition in this city.

U. S. Naval Plane Armada Thrills New Englanders

Valley Stream, N. Y., May 8 (A.P.).—The air armada of the Atlantic Fleet, 139 Navy planes, took a swing over New England today before preparing to return to Norfolk tomorrow.

Leaving Long Island this morning, the winged fighting ships flew off to give New England its greatest air spectacle, dividing into several groups so that as many communities as possible might enjoy a view of formation flying.

There were no serious mishaps, although a clogged fuel line caused one forced landing on a Providence riding-golf course. A second plane sank one wheel in sand in landing at Pawtuckett, R. I., and had to be pulled out by a truck, and a third bowled over a beacon in landing at the Boston Airport.

CHINA REBELS CLASH WITH NATIONALISTS

Government Forces Menaced by Seasoned Troops of Yen and Feng.

NANKING IS OBJECTIVE

Nanking, May 8 (A.P.).—Severe fighting, with heavy casualties, took place today as the northern military alliance began a drive toward Nanking, capital of the Nationalist government of China.

Five thousand wounded Nationalists arrived at Suchow from the battle fronts, and 2,000 other wounded were reported being brought to this city. The number of Nationalists killed was kept secret by the censor. Northern casualties were unknown.

Directed by Yen Hsi-Shan, governor of Shansi Province and head of the rebel "National" government, and Marshal Fing Yu-Hsiang, the northern troops engaged the Nationalist (Nanking) government forces along the railway 50 miles west of Suchow, Kiangsu Province.

Communications Are Cut.

The few details permitted by the censor to come through in despatches apparently indicated that the government forces were seriously menaced by seasoned troops of Yen and Feng, trained in the revolt of last November and December. Facing the foe were the flower of the Nationalist army.

The rebels met with some success in cutting Nationalist communications with the Nanking capital as they swung around to the Nationalist rear and cut the railroad 50 miles south of Suchow.

Another major engagement occurred in western Shantung Province as Shansi rebel troops heavily attacked the Nationalists north of the Kweiteh-Suchow battle front. An attempt seemed to be in progress to envelop the Nationalists in Suchow. Halted by the severed railroad south of Suchow, Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government, was unable to proceed farther from Nanking to take personal command of his armies. He was reported at Pengpu.

First Major Clash.

Today's battle was the first major activity since Yen Hsi-Shan, governor of Shansi Province, announced a month ago that he had been appointed to head a coalition against the Nationalist government at Nanking. Yen declared the objects of the rebellion were to oust Chiang Kai-Shek because he was a "dictator" and to overthrow the government which Yen charged was corrupt, while its provinces were infested by bandits.

Supported by Feng Yu-Hsiang, Yen announced the formation of a new "national" government. Its capital was to be in the old capital city of Peking, renamed by the Nationalist (Nanking) government "Peiping." In English Peking means "northern capital," while Peiping is "northern peace."

$2,500 Chicken Dinner Held By Maryland U. Fraternity

Sigma Nu Chapter Sets Record for Initiation Banquets, But Tell-Tale Band Bares Fate of Prize Hens With Dire Results.

The Sigma Nu Fraternity chapter at Maryland University last night held the honor of staging the most expensive chicken dinner in the history of the institution and probably of college fraternities, but it was a hollow honor as the organization was suspended for a year by the national order and faced the prospect of having to raise $2,500 to pay for the feast.

The discovery of a leg band of one of nine missing star egg-laying hens, which were participating in the national egg-layin contest sponsored by the university extension service, led to the solution of the mystery of their disappearance and the revelation that a high dollar mark had been established in chicken dinners.

Two months ago the fraternity staged an initiation. Seeing a chance to cut down on the overhead expenses the older members ordered the new recruits to provide fowls for the big banquet. Now some of these initiates had received checks from home, it seems, while others were in the natural state of college men—broke.

Nevertheless, every initiate got his chicken—or chickens. And how!

The hens that disappeared on the night of the fraternity dinner were blue-blooded prize winners entered by a Virginia gentleman farmer. Yesterday officials of the university announced they would be good for his loss, and a committee from Sigma Nu declared that the money would be forthcoming.

It is believed that hereafter all chickens enrolled for any dinner at the university will have to bring their registration cards along before the chef accepts them.

Mother . . . .

MOTHER'S DAY? Why, if you ask us, Mother's Day has always been every day throughout the years. We have never seen the day when Mother laid aside her role to taste the myriad other joys. True, there have been other roles—but always it was Mother who made plain the way of life.

And so it is to do special honor that Mother's Day, Sunday, May 11, has come to be a day when you can give a little more to Her who offered her life for you. No, you cannot pay the debt—nor we—but as you stand before her, to whom you owe so much, you can bring a flower and a message which, when opened upon the perfumed air, will remind her that you still love her.

UTILITY CHIEFS HIT EFFICIENCY BUREAU

Report to Commissioners of District Flays Stand in Traffic Row.

CHARGE OF BIAS HURLED

Caustic criticism of the United States Bureau of Efficiency was voiced by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday in a report sent to the District Commissioners commenting on the bureau's recent criticism that the utilities commission and the District Commissioners had usurped the authority of William H. Harland, director of traffic.

Although Mr. Harland has told the Commissioners that he believes the Bureau of Efficiency was entirely right, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, has told the Commissioners that the bureau is far wrong and has put up to the Commissioners the statement that the traffic law specifically provides that the traffic director shall operate under the direction and supervision of the superintendent of police. The utilities commission yesterday added its voice to criticism of the bureau report which evidently was drafted without the knowledge of any District official other than Mr. Harland.

Report by Commission.

"This commission desires to go on record as believing that traffic control in this city needs study, and that conditions can be greatly improved by intelligent control," the utilities commission told the District Commissioners.

"So far as this report of the Bureau of Efficiency is concerned, it shows a sad lack of knowledge of many pertinent facts. It criticizes this commission, apparently without having made any attempt to ascertain what, if any, reasons existed for the taking of actions which it condemns.

"The whole report is really a biased statement of opinions, conclusion and attempts to interpret statutes, such as might be expected from a special pleader, but not from an unprejudiced investigator seeking to bring out all the facts before formulating its recommendations."

Commission Powers Cited.

The commission went on to quote provisions of law and especially of the public utilities act which were not mentioned in the bureau's report, showing that the commission had powers specifically exempted from the operations of the traffic law.

The propriety of the Bureau of Efficiency in declaring that the commission utterly lacked authority to control routing of motor buses was sharply questioned by the Utilities Commission, which pointed out that this very point was now at issue before the courts.

Weedon Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Interment of Realty Man Who Ended Own Life to Be Private.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning for John Catesby Weedon, prominent Washington realtor, who killed himself Wednesday by firing a bullet into his brain. The services will be held at the residence, 2112 Nineteenth street northwest. Interment will be private.

The death of Mr. Weedon was attributed to ill health. He was found by his wife on the third floor of their home yesterday afternoon. He died an hour later at Emergency Hospital. Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt issued a certificate of suicide after interviewing members of the family. The coroner found that Mr. Weedon's financial affairs were sound, he reported.

Mr. Weedon was president of the real estate company which bore his name and was a director of several banks and insurance companies. He was a former president of the Washington real estate board and had acted as chairman of the financial committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He is survived by the widow, three sons, two daughters and a sister.

Department of Agriculture, has been named principal agronomist, in charge of this office, according to an announcement by Dr. W. A. Taylor, chief of the bureau. Mr. McCall has been acting in charge of the office for the last three months.

Coroner's Jury Clears Policeman in Shooting

A second coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the fatal shooting of a colored man by Patrolman F. W. Sandford, of the Fifth Precinct, yesterday returned a verdict of self-defense in favor of the officer. The first jury called Tuesday disagreed and was dismissed.

Patrolman Sandford mortally wounded James Campbell, colored, Sunday when the victim and three others attacked him in Navy place southeast, as he was placing a colored man under arrest for being drunk and disorderly. Eyewitnesses testified that Sandford had fired at his assailants after they had attempted to choke him.

May 19-24 Designated Capital Clean-Up Week

Washington's annual spring clean-up week was designated yesterday by the Commissioners as May 19 to May 24.

In a proclamation the Commissioners called on residents to clean their premises and help keep clean the public parks and sidewalks and in general to aid in sprucing up the city. The spring season, they opined, is generally considered the time for cleaning things up, and Washington should furnish an example for the entire country.

Fatalities Are Cut By School Patrols

Traffic Deaths of Children Reduced 33 Per Cent by Boys.

Schoolboy patrols in the District have been instrumental in bringing about a reduction of 33 per cent in fatal accidents to children of school age in Washington, it was announced yesterday by the newly formed safety committee of the District of Columbia division of the American Automobile Association. Isaac Gans is chairman of the committee.

The committee reported that there are approximately 2,000 boys serving in 158 patrols in the District. This includes 24 patrols in parochial schools in the territory adjacent to Washington, the committee reported. There is an average of 1 patrolman to every 40 children, based on a school registration of 79,000, it was revealed. In 1926, when the patrols were first organized, there were fifteen fatal accidents to children of school age. In 1929 the number was ten, a reduction of 33 per cent, the committee report revealed.

Physicians Fail To Get Licenses

200 Have Failed to Comply With Law, Health Officer Says.

Approximately 200 District physicians have failed to call at the District Building and get their licenses which have been prepared for them by the recently formed commission on licensure of the healing arts.

The new medical licensing law provides that all practicing healers must be licensed and must display their licenses in their offices. There are about 1,200 doctors of medicine practicing in Washington, Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer and secretary of the licensure commission, said.

Dr. Fowler pointed out that physicians who have failed to get their licenses are violating the law and are subject to arrest and prosecution for their failure.

Girl, 2, Becomes Ill On Drinking Liniment

The curiosity of Elizabeth J. Poe, 2 years old, of 800 G street northwest, made her ill yesterday.

The child, while her mother was in another room, picked up a bottle of liniment and drank some of it. She giggled at first at the bitter taste, but then became deathly pale and her mother, noticing the dark smudge on her lips called the Emergency Hospital. An interne said that the girl had taken only a small quantity of the fluid and would recover.

Widow Freed in Slaying.

A jury in District Supreme Court before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday acquitted Mary Brewer, colored, of a charge of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of her husband in a house on Second street northwest near E street last January 30. The woman pleaded self-defense. She was represented by Attorneys Milenky & Bendheim. Assistant United States Attorney James R. Kirkland prosecuted.

Clerk Files in Bankruptcy.

Russell C. Bennett, who describes himself as a clerk employed by the Chestnut Farms Dairy, living at 3921 Seventh street northwest, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. He lists liabilities of $1,270.55 and assets of $200. Attorney William E. Carey, jr., appears for the petitioner.

Pigeons' Shooting Halted by Official

Killing of Pet Stops Drive on Birds Vexing District Building Tenants.

Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday stopped the first effective effort by District officials to rid the District Building of roosting birds which dirty it and inconvenience passers-by.

Mr. Garges told E. P. Brooke, superintendent of the building, to have the campaign of shooting the roosting birds stopped, although the superintendent had got an official permit for E. S. Hall, District Building carpenter, to shoot pigeons and other birds.

Mr. Garges halted the campaign because some one complained that one pigeon which had been shot Wednesday evening was "Charlie," a pet known to several District Building employes. Those who dislike the birds for the time being are finding comfort in the fact that the pigeons are not nearly so numerous as the starlings will be this fall.

District Angler Pays $25 for Elusive Bass

Marvin Beverly, 24 years old, of 3413 N street northwest, paid a fine of $25 in Police Court yesterday on a charge of violating the District fishing ordinance.

Beverly was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Policeman Clarence Morgan, of the Seventh Precinct, while in the alleged act of pulling in a 15-pound bass. Morgan, in court, testified that he saw the fish on the end of the line and that Beverly threw the catch back into the water when he saw the law approaching. Morgan denied that he leaped into the water in an effort to get the fish as evidence.

TEN DISTRICT BILLS PASSED BY SENATE

More White House Police and Larger Museum Building Provided For.

BAN ON CROSSING VOTED

The Senate passed ten bills of local interest yesterday, including one to enlarge and reorganize the White House police force, and another to double the size of the Natural History Building of the National Museum.

The first-named bill was sponsored by President Hoover, and, having passed the House, it now goes to him for signature. It provides that the White House police shall be under the chief of the Secret Service and that the force shall consist of a captain, a lieutenant, three sergeants, and up to 43 privates.

The second bill, which now goes to the House, authorizes $6,500,000 for the enlargement of the Natural History Building, a structure that is now badly overcrowded.

Other Measures Listed.

The other measures passed were as follows:

A bill to eliminate the Michigan avenue railroad grade crossing at a cost of $500,000, providing that the viaduct to accomplish this end may be built a short distance to the north of the crossing.

A bill for the abolition of the Fern street grade crossing and authorizing an underpass at this point instead of the viaduct provided for in previous legislation.

A bill to permit nearby communities in Maryland and Virginia to dispose of their refuse in the new District incinerators.

A bill to authorize the director of Public Buildings and Parks to operate the municipal bathing pools here, and to charge small fees in order that they may be kept open.

Sale of Land Allowed.

A bill to permit the Commissioners to sell certain land at Twenty-fourth street and Benning road northeast, which is no longer needed, and also a bill to permit them to sell land in square 1606.

A bill to permit the Commissioners to close certain streets and alleys in that part of the Reno section where the Alice Deal Junior High School is to be erected.

A bill to permit the Commissioners to close streets in the area of the proposed Eliot Junior High School. This measure now goes to the President.

The bill to increase the salaries of the District Commissioners from $9,000 a year to $10,000 was blocked by Senator Jones (Republican), of Washington.

One Dies, One Hurt As Building Burns

$1,500 Damage Is Done in Rooming House Fire; Inquiry Launched.

One man was burned to death and another was injured when he leaped from the second-story window during a fire which did $1,500 damage to a rooming house at 16 G street northwest early yesterday.

John Solomon, 23 years old, colored, of Benedict, Md., was asleep on the second floor of the building when the fire broke out. His charred body was later found in the ruins. James Criswell, 28 years old, an employe of a lunchroom on the first floor of the building, leaped from a second-floor window. He suffered a sprained ankle.

The Fire Department is conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the blaze.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

There really is no such thing as "unlimited parking" on Washington streets. Always there is a limit of 18 hours upon which any car owner may leave his car standing on any street in the city.

Example—A motorist parks his car in front of his home on an outlying street at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The next morning he rides to work with a neighbor, leaving his machine in the same spot. By the time he returns that evening at 5 o'clock he has violated the traffic regulations. The car has been there 24 hours; the limit is 18.

Girl Scout Troops Double Numbers

Merit Badges and Other Awards to Be Made Later in Month.

The enrollment of girl scouts in the Washington council has doubled within the last year, a report by Miss Dorothy Greene, girl scout director, revealed yesterday at the annual meeting of the District Council. There are now 2,363 girls, forming 81 troops, in the capital.

Merit badges earned in 1929-30 numbered 2,806, the report stated, and of these homemaking led with 1,010, and health tests came second with 817 badges. These awards and 500 first and second class insignia will be made at 2:30 p. m., May 24 at Continental Hall.

Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., was re-elected Commissioner at the meeting. Other officers are: Mrs. B. F. Cheatham, first deputy; Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, second deputy; Mrs. Frederick Atherton, third deputy; Mrs. Monte Appel, treasurer; Mrs. Harris Franklin, assistant; Mrs. Earl Chaffee, recording secretary, and Mrs. McKee Dunn, corresponding secretary.

Brother Seeks German Interned During War

The Washington Travelers' Aid Society and companion associations throughout the United States are conducting a search for Paul L. Fruhling, a German by birth who was interned as an alien during the World War and later released from the prison at Fort Douglas, Utah. The search was begun at the request of a brother, W. Fruhling, of Samarinda, Island of Borneo, Dutch East Indies.

The brother told the Travelers' Aid in a letter that he had received no word of the missing man since some time in 1921. He was last heard of in San Francisco.

War Mothers Will Sell Carnations for Fund

Red and White carnations will be sold on the streets of Washington tomorrow for the benefit of the welfare fund of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American War Mothers. The carnations were made by disabled former service men.

Through the welfare fund of the organization, the money raised will be used for the benefit of World War veterans in hospitals, their dependants, child welfare and prison relief. Plans for the sale will be completed at a meeting of the chapter tonight at the Hamilton Hotel.

DISMISSED PRIVATE RESTORED TO DUTY

Commissioners Set Aside Trial Board Verdict in Debt Case.

HIS RESIGNATION HELD

The District Commissioners yesterday set aside the sentence of dismissal imposed by the Police Trial Board on Policeman George L. Earle, but Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby has in his pocket Earle's resignation to "be effective at such date in the future as the Commissioners may deem advisable, dependent upon the future conduct of the said private."

Earle was sentenced to dismissal for his failure to pay a debt and to keep previous promises made the Trial Board to liquidate debts about which complaint had been made. The Trial Board has been severe in dealing with men against whom creditors complained. One man was sentenced to be dismissed on complaint of a doctor who had charged him $450 for medical services. Another young policeman recently was presented with a bill for $1,000 by his physician as a charge for attending his wife at the birth of their first child. No complaint has been made in this case, but it is estimated that it will take the patrolman five years to pay off the bill if he has no additional doctor's bills to pay in the meantime.

The practice of accepting and holding resignations from policemen who have slipped a little, thereby giving them another chance, has not been used in the District department since the time of Commissioner Louis Brownlow. It is possible that the police manual may be amended to require any person complaining of nonpayment of a debt by a policeman to get a judgment in court before the Police Trial Board will recognize the complaint. Several persons have complained and then withdrawn their complaints when their bills have been paid.

New Kind of Salts Taking Country By Storm

They Revitalize the System—Induce Youthful Activity—Keep Body in Splendid Condition—Free From Fat.

It doesn't take long for Americans to wake up to a good thing—only a few months ago Kruschen Salts were introduced into this country and the welcome news of their superior goodness and swift rejuvenating power traveled so fast that at one time the supply was many carloads behind the demand.

All of which goes to prove that Americans know good salts when they take them and want their friends to benefit also.

Kruschen Salts are taken for their health building value all over the world—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain today.

Kruschen Salts are different from other salts—Kruschen is six salts in one—the very same six salts that nature put into the human body at the beginning of creation and demands you keep them there or your health won't be as good as it should be.

Unlike most salts Kruschen isn't simply a laxative—if that's all you want any old kind of salts with any kind of a label will do—but is that all you want?

When you take Kruschen Salts you not only stimulate your bowels, liver and kidneys to function naturally and perfectly, but you supply every internal organ, gland, nerve and fiber in the body with nature's own revitalizing and rejuvenating minerals.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85c at Peoples Drug Stores, or any drug store in America—take one-half a teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—in just a few days indolence changes to activity and life grows brighter.

Before the bottle is empty you'll feel years younger—eyes will brighten—step grow sprightlier—nerves steadier—you'll sleep sound, enjoy your meals and after a hard day's work you'll be ready for wholesome recreation—one million Americans know all this—ask your druggist.

THE COURT STILL STANDS.

The country is overwhelmingly with the President and against the Senate in the controversy over the Parker nomination. Comment from every part of the country reveals the popular disgust with the combination of personal and partisan malice and cowardice that worked Judge Parker's rejection. Several senators were wavering at the last minute, and finally succumbed to their fears instead of standing by their convictions. They admitted privately that they had no valid reason for opposing Parker, but they concluded that their personal political interests would be served by sacrificing Parker.

In this they were dead wrong, as is now disclosed by the wave of resentment that sweeps the country. No senator has gained strength in the State by voting against Parker.

If the President had attempted to foist upon the country a bad judge there would have been a strong point in the argument now brought forth, to the effect that the Senate is supposed to give its "advice" as well as "consent" to a nomination. But the President chose a good judge, after thorough inquiry, and after having received competent advice, including that of senators. It is impossible to obtain the advice of the entire Senate in advance of a nomination, and it would be unwise to do so even if it could be done. The power of selection should remain with the President. Some of the opposition to Judge Parker was really aimed at destruction of the presidential liberty of choice, and was barbed with personal antagonism to Mr. Hoover. When weak-kneed senators discovered this fact they should have refused to cooperate in rejecting Judge Parker. Without malice themselves, they assisted others to deal an unfair blow at the President.

The country is finding out these facts. The people trust President Hoover, and they mistrust the Senate. The long tariff dispute emphasized the fact that selfishness and malice animate some senators, greatly to the discredit of the Senate as a whole. The Parker case now brings these unlovely traits into strong relief. The result, although a defeat for the President, is much more than a defeat for the Senate, because the public in its disgust condemns the Senate as a body. Its prestige was never so low as it is now, notwithstanding the fact that only one-half of the Senate is to be blamed for the rejection of Parker.

Mr. Hoover is to be commended for remaining silent. It is not necessary for him to speak. The people understand the situation.

Although Judge Parker has been rejected, the radicals of the Senate have not succeeded in intimidating the Supreme Court or in placing unfit judges upon its bench. They never will succeed. An honest President stands in their way. He will not prostitute the court at the demand of the Senate. The next selection he makes will certainly not be from the ranks of slippery shysters who cater to the mob spirit. In the end the Senate will confirm a just, able, conscientious judge. The shameful treatment of Judge Parker can not be effaced, but the senators who for selfish reasons dealt him this foul blow have not made any progress in tearing down the United States Supreme Court. President Hoover nominated a suitable judge, and he will nominate another.

COALITION IN A TIGHT PLACE.

That bloc in the Senate which is advocating the export debenture and opposing the flexible provision of the tariff bill has weakened its cause by demanding the return of the bill to conference before voting on the conference report. Members of the coalition feared that the final showdown would be a vote on the debenture and flexible provisions, and that they would be called upon to give way or see the bill defeated. They can not avoid that inevitable decision, however; it is merely postponed by returning the bill to conference.

As the tariff bill now stands it has the overwhelming support of the House. All provisions, save the rates on silver, lumber and cement, and the controversial administrative features, have been agreed upon by the conference committee representing both houses. The House reaffirmed its position on the controversial issues, and the Senate had the privilege of acquiescing or disagreeing. Had the Senate chosen to accept that part of the bill agreed upon by the conferees, it would no longer have been open to debate. The Senate might have accepted or rejected the views of the House on the disputed points for guidance of its conferees. But instead the matter was referred to the conference committee again without action.

This gives the committee an opportunity to iron out all differences between the two houses. The Senate having failed to vote on these issues, why should not the committee agree to discard the debenture and retain the President's flexible powers in dealing with tariff emergencies? Personal sentiment among the conference members is against the Senate in this respect. It should not be difficult for the conferees to adjust the rates remaining in dispute, and in accepting the views of the House on the debenture and flexible provisions they would merely be taking the common-sense viewpoint which must prevail in the end.

This procedure would bring the Senate face to face with both the opposition of the House and the conference committee. The insurgents who have insisted on this socialistic subsidy for agriculture and this unworkable plan of adjusting tariff rates without a general revision would have to back down, or see the tariff bill defeated. Regardless of what procedure is taken the coalition is in a tight squeeze. It can escape on one side only by defeat of the flexible and debenture provisions, and on the other side by defeat of the whole tariff bill.

NATIONAL FILM LIBRARY.

A year or so ago a commercial newsreel company celebrated its twentieth anniversary. The occasion was made memorable by the exhibition all over the country of films made early in the company's history. These dusty reels, dug out of the vaults where they had been stored for ten, fifteen and twenty years, brought back vivid memories of days gone by. King George appeared in his coronation robes. William Howard Taft took the presidential oath. Troops crossed the Mexican border in the Villa punitive expedition, and marched away to a war in France. History was brought vividly home to those who saw these pictures.

Will Hays, movie czar, now announces that the industry, in cooperation with the Government, will establish a national newsreel library in which will be preserved for future generations the pictorial record of important national events. "By this means," says Mr. Hays, "the United States would take deserved leadership in the creation and development of the great library of the future. To the records of printed and written words which now comprise the pages of history would be added the living records of sound, movement and color, that would picture significant contemporary events to the coming generations with the vividness, realism and certitude of life. The pageant of history, of education, of national events and great local happenings would hereafter be recorded in the living tempo of the age and the time in which the events occurred."

The pictorial record of events that go to make up history will not displace the written record. It is not possible in pictures to analyze, to compare and to interpret. But the pictorial record will make history more graphic to the thousands to whom the written word does not convey a satisfactory mental picture, in addition to which it will prove invaluable to historians who, in the past, have had to depend upon the faulty impressions set down by eyewitnesses for their information as to what occurred at a given place. The pictorial records will make marked contribution to the accuracy of history. The Government quite properly assumes a share of the responsibility for preparing and preserving it.

RELIEF WITH ECONOMY.

In an effort to guide the Senate away from the excesses that characterize the House bill for the relief of World War veterans, Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, has presented to the Senate finance committee a bill drafted to meet the actual needs of veterans in distress. This measure would increase the expense of caring for disabled soldiers by not more than $25,000,000. In a liberal moment, inspired no doubt by the approach of election day, the House amended the Johnson bill in such a way that veterans' relief would cost from $200,000,000 to $500,000,000 annually more than is now spent for that purpose.

Gen. Hines would extend the date on which disability would be presumed to have been caused by war service to January 1, 1925, instead of January 1, 1930, as provided in the House bill. He opposes increased allowances for uncompensated veterans in hospitals on the ground that it would discriminate against veterans for whom no hospital facilities are available. No one is so familiar with the veterans' problems as Gen. Hines, and no one is so competent as he to advise Congress as to what new legislation is needed. His advice was disregarded in the House; it should not be so treated in the Senate.

In spite of the apathy in Congress on the question, Gen. Hines is still urging consolidation of all agencies dealing with veterans' relief and formulation of a definite policy for dealing with the Nation's defenders in both past and future wars. He has pointed out the economy of such a movement. But the House emasculated the Williamson bill designed to put this policy into effect, and voted to place another enormous drain on the Treasury. Economy was flouted, and new expenses were recklessly approved. Perhaps it is too much to expect the House to use common sense on a question of this kind while campaign guns are beginning to boom.

Congress should not be miserly with war veterans. The excessive appropriations entailed by the House bill, however, would react against the cause of the veterans. The Senate will be on safe ground in following the advice of Gen. Hines to extend relief where it is immediately needed and to eliminate inequalities of the present law. Let the emergencies be taken care of now, and when the new Congress assembles it will be better able to formulate a permanent policy without the haunting fear of losing patronage. The people are unanimous in demanding that veterans who suffered in defending their country be adequately cared for, but a disposition in Congress to ignore economy and add millions to the expense account will not meet with their approval.

AN INDUSTRIAL MUSEUM

By H. F. J. PORTER,
In the New York Times.

When Congress last year appropriated some $75,000,000 to restore the plan of L'Enfant in Washington and to make that city the most beautiful capital in the world, the plans involved running Ninth street across the Mall, cutting through the Arts and Industries Building of the National Museum, causing its demolition and utilizing its site.

This action will deprive the Nation of its only industrial museum until a new site and buildings are provided, and as the old building, constructed in 1882, has long been inadequate for its purposes, and many records and models of industrial progress have either been stored elsewhere or refused acceptance and in many instances destroyed, no time should be lost in replacing it with new buildings on a site ample in size for all future time and on a scale commensurate with the needs of the Nation.

As all the leading foreign countries have for many years possessed great national industrial museums, it seems incredible that this, the foremost of all the industrial nations of the world, should lag in having a place where it can demonstrate the accomplishments of its inventors, engineers and industrialists who have placed it where it stands.

In response to an appeal by the curator of the museum, a group of 100 leaders in science, engineering, industry and education promptly formed an organization to meet the situation. Realizing that a matter of such national importance should not be acted upon without careful consideration by authorities on the subject, and a study of existing museums, especially the great foreign institutions, it was decided to follow the plan adopted by Great Britain, which had appointed a royal commission to study other European museums and report what improvements should be made in theirs.

Accordingly, a bill was drafted by the legislative department of Columbia University and introduced in the Senate by Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, and in the House by Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican, "to establish a commission to be known as a commission on a national museum of engineering and industry," to make a survey of the situation and report its recommendations, and this was referred to the committee on education and labor in the Senate and to the committee on library in the House, which, not being organized at the time of the special session, had no other committee available. The commission would be appointed by President Hoover.

A site was assigned tentatively by the National Park and Planning Commission and approved by the National Arts Commission, subject to the conclusions to be reached by the commission on the museum.

It is at the extreme eastern end of East Capitol street, which is proposed to be changed to "The Street of States," and would balance the Lincoln Memorial at the extreme western end of the same street, which is already developed into the Mall. The central building between these two terminals is the Capitol itself.

Following the lines of recent museum development, it is contemplated that the institution will be educational in character, and, in order to be national in scope, it is to be so affiliated with museums in the various States that by means of inventions already perfected or to be developed, such as the radio, wireless telephones, motion pictures, television, &c., educational broadcasting will be carried to the youth and adult population of the most distant hamlet.

It was the intention of the group when the bill was introduced to have it acted upon so that work could be started in 1932, during the bicentennial of the birthday of George Washington, and the institution would act as a memorial to the first President, who was an engineer, and would be reinstituted by Herbert Hoover, the second engineer President.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

WHY THE NOTE WAS PROTESTED.

He cornered me upon the street
And held me by the coat,
And I was on my way to meet
A fast expiring note.
"I haven't seen you in a year!
How well you look!" cried he,
"I have some little pictures here
I've wanted you to see."

Then from his wallet brown he drew
Some prints of lustrous gloss,
And passed them out for me to view;
What mattered gain or loss
Or time or honor or renown
Or traffic's surging tide?
From all the business of the town
That man had turned aside.

"Here's mother with the little brood,"
He proudly said to me,
"And here's the baby at her food!
Now Jane, at half past three!
Here's Betty standing on her swing,
Next Tuesday she'll be nine!
I'll bet the children of a king
No lovelier are than mine!"

And I admitted they were fair
But still he held me fast
To speak in praise of Betty's hair.
The clock struck three at last,
And as I heard the final toll
That note of mine expired,
But he went home a happy soul.
His family I'd admired!

You Can't Attract Daring Men by Making the Game Easier.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

EVERYBODY is agreed that the Protestant churches of America are losing ground, and almost everybody agrees that the fault is in the churches.

"The church," says the critic, "must compete with the movies, golf, radio and automobiles, and it isn't entertaining enough to win. What is more, the people have changed and the church must be more liberal and tolerant and scientific to win their respect."

That explanation is accepted by many thousands of laymen, and the growing tendency to make the church a kind of sanctified vaudeville house seems to indicate that numbers of clergymen accept it.

That it isn't the true explanation is evidenced by the fact that many churches continue to lose support despite their frantic efforts to furnish entertainment, while the few that are overflowing at every service are dominated by men who dare to preach plain, unadulterated religion.

If the patient continues to sink in spite of a treatment agreed upon by the experts, it would seem the part of common sense to change the treatment instead of blaming the patient.

If the crowds still pass by, in spite of ecclesiastical vaudeville, why not conclude that the best method of attracting people is the method that got results in the time of our fathers?

The truth is, humanity hasn't changed. It still hungers for a religion that will lessen its hurts and solve its problems and give it peace.

It is eager to be taught, but it can find no teacher.

A few decades ago, when the pulpit dominated the community, the preached was revered because he stood head and shoulders above the people in the pews.

That superiority is essential, for people will not follow a leader no greater than themselves and a teacher must be wiser than his pupils.

It is no longer easy to find preachers who are superior to laymen, for the laymen have gone to school and the pulpit no longer offers a career to attract brilliant young men.

But the preacher who has no natural or educational superiority still can win a respectful hearing if he will offer men a religion that is real enough and vital enough to merit their respect.

Religion always thrives on persecution.

And it always loses when it demands nothing and tries to make the way easy.

The religion people hunger for is not a pat on the back or a cushioned seat on a free train to glory, but a man-size religion that demands much.

People will always covet a prize that is hard to win, and they will always respect a religion that makes them earn the peace they hunger for.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE MAHATMA'S ARREST.

Scene I.—The Gandhi bungalow at Surat. Gandhi is slumped dejectedly at a table. An aide sits opposite him, also looking very morose. There is a knock on the door.

Gandhi (wearily)—See who it is.

Aide (after looking out window)—The police!

Gandhi (hopefully)—Are you sure?

Aide—Certain.

Gandhi (leaping up and showing a complete change of manner)—Look again. I'm afraid you may be wrong.

(The police knock again.)

Gandhi—Who is it?

Police—The police.

Gandhi—No fooling?

Police—No fooling.

Gandhi (his eyes sparkling)—What do you want?

Police—We have come to arrest Mahatma Gandhi.

Gandhi (grabbing his aide and waltzing about the bungalow in extreme joy)—Di-dum-di-do-do-dee-dee-tee-tum-tum! Hooray! They're going to arrest me! Tee-tum-tah-tah-tah-tee-tum-tum-tah!

Police (impatiently)—Let us in.

Gandhi (leaping to the door and throwing it open)—Welcome! Have a seat. This is very splendid of you. You want me to go with you at once, I hope.

Sergeant—Oh, we're in no special hurry. If you want to shave or anything . . .

Gandhi (eagerly)—No, no! There's no need to delay a minute.

Sergeant (leisurely)—All right. Come along.

Gandhi (as an afterthought)—But your papers?

Sergeant—Papers?

Gandhi—I want proof, of course, that I am really being arrested and on some charge on which I can be held. How do I know that you're not just playing a joke on me? How do I know that I may not be released whenever the mood hits you?

Sergeant (producing papers)—Well, I must say you're mighty particular about this arrest.

Gandhi—If you'd had all the trouble I've had getting arrested you'd be particular. (As he looks over the papers) I see I'm being arrested, under Ordinance 25 of the year 1827! What ordinance is that?

Sergeant—I really don't know, sir.

Gandhi—I hope it's a good, valid ordinance in every way.

Sergeant—Maybe you'd like time to consult a lawyer?

Gandhi (almost in terror)—I should say not!

Sergeant—He might figure a way to get you out and——

Gandhi—That's just what the silly ass might do. Come! Arrest me now! I'll take a chance on the ordinance having plenty of teeth in it. What jail are you going to throw me into?

Sergeant—The Yerroda Jail, at Poona.

Gandhi—Good old Yerroda! A nice, dirty, uncomfortable, altogether horrible prison. Perfectly splendid of you. I couldn't think of a jail into which I'd rather be thrown. This is the first lucky break I've got in months. Come, lock me up before you change your mind!

(The police escort Gandhi out.) Gandhi dances down the road in front of them, singing the Indian version of "Happy Days."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Washington Our City as Well as Yours, Says Jersey Visitor Complaining Against Untidy Conditions Here.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The permanent residents of Washington are so familiar with its appearance that they do not realize, as do its visitors, how shabby and neglected are the public grounds and parks. Those who know the grounds of other well-kept cities are shocked by these untidy parks. The unmown grass is full of weeds, dandelions have gone to seed, papers are scattered everywhere, and there is a general air of neglect. Certainly our Government is rich enough to keep an adequate force of men at work making this city as beautiful as other cities that visitors know, and the unemployed sorely need the work.

Why are there so very few benches? Don't you want your people to enjoy their parks? There is also to the visitor an astonishing lack of flowers, even in the private gardens. The city is beautiful in its position and surroundings, but it could be made ten times more lovely by well-cared-for parks and public places.

Remember, that it is our city as well as yours. We want to be proud of it. NEW JERSEY VISITOR.

A Critic From Without the Doors Considers a Typically American Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the benefit of those grouchy Americans, prohibitionists, anti-prohibitionists, and others, who complain that their native land is on the road to perdition, it is, now and then, a good thing to take a look through the eyes of a thoughtful critic from the outside. Such a critic is Dr. Gustav A. Jaederholm, professor of philosophy and education at the University of Gottenburg, Sweden, member of the Conference on Mental Hygiene, who says:

"In Europe, parents keep their children under restraint until they are 20 or 21 years old. Consequently, when they reach these ages the youths revolt from control with many unhappy results.

"But in America the parents make companions of their children. They allow them to express themselves and to follow their desires. Consequently, there is no violent reaction with the passing of adolescence as there is in Europe."

The professor's conclusion furnishes food for thought, although maybe it is too sweeping at either extreme. That it is nearer the truth than that of our pessimistic compatriots is evidenced in the fact that for a decade or so our so-called flaming youth have been changing from adolescence to maturity without serious damage to the body politic.

Virginia Democrat Scores Radicals Who Voted Against Judge Parker in Order to Socialize the Judiciary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Radicalism's Brief Triumph," should be written in large letters, framed and hung in the offices of the 17 so-called Republicans and the 23 so-called Democrats, who joined the unholy alliance to cast their votes against the confirmation of Judge Parker, so that they may read it over and over in a calmer hour when the smoke and excitement thrown up as a screen by the radical members of that body have subsided.

While it may be to the political advantage of the minority party to oppose the majority on certain issues, it is certainly discreditable to it to join hands with the backward and reactionary forces led by such radicals as Senators Borah, Norris and others in an attack upon the independence of the judiciary. It can be nothing else, and no person in this country, regardless of his or her political affiliation, who is capable of thinking for him or herself, will allow any of these radicals to becloud the real issue so as to make it appear otherwise.

I am glad that the two senators from my State of Virginia had the courage to vote against this insidious effort to bring about a judicial disintegration by the radicals, who are bent on formulating the policy of the Supreme Court to conform to their socialistic views.

A DEMOCRAT.

In Speeding Up Traffic "Safety First" Must Not Be Forgotten or Accidents Will Result.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While we study the speeding up of traffic, the problem of traffic safety should not be neglected. After all, it may be that we are unscientific, attempting to extend the usefulness of the automobile beyond its present limit. The practical way to increase that limit is to straighten streets and widen driveways; provide overhead or underground thoroughfares, or both. While waiting for this costly provision traffic conditions will be improved only to a negligible degree in any attempt to make greater vehicular speed in streets jammed as they already are.

If this attempt is made without keeping the once familiar slogan, "Safety first," in mind, it will be dangerous. Accidents will result if, in speeding up traffic, we lose sight of the large percentage of drivers who are not gifted with high-speed emergency expertness. J. B. L.

Let Precinct Captains Sit in Judgment on Their Men Who Violate Minor Regulations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maj. Pratt, chief of police, shows his usual good judgment in recommending that precinct captains be given power to try policemen for minor violations of the police code. This would relieve the police trial board of an unnecessary burden and expedite its more important hearings. But the important consideration is that a competent precinct captain in sympathetic touch with his men should be able to give fair and satisfactory consideration in each particular case, with the most beneficial result in regard to the morale of the force.

LEAGUE ACTS TO AID STATES HIT BY WAR

Committee Adopts Treaty to Make Loans Available to Menaced Nations.

ARMS CONCLAVE NOV. 3

Geneva, Switzerland, May 8 (A.P.).—A draft treaty for financial assistance for a state menaced or attacked by another state was adopted today by the League of Nations committee on arbitration and security.

This instrument, embodying a further effort to discourage war, will be presented at the next assembly and then to the individual governments. The proposed treaty provides for loans to a victim country, to be guaranteed by the other states which are parties to the treaty. The league council will decide when this economic aid is to be given. The treaty's coming into force is made eral disarmament convention. disarmament convention.

The formula adopted does not mention the Kellogg pact, this meeting the objection of Uruguay and other nonsignatories to this agreement. Despite Turkey's expressed wish to open the treaty to nonmembers of the league, it was decided technical reasons made it best to confine the treaty to league members.

Session in November.

A resolution also was adopted advising the assembly as to what measures should be taken for facilitating the use of air craft by the league in times of emergency. This resolution did not decide the question whether the league should possess its own airplanes.

During the day announcement was made by the secretariat that the next meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission should be called for November 3.

Decision not to hasten the league's disarmament negotiations immediately on the heels of the London conference was made after a visit of Chairman Loudon to Geneva and a canvass of sentiment of the countries on the commission.

M. Loudon said he considered that a meeting of the commission during this summer "would encounter serious and material difficulties," which might prove detrimental to the commission's work.

Early Meeting Opposed.

At Geneva Loudon also conferred with Hugh R. Wilson, the American Minister, who indicated that the United States favored postponement of the meeting until autumn.

In authoritative Geneva circles it was felt that no good purpose would be served by hastening the session. It was pointed out that France and Italy would require time for their promised negotiations in the effort to solve the problem of their conflicting positions upon naval strength.

The delegates, who had labored long and energetically at London, it was said, need rest and relaxation for their strained nerves.

The Germans and others who were defeated in the World War and disarmed by the peace treaties were the only members of the commissions strongly urging early holding of the meetings of the league's disarmament commission.

Changes Are Made In Fox Executives

General Manager Named by H. L. Clarke, Head of Organization.

Two appointments affecting the management of the Washington Fox Theater were announced yesterday by Harley L. Clarke, president of both the Fox Film Corporation and the Fox Theaters Corporation. Oscar S. Oldknow will become executive vice president of the theaters corporation and Harry Arthur will be the new general manager.

Under the new plan, all Fox theaters except those known as the Fox West Coast Theaters will be under the management of these two men. Mr. Oldknow, was vice president of the National Theaters Supply Co., while Mr. Arthur was formerly division manager of the Fox West Coast Theaters.

The 600 Fox theaters under the new management include the first-run de luxe houses here and in Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Detroit, together with the Fox-Poli Circuit, in New England; the Fox Midwesco Theaters, in Wisconsin and Illinois, and the Fox Metropolitan Play House, Inc., in New York and New Jersey.

Pacific Mark Set By Japanese Liner

Van Lear Black Aboard as New Vessel Clips 14 Minutes Off Record.

San Francisco, May 8. (A.P.)—With Van Lear Black, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, as a passenger, the new Japanese mail liner Tatsuta Maru slipped through the Golden Gate today to complete her maiden voyage from Yokohama in the record-breaking transpacific time of 296 hours and 53 minutes.

This was 14 minutes better than themark set three weeks ago by her sister ship, the Chichibu Maru. Terrific head winds between Honolulu and the mainland prevented Captain Shunji Ito from setting a better mark.

While the liner struggled in the strong tide in quarantine off Alcatraz Island, a floating derrick drew alongside and removed Black's trimotored monoplane. As soon as the ship can be assembled the publisher, who has journeyed up and down the world by air for the greater part of the last three years, will take off for Baltimore.

$2,423,240 more than was appropriated in the 1930 bill.

The principal Senate change, aside from boosting the Federal contribution from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000, is a slash of $2,000,000 in the municipal center appropriation. This leaves but $1,000,000 for the acquisition of property in the municipal center area.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

CONSIDER the sad case of the spick-and-span Grover A. Whalen, police commissioner of the City of New York—which is to say, think how perilous are the paths of politics!

Weeks ago newspapers of the metropolis boldly asserted that Mayor Walker, after prevailing upon his old friend Grover to forsake a business career and take charge of the city's finest, was about to put under the commissioner the well-greased skids, which would slide him back into the calm and contentment of private life.

It was explained that Mr. Whalen, to whom the mayor had been attracted because of his self-pressagenting abilities, had overdone the thing; he was getting more publicity, and getting it oftener and in bigger headlines and in more newspapers, than the dramatic Mr. Walker himself, who, as a publicity getter, has a little something on Julius Caesar, Napoleon and Theodore Roosevelt.

• • • •

THE idea was around and about, said the observers, that Grover, inspired by his fast growing prominence, might up and run for something, thereby throwing a wrench into the machinery of certain political careers whose wheels are now smoothly oiled by Tammany Hall.

So, they said, in a few weeks Mr. Whalen, New York's most celebrated host and hand-shaker to visiting celebrities, would let it be known that he had to go back to Mr. Wanamaker's mercantile establishment; that thereupon the city's biggest politicians and business men would "throw a party" for him; and that, in the midst of the festivities, the mayor, the ebullient "Jimmy," would show to the banqueteers his heart all bleeding at the thought of losing Grover's services.

And lo and behold!—last Tuesday evening a multitudinous and billionairish assembly 2,300 strong gave a banquet in one of New York's swellest hosteiries to laud Grover's achievements as commissioner and to bemoan the fact that he felt obliged to quit, cease and abstain from further achieving.

• • • •

IT WAS a merry occasion, although not a few must have perceived the banquet board's strange resemblance to a marble slab in the political morgue and must have realized that through the paeans of praise ran an undertone strikingly suggestive of a funeral march.

These things, however, were doubtless regarded as merely quaint old political customs. The main point was that the mayor, by shaking the hand-shaker, was rid of a subordinate who was too good as a publicity getter; and that, as a potential candidate for anything, the impeccably attired Mr. Whalen was several degrees deader than a dead herring.

All of which indicates, as a senator yesterday remarked, that the true art of politics consists of not beating the drum until you can beat your boss.

HOOVER PLANS FISHING TRIP; LIBERALS SUGGEST CARDOZA

generally accepted, and while not sound, probably reflects the stand the administration intends to take.

Amazing as it may seem, a minute analysis of the vote yesterday discloses that organized labor can lay claim to bringing up one net vote against Judge Parker and the Association for the Advancement of the Colored People probably not a single one, but maybe one.

Eight regular Republicans voted or were recorded against confirmation. Six of them, Senators Capper, Deneen, Robinson, Robsion, Vandenberg and Glenn were influenced by the Negro opposition. Offsetting them were Senators Smith, Blease, Harrison, Stephens, Glass, all Southern Democrats, who went over to Judge Parker's side, three of them for the sole reason that the Negroes were fighting him, and the others are believed to have been largely influenced by this, or rather, it was the determining factor. All of them except Senator Harrison voted against Chief Justice Hughes.

The Negro opposition undoubtedly bolstered up the opposition of Senators Wagner and Copeland to Judge Parker, but there is every reason to believe they would have voted against him had this issued not been present.

Senators McNary and Steiwer were influenced by the labor opposition. On the other hand, Senator Norbeck, of South Dakota, who always votes with the Progressives, was recorded for Judge Parker because he has no use for organized labor. That leaves a net vote of one.

The point is that this one vote is all that the American Federation of Labor's agitation, or the manufactured clamor, as Senator Fess called it, brought in. Undoubtedly, if Judge Parker had been a stronger candidate Senators McNary and Steiwer would have taken a risk for him, and this applies also to Senator Capper and others with whom the determining factor was the Negro opposition.

The group which formed the backbone of the fight against Judge Parker, the group led by Senators Borah and Norris, is not led by the labor federation. The federation, indeed, has at times knifed it in the back when it was carrying what it considered to be the laboring man's fight. This was particularly true in the tariff fight.

This group would have made its fight had not the federation said a word. Its bare nucleus is the 32 votes that were recorded or paired against Chief Justice Hughes. Inasmuch as the labor federation and Negro association contributed no more than two votes to this cause, the question arises as to where the remaining fifteen votes recorded against Judge Parker came from. The answer is that there is that much difference in the Democratic ranks in the standing of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Parker.

With Judge Parker's defeat the South has only one member of the court, Justice McReynolds, and he was one of those New York Southerners when appointed. The East has four—Justices Brandeis, Stone, Holmes and Hughes, and the West three—Justices Butler, Sutherland and Van Devanter.

FUND FOR MOSQUITO CONTROL DRAWS SENATE ATTENTION

from one appropriation bill to another, the $60,000 mosquito item yesterday landed in the Senate, and was promptly swatted.

When the item, now an amendment in the District of Columbia appropriation bill, was reached yesterday, Senator George Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, leaped to his feet and objected, and he was joined a few minutes later by Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

The day before the two men had been on opposite sides of a question, Senator Norris voting against Judge Parker and Senator Glass voting for him. But now they stood shoulder to shoulder.

"I have lived in a hotel on Pennsylvania avenue facing the mall for 20 years," shouted Senator Glass, "and I have yet to see a mosquito, feel one or be bitten by one."

The Virginian said that the $60,000 item for the mosquito war was the "most indefensible" provision ever carried in an appropriation bill, and he then quoted from the hearing to show that it was.

When it was sought to place the item in the urgent deficiency bill, Senator Glass said, Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, wanted to know whether it was actually in the interest of the public health or simply in the interest of "bald-headed people who want to sit on their porches at night."

Health Officer Fowler, the Virginia senator said, testified that there was nothing to show that mosquitoes had caused an increase in sickness here.

Col. Grant said at the hearings that mosquitoes had caused a great deal of trouble here two years ago. They became so thick, he declared, that they drove people out of the parks. Finally, he said, they began breeding in the water buckets on the golf course.

Plans now are afoot, Col. Grant reminded the committee, to erect a memorial here to Gen. Gorgas, the man who drove the mosquito out of Panama, and thereby stamping out yellow fever and making the canal possible. And yet, he said, "we are not carrying out in the National Capital the things for which Gen. Gorgas was famous."

When Senator Norris challenged the $60,000 item yesterday, he wanted to know how it was to be used. He noticed, he said, that part of the sum was to go for automobiles.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, who had the bill in charge, explained that there were 9,000 manholes in Washington, and that it was in these that the mosquitoes lived and multiplied. The automobiles, he said, would be used by men who would visit the manholes and sprinkle them with oil.

It was while Senator Norris was suggesting that screens be used in the manholes that Senator Glass broke in. He, in turn, was halted by the gavel. It had been agreed to adjourn at 4:30 o'clock.

Senator Glass had planned to leave the city tomorrow, but he changed his mind.

"Very well," he said, "I'll stay over and attend to the mosquitoes tomorrow."

MARYLAND TOWNS INAUGURATE TRAFFIC ROBOT THAT THINKS

Crosby, police commissioner of the District; Traffic Director William H. Harland, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, Washington chief of police; Inspector E. W. Brown, of the Washington Traffic Bureau, and other District officials and civic leaders. While the lights are in Maryland, marking the termini of the new East-West highway between Silver Spring and Bethesda, the unique features of the demonstration are believed to have made a deep impression on the District officials, faced as they are with the problem of providing adequate light control for several important circles in Washington.

The switch which started the mechanical "brain" to work was thrown by County Commissioner Lacy Shaw, acting president of the board of county commissioners of Montgomery County and in charge of the Silver Spring suburban area.

The party first viewed the system at Bethesda, where the most complicated street intersection in the county is controlled by the new lights. At this corner, or series of corners, Wisconsin avenue, the Old Georgetown road, Edgemoor lane, the Rockville road and the new East-West highway join in a peculiar formation.

The lights are so arranged that traffic on the Rockville road and Wisconsin avenue moves simultaneously, with the traffic on the other streets halted. The lights then change so that the other streets have the right of way and the first two are halted. The third phase is the stopping off vehicular traffic while the street cars pass across all the intersections. A fourth phase becomes effective when traffic on Wisconsin avenue and Rockville pike becomes too heavy for simultaneous passage because of left and right turns, and these are given separate rights of way during the heavy traffic period. This last phase has not been made automatic as yet, the engineers of the Automatic Signal Corporation of New Haven, Conn., who installed the robot controlled systems, not having completed the count which will determine the correct proportions to be worked out. Eventually, the lights will go into the fourth phase automatically when traffic becomes heavy.

The robot registers the arrival of each car as it passes over the detector strip and gives the right of way in as nearly consecutive order as traffic conditions permit. The arrival of street cars also is noted and if the street cars do not enter the intersection the lights do not waste time giving a street car right of way but continue with the vehicles.

Among the others who viewed the demonstration were G. P. Mangan, sales manager of the Potomac Electric Power Co.; H. A. Brooks, commercial manager of the power company; C. A. S. Sinclair, city engineer for the Washington Railway and Electric Co.; John J. Miller, president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce; J. Roland Bibbins, consulting engineer; Dr. J. F. Morris, of the Bethesda chamber; A. G. Seiler, District traffic engineer; George E. Kenelpp, manager of the American Automobile Association; E. D. Merrill, president and general manager of the Washington Rapid Transit Co.; C. W. Beall, International Harvester Co.; John Hunter, Silver Spring automobile dealer; J. H. Stephens, superintendent of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.; O. V. Kean, director of the signal corporation, and J. A. Anthony and E. R. Peterson, sales department of the signal corporation, who sold the robots to the county.

$936,000,000 URGED FOR NEW NAVY SHIPS

Britten Declares Sum Needed for Parity With British Under London Pact.

TO PRESENT BILL TODAY

(Associated Press.)

Making public a $936,995,000 warship-construction program which he holds necessary to attain parity with the British under the London naval treaty, Chairman Britten, of the House naval committee, yesterday said no treaty at all would be better than one which resulted in enormous expenditures for American ships of British preference.

Mr. Britten plans to introduce a bill today based upon figures furnished him by Secretary Adams, which, he said, would authorize the President to undertake before July 1, 1936, "the construction of cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aircraft carriers in accordance with the terms of the London naval conference."

In a statement, the Illinois member said that he would ask Secretary Adams for his recommendation on the buildnig program.

"Exhaustive hearings will be held in order to determine," Mr. Britten said, "if the expenditure of a billion dollars in the next eight years will properly provide for national defense in an emergency."

The bill would authorize 73,500 tons of light 6-inch gun cruisers at a cost of $132,300,000; 55,500 tons in destroyers, to cost $150,000,000; 42,100 tons in submarines, to cost $122,000,000, and 69,000 tons in aircraft carriers, to cost $95,000,000.

"In addition to the $497,800,000 required for new construction as yet unauthorized," Mr. Britten said, "there must be expended for naval vessels and aviation already authorized during the next eight years, the sum of $439,195,000, or a grand total of approximately $936,995,000 before we can achieve even a theoretical parity on the seas with Great Britain."

"It is my intention to call many of the highest ranking officers in the Navy for their personal views on the wisdom of constructing a lot of light cruisers heretofore held undesirable for American use.

"It is my belief that no treaty at all would be better than an agreement which imposes enormous expenditures for American ships of British preference."

Mr. Britten said the hearings would begin shortly after Secretary Adams submits his recommendations so that the people of the country and the Senate would have the information as to the naval needs when the treaty is being considered.

The bill would give the President authority to suspend all or any part of the program in event the United States is a signatory to another agreement for further limitation of naval armament.

Howell Measure Action Is Sought

Capper Calls Committee for Vote on Bill Today.

Chairman Capper, of the Senate District committee, will make another attempt to have his committee vote on the Howell prohibition enforcement bill today. He has called a meeting for 2 o'clock.

The committee also will be asked to consider the bill providing for a Federal loan of $15,000,000 to finance the municipal project and the resolution authorizing a street car merger here.

The House District committee voted to delay action on the merger resolution yesterday, and then rescinded its action when it was charged that a quorum was lacking.

STATE RESTS CASE IN TRIAL OF KOHLER

Attorneys of Millionaire Governor Wage War on Campaign Data.

OFFICIAL GOES ON STAND

Sheboygan, Wis., May 8. (A.P.)—The State completed its testimony today against Walter J. Kohler, Wisconsin's millionaire governor, accused of excessive campaign expenditures, and attorneys began arguments over admissibility of evidence as the court session closed.

One of the last State witnesses denied the contention of prosecutors that the Wisconsin executive used the State Republican committee in his 1928 primary campaign as an "agent" for the expenditure of money in excess of $4,000, the amount allowed under the State corrupt practices act.

R. O. Wipperman, committee secretary, asserted that its campaign was "entirely distinct and separate" from the Kohler personal campaign. He testified further that Gov. Kohler never contributed a cent to the committee and that the committee never raised a cent for him.

After he and another witness had been briefly examined, prosecutors for the Progressive Republican complainants, who started the ouster suit, began an argument over the admissibility of some 350 exhibits, mostly ledgers and vouchers, from the chief executive's manufacturing plant at Kohler, Wis., near here.

The governor made his third appearance on the stand during the day to identify and explain testimony taken in a John Doe or closed hearing at Madison last fall. This hearing involved his campaign expenditures in Dane County, of which Madison is the seat. The presiding judge, S. B. Schein, found that the millionaire manufacturer had not violated the law there.

Gov. Kohler said: "If I had been home, I would have stopped some of the things going on there; but not being there, I could not." He referred to activities of his employes at the Kohler factory during the campaign. Most of the time, he explained, he was away from the "model village" of Kohler, making speeches.

NAVAL TREATY HIT IN HOUSE OF LORDS

Tories Say Provisions Will Not Give Great Britain Protection Needed.

READING DEFENDS PACT

London, May 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The London naval treaty was attacked in the House of Lords this afternoon by several Tory leaders, led by Lord Bridgeman, who was first lord of the admiralty in the previous Conservative government and who headed the British delegation at the abortive three-power naval conference at Geneva in 1927.

In a rather half-hearted criticism of the Treaty of London, Viscount Bridgeman reproached the government for not having obtained an agreement reducing the size of future battleship replacements, but his principal attack was on the Labor government's acceptance of a 50-cruiser program, as compared with the 70 cruisers demanded by him at Geneva. He alleged that the British naval experts opposed this reduction and challenged the government to tell the facts on that point.

Escalator Clause Attacked.

Regarding the escalator clause in the London treaty, Mr. Bridgeman said that it placed Great Britain in the invidious position of possibly having to suggest upward revision of the treaty figures since, while the United States had to concern herself with the Atlantic and the Pacific and Japan only with the Pacific, Great Britain had to think also about the Mediterranean and therefore about the French and Italian building programs.

Discussing the question of Anglo-American parity, the viscount said:

"I would far prefer to see America not only having parity, but anything she wants above it, provided we get the minimum we think necessary for our security."

The former first lord complained that while Great Britain was reducing her naval strength, other nations were maintaining or increasing theirs. He was supported by Lord Carson, who was first lord of the admiralty for a time during the World War, and by Lord Jellicoe, who commanded the British Grand Fleet until after the Battle of Jutland.

Treaty Hit by Jellicoe.

Both Jellicoe and Carson attacked the treaty, particularly the 50-cruiser program, on the basis of their war experiences, maintaining that British naval strength under the treaty is insufficient to insure British food supplies and to protect British trade routes in time of war.

The Tory spokesmen stressed the necessity for large and regular yearly British replacement programs in destroyers, submarines and 6-inch-gun cruisers if the British fleet is to be brought up to treaty strength by the end of 1936, and demanded that the government announce its plans in that respect.

Lord Reading, speaking on behalf of the Liberals, supported the treaty on the ground that conditions had changed since the war, with the German fleet destroyed and with the Kellogg Pact signed.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Visit Being Enjoyed By Miss Poole

British Social Worker in Washington on Tour of Many Lands.

By JEAN ELIOT.

AT the Washington Club, pleasant—if somewhat staid—rendezvous for the Capital's "cave dwellers," Miss Molly Poole must find piquant contrast to her recent surroundings. For she has been touring the United States for six months, "inspecting everything from the palaces to the prisons;" and before that, in the course of a trip around the world, she penetrated into the heart of Mongolia. Just now she is spending a few days at the club and enjoying glimpses of Washington in its springtime dress.

Miss Poole is an Englishwoman, a grand niece of John Stuart Mill. She is the only white woman ever received by the "living Buddha of Thibet," the Panchen Lama. She had many other thrilling experiences in Mongolia, perhaps the most exciting being her trip across the Gobi Desert in a Ford with a Norwegian missionary, a Swedish professor and a Mongol guard.

Since her arrival in this country Miss Poole has toured the West Coast and spent some time in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, studying social conditions.

Back home, Miss Poole belongs to the Young Conservatives, a political group which has succeeded in putting two of its members into the House of Commons. This group works among the people of the slums, organizing boys' and girls' clubs and training young men and women who are fitted to slip nonchalantly and successfully over the line into professional politics.

While on her long trip Miss Poole has been writing a series of articles for the London Daily Express and she has also given lectures in this country on her experiences in Mongolia.

Mrs. Ralph H. Barnaby entertained at luncheon today at her residence, 2803 Twenty-eighth street, in compliment to Mrs. Lloyd Harrison, who will leave Washington shortly, with Lieut. Harrison, for duty in Philadelphia. Most of the guests were wives of naval officers on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics, with which Lieut. Barnaby and Lieut. Harrison, who are both in the Construction Corps, are serving.

The company included Mrs. William E. Moffett, Mrs. George Rock, Mrs. William Sellers, sr., Mrs. William Sellers, jr., Mrs. Alfred Williams, Mrs. Ralph Davis, Mrs. Roswell Daggett, Mrs. Walter Webster, Mrs. Garland Holton, Mrs. Lawrence Haugen, Mrs. Reginald Meade, Mrs. Halbert Payne, Mrs. Ralph Morrison, Mrs. O'Connell, Mrs. Samuel Ziegler, Mrs. R. D. McCart, Miss Betty Powell, Miss Mary Bradley and Miss Barie Williams.

Mexican Ambassador Reviews Regiment.

The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Tellez attended a dinner given last evening at Mayfair House in New York by Col. Ralph C. Tobin, commandant of the 107th Infantry Regiment, and Mrs. Tobin. Later the ambassador reviewed the regiment. Senor and Senora de Campoz-Ortis and Col. and Senora de Aguilar, of the embassy staff, were also present.

The party will return to town tonight, except for Col. Aguilar, military attache of the embassy, who will go to West Point on the first lap of a tour of inspection of military schools.

It was she who conducted successfully several balls for the benefit of the policemen and firemen's relief fund; and when she organized the great Inaugural Charity Ball on March 4, proceeds from which went to the Community Chest, it was on the understanding that a good round sum should go to the policemen and firemen.

The linen for the room has been presented by the Women's Auxiliary of the Fire Department of the District.

The hunt teams are scheduled for the last event on the afternoon card.

As a feature of the morning show, which starts at 10 o'clock, the committee has arranged for a lead-in class for small children. Mounted on their ponies they will be led around the ring and up to the judges' stand. Entries in this class are Frau von Prittwitz, wife of the German Ambassador, who will lead in her small daughter, Marisa, just learning to ride; Mr. Floyd Waggaman with his small daughter, Jean; Mrs. Demarest Lloyd with her youngest daughter, Karen, and Mrs. Joseph H. Himes with her 3-year-old daughter, Katrina. HIGH LIGHTS OF GREAT WORLD WAR

As Related by the Veterans Themselves

Here's Appreciation

A cold, gray dawn in Alsace-Lorraine on March 1, 1918, brought a sudden thundering barrage of shells, followed by a surprise attack from the enemy. Well trained, but untried and inexperienced, we crouched in our trench and watched wave after wave of gray-clad enemy troops surge toward us like the billows of an angry sea. With nearly one-third of our men out of action as a result of that short but terrific bombardment, outnumbered by more than 20-to 1, our prospects were not so cheerful. But we worked the bolts of our Springfield 30-30s as rapidly and steadily as we could until some one conceived the brilliant idea of touching off a signal rocket to our own artillery. Hardly had the rocket burst when our artillery responded with a deluge of shrieking, whining shells—the sweetest music in the world to a front-line Yank, are the tunes played by his own 75s.

The enemy ranks were literally blown to bits by the murderous storm of exploding shells and they broke ranks and dashed back toward their own trenches only to find they were cut off by a barrage of those same nasty little 75s put down by our own Sixth Field Artillery. Their one and only hope lay in taking our trenches, so they charged us. Thanks to our Artillery, the odds were now more even and we met them on the top with "cold steel." A few minutes of serious hand-to-hand fighting and the surprise attack was turned into failure—for the enemy.

From that day on our Artillery ranked ace-high with us and even the old "war horse," Sergt. Pat showed his appreciation by passing around a couple of slabs of "chawin'" to those "dog-goned gun-waddies." He returned from his Santa Claus expedition, shaking his head and muttering, "and to think I always thought those guys were only good for recruiting posters."

SERGT. JOE THACKER.
Eighteenth Infantry, First Division.

Real Exasperating

A German patrol had been working up and down in front of our line of trenches for several hours trying to find a place to penetrate to the rear. The first sergeant had been moving backward and forward following this patrol in hopes that it would come near enough to the trench for some real activity. He was quite worked up, and as orders were very strict about starting anything in a quiet sector until absolutely sure, he was growing more and more impatient because the "Heinies" would not get closer to the trench.

As the sky began to lighten up in the East, the German patrol was directly in front of a machine gun emplacement, and had taken cover in shell holes. With the coming of the day the sergeant knew that the patrol would withdraw, and his chances for an encounter would be over. Not to be outdone, and before any one realized what he was doing, he caught up a half-dozen or so of hand grenades, leaped over the parapet of the trench and began running toward the Germans' place of concealment. His first grenade was thrown shortly after leaping out of the trench. The Germans, perhaps thinking that a detachment had been sent after them, rose and beat a hasty retreat. The machine guns could not be brought to bear on the enemy because of the sergeant, and all he accomplished was a very hurried departure of the enemy patrol. It was, however, somewhat of an unusual sight to see a lone American soldier, with a few grenades, tearing over "no-man's land" after an enemy patrol in the early dawn.

No "Dial" System

In the Argonne, during the latter part of October, 1918, a German box barrage was raising havoc with our wire communications, the concussion of shells continually breaking our insulated wires running along the Cuenel road to a rock quarry where we had a very important phone station. Two men were always sent out to repair breaks, so that if one was hit the other could report in for a detail to bring in the injured man. Time and again a couple of men would go out to repair breaks and report back that on account of the barrage it was impossible to go any farther. Then Col. Morrow phoned to report Maj. Ditto lost and supposed to be in the neighborhood of the quarry, he ordered our detail to get in touch with the quarry immediately and I happened to be on the detail that was sent out. There were three of us and we crouched behind an embankment to see how the barrage was being laid. We noticed that only every third salvo would hit the road, and after one had landed we crossed and cut in on our wire for a test. Hearing nothing from either station we repaired one break and received an O. K. from our station.

We then crawled through the mud on our hands and knees, groping in the dark for our wire. Suddenly, I butted into a horse lying on his back across our wires and never will I forget the animal's groan—it had lost both hind legs. Another horse beside it was dead, but the driver, if he had been hit, had evidently been picked up by a stretcher detail.

Cutting in on the wire again just beyond the horses we succeeded in restoring communication to the quarry and also found that Maj. Ditto was O. K. Just another night in a Signal Corps man's life at the front.

H. C. MILLER.
Company C, Fifth Field Signal Battalion.

Hail the 42d

We arrived on the Champagne front in time to participate in the defeat of the German drive of July 15, 1918, and our hospital, the 165th District of Columbia, was located a short distance behind the front line.

The German artillery barrage began at 12:10 a. m., July 15, and at that hour the high explosive shells commenced to whistle over the hospital and burst with a terrific explosion a little beyond. As it was dark we thought they were misplaced shots and would be deflected from the vicinity of the hospital at daybreak. Our assumption was absolutely wrong, however, as the Boche took our range at daybreak and soon demolished eleven surgical wards and barracks, killing four patients and seriously wounding others.

We worked unceasingly without food or rest for 19 hours under continuous shell-fire, yet fortunately not a man of our own personnel was wounded, though some were knocked out by the concussion of bursting shells. French officers told me that it was the most terrific shelling experienced by them since the war started.

Though holding the line where the assault was most formidable, our division, the 42d, Rainbow Division, did not give an inch to Heinie's much heralded Prussian Guards. I was afterward told that the known casualties of the opposing Germans amounted to 50,000 in two days—and in so far as I know they may be still counting them.

Following the Champagne-Marne offensive the Rainbow Division participated conspicuously in the Chateau Thierry (Aisne-Marne), St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne battles, and was part of the Army of Occupation in Germany.

THOMAS R. J. CAVANAUGH,
165th F. H., 117 Sanitary Train.

Prayers Answered

We left Hoboken for France the first week of June, 1918, aboard the transport Mongolia and along with our regiment there was infantry, artillery, machine gun outfits and also a regiment or two of colored. I don't remember what branch of the service they were in but it was evident that they didn't appreciate the sea voyage.

We ran into some bad weather and most of the colored boys were sick. To add to their misery we had daily submarine drills, and were forced to stand in formation for as much as an hour at a time, as no one ever knew whether the alarm was real or false.

Finally, on the thirteenth day we spied land a long distance away to the east—the cliffs of the French mainland. To me they looked like huge haystacks as we approached them in the gathering gloom. We were all joyfully looking at the sight when one of the colored boys brushed by me with his eyes glued on the distant shore.

I believe he best expressed the feelings of all of us when in a loud and excited voice he suddenly shouted: "Look yonder thar, boys. See what the good Lawd done sent to me!"

Just as Well

Four Marines were playing Five Hundred in a dugout close up front. First sea soldier bid 200. Second one raised it to 300. Third leatherneck, thumbing his cards a while, made it 400. Zingo! A shell hit the dugout and all the boys picked up of the 400 bidder was his hand of cards, a belt buckle and a gold tooth. One of the remaining Marines picked up the hand of cards and cracked, "It's tough to see Bennie check out like that, but he wouldn't have made that bid anyway.

Blow Him Down

Just after Soissons and back at a rest billet one of our musicians lined up for sick call. "What's wrong with you?" asked the doctor. "Sir," replied our prize gold bricker, "See how my lips are all puffed up. I'm a member of the band and I can't play with lips like that." He made the sick list for one day. He was back with the band the next morning, the medico having discovered that our hero was a bass drummer.

SUMMERING YOUR HOUSE PLANTS.

MANY persons who can raise the most beautiful plants during the winter months haven't slightest idea what to do with them during the summer months.

They usually do one or two things: "Plunge them," which means that they sink the pot with the plant in it up to its rim in the ground, or turn them out of their pots and plant them in the open border. After that—well, they think that until September 15 the plants can take care of themselves—which is a mistake.

If you expect to enjoy your plants and have other than indifferent specimens in the fall and winter, you must give them attention throughout the summer. Of course, a plant in the open, if left alone, will develop growth, and usually fine growth; but when fall comes and it becomes necessary to lift it, think what happens. While the plant in the radiant summer sunshine has been sending forth most glorious top growth, it has also been developing long slender roots which have followed their own inclinations and wandered far into the mellow soil.

When you lift the plant to pot it, a large share of these roots will have to be cut off in order to make the root fill the pot; and when the young working roots are thus removed it will be necessary to sacrifice a proportionate amount of the top. All of which seriously checks the future development of the plant. In fact, it takes months for it to recover from the shock. This shock takes place at a time when the plant needs every ounce of energy at its command, for the period of removal to the house is always a trying one to any plant, because of the change in its environment; in the open border it had fresh air 24 hours a day, and in the house it may have it only 1.

Plunged plants almost always suffer from lack of moisture at their roots. The soil about the pots seems moist and you are apt to be misled and get the impression that the soil within them is in the same condition. Therefore be sure they receive a thorough soaking when you water.

Plants summered in this way, however, seldom require much replanting when fall comes. Frequently you can remove a portion of the soil and replace it with fresh soil, which acts as a tonic to the plant and enables it to stand the trying change of being brought into the house.

Plants intended for winter flowering should be induced to rest as much as possible during the warm months. Never give any stimulation to a plant that does not show signs of growth. You see while the plant is resting it should not be overfed—early fall is quite time enough to apply a fertilizer.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, May 8.

A COUTURIER is an artist who doesn't stay awake nights thinking only of dresses and maybe a neat slip to wear under them and a coat to put over them. He ponders and puckers his brow and then scribbles a few miles of lines on a piece of paper. In a day or two or three you enter his shop and you see some new and interesting trinket or whimsy in the manner of one—for instance, one of Premet's evening gown accessories. A rhinestone lipstick holder fastening the belt of a gown—and who cares if a lady slips in some secret corner and replenishes the ruby of her lips that, sh-h-h-h-, may have been kissed away in some other secret corner?

• • • •

A vestee used to have a way of skirmishing around and flip, flopping and making itself generally a nuisance! But there is a way of fooling the misbehaving vestee into knowing its place and keeping it. It can be sewed to the neck of the jacket of a suit, and in matching material is so effective.

And know ye that the smartest vestees in the world are finished with an edging of metal clamps, instead of a binding? That's a Poiret idea!

• • • •

It takes two to make a fight . . . or what's more important, to make a Dahray spring hat! You and your stamped, self-addressed envelope, sent to the Dare Department of the Washington Post and me and my illustrated leaflet. Together we can produce the most adorable, sheer dinner and dance hats, of horsehair braid and feathers and flowers 'n things, or a cute trick of knitted string for sports wear. If you're not all fixed up for spring millinery . . . and I'll bet you any money your not . . . you can plainly see that the thing to do is to send that envelope!

• • • •

Blanche Lebouvier and Mary Nowitsky are the bane of our pen and ink existence! For Mary Nowitsky in bathing suits and pajamas, and Blanche Lebouvier in evening dresses make such breathlessly lovely things that depend so much upon color to be striking that we always feel as though we fall flat in interpreting them to you in black and white.

The deep salmon pink faille gown of Blanche Lebouvier's that I illustrated for you today is, for instance, an example. Simple and elegant, with matching tulle at the neck and hand, the addition of a string of deep purple beads and a purple bracelet made one of most outstanding models of the season. So I have sketched it for you and you will just have to do your own color imagining!

• • • •

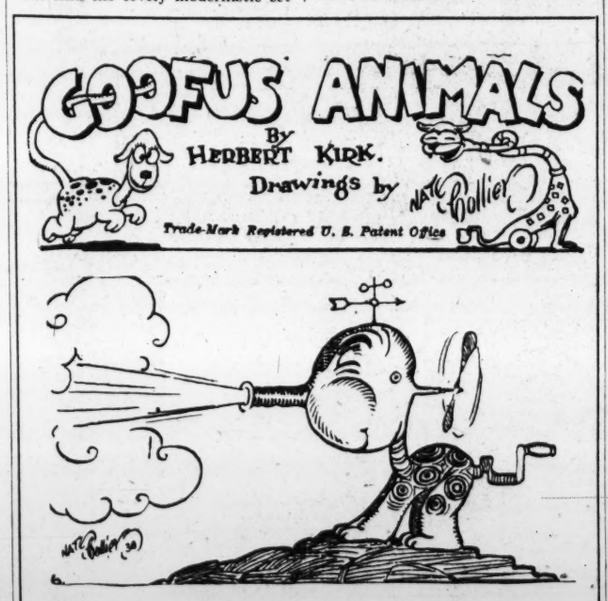
And in the smartest jeweler's window on the Rue de la Paix, I saw this lovely brooch of cascading pearls that fell from a diamond studded bow. And the lovely modernistic setting of a ring which had several small jewels instead of one large one.

• • • •

We know you'll enjoy the weekly Dare fashion letter in the big Washington Post next Sunday and every Sunday.

Au revoir.

Baby Mine



The Goofus Swoon

If you have never heard a Goofus Swoon
Call to his mate just as the moon
Crawled up behind the pine trees tall,
Or if you've never seen a Swoon at all
Then this should give you quite a thrill—
I think it's almost lyrical!

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Wrecking a Husband."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I know there is a way out for me. I have been married nearly five years and have worked all that time. I have had a six-room house and that kept me busy. I have had little time for anything but work. We have a fairly nice home and my husband has a nice car. We have also saved quite a lot, considering the things we have bought. Our trouble is this:

"My car needs this" or "I must go get that" and 100 other excuses to be away. I am not selfish but he never takes me to one place. He works part of the evening so I can't expect to get out at night. He can find places for himself but he "really doesn't know where he could take me."

"I haven't the time, go out by yourself," and that is all the satisfaction I can get. If I ask him to lift a hand around the house he goes into a storm and I must do it myself or it doesn't get done. I am having part of the house painted and he won't even move a chair! My sister's husband who boards with us has gotten the rooms all ready for the men but the man of the house has not lifted a finger to help. My brother-in-law is not even well, yet he can find strength to help in the house. Why can't my husband, who has all morning off? I think he could stay home once in a while or take me for a little ride or show me a little affection. He talks about all the wonderful girls he could get if it wasn't for me. "But of course you are a good cook and housekeeper so I will hang on to you." My husband has been raised properly but he talks and acts as if he was brought up in some alley.

I was raised by an aunt in the city. Sometimes I can forget how mean he is but when I start to think again I want to give up.

Here is what I want to know. Is it my own fault that I never get anywhere? Why is it when I ask my husband to do something that I can't do, he just raves and won't do it? He likes the good cooking, the nice home, all the comforts, and yet he will do nothing in return or to help. If I go to a place and ask him to take me home in the car, he has so many other things to do.

Please help me, as I need some advice. I love him, but he is so mean. I know something can be done. He can be made over just the same as any other man. And I will not have a child until he acts like a husband in his home, for I want my child to have a real father, and this man is like a boarder. UNHAPPY.

Your husband is spoiled, and you have done the spoiling. You have started out to make things easy for him. Begin now to make things easy for yourself. When a rather selfish man knows that a thing will go undone unless he gets busy and does it, he will do it and get it over with. But if experience has taught him that he can shirk and get by, then he shirks. You have been helping him to shirk. From now on never do anything you don't want to do. Be out whenever he is in. Let the meals go. Do just as you please. When he complains, tell him some home truths. You are ruining a man who would have been a good husband.

Stop it.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CANCER OF THE SKIN.

CANCER of the skin—the result of exposure to pitch, tar, and oil—is of considerable importance in Europe. Dr. F. L. Hoffman has found evidence that we have some of the same disease. However, in nearly every case he has found that the affected man had come from Europe and, while there, had worked at a cancer trade. However, the disease may yet develop among us.

In Europe it has been noted that tar cancer does not develop in a man's skin until that man has been working in tar for more than ten years. In fact, twenty years of continuous employment at a tar trade seems to be almost a necessity. Up to now it is not often we find a man who has worked steadily at a tar trade for ten or more years.

When a man's skin has been more or less covered with the right kind of tar or grease for a year or two it begins to develop warty patches. These are the forerunners of cancer. If the same type of exposure is continued for a number of years more these warty patches develop cancers. The man who is headed for tar cancer has several years of warning. During this period he can escape cancer by changing his job, or by protecting his skin against the grease. If a patch heads straight for malignancy, that fact can be seen by its change in appearance. It becomes sore, has a red base, and tends to ulcerate.

Treatment with radium or some other form of radiation, if given early will cure the cancer quickly. Employers and health officials can do something to prevent tar cancers. In the first place, they can have analyses made and experiments done to establish whether the products they use cause cancer. It is pretty well accepted that European oils, pitches, and tars are more liable to bring about malignancy than are those of this country. One reason for this is the fact that most European oils have an asphaltum base. If an oil or pitch tends to produce cancer, and it is advantageous to continue the use of that oil in an industry, the owner may find a way to remove the cancer principle. It has been noticed, for instance, that treating an oil with sulphuric acid removes the cancer producing substances. Oils thinned by use in machinery seem to have lost the cancer producing substance. Analyses are being made and research is being done to determine which oils are dangerous and why, and to find methods of making safe those that are dangerous. Meanwhile, in America, we appear to have some years for study before the problem becomes an important one, if it ever does.

NEED SUN AND AIRING.

Mrs. G. E. O. writes:

1. Would it be safe for another family to use the bedclothes of a person who has died from tuberculosis of the lungs?

2. Is there any way to fumigate feather pillows, quilts, blankets, and comforts to make them safe? If so, how?

REPLY.

1. Yes. Thorough sunning and airing is a good method of sterilizing.

2. Such articles can be sterilized by steam under pressure in a few minutes, or by steam not under pressure in a few hours, or by sunning and airing as stated above.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SAND PILES FOR CHILDREN.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

For children under 6 there is probably no other one thing that gives more pleasure than a sand box. This requires only a load of clean "sharp" sand such as builders use in making mortar, but almost any kind will do, walled in with clean boards to save it from being washed away by the rain. Sand boxes may be built and used on porches or roofs.

A sand box in the yard may be sheltered by a hedge of shrubbery from the sun or the street, and is better built on a slight slope in order that there may be a natural drainage. If the soil beneath is clay, a drain made at the bottom of the slope by filling a hole 2 feet deep with broken stone will carry off the rainwater. Sand boxes should be located so as to have the sunshine on them some parts of the day.

It is difficult to keep such a box sweet and clean if the sand is mixed with soil or clay, but pure sand, washed by the rain and dried in the sun, is naturally disinfected. All the playthings needed for the sand box are some old spoons and a few small pails or tins. Baking powder cans with covers answer very well. Flowers and twigs, clothespins, shells, stones and acorns all enter into the making of sand-box gardens or villages, and most children will play contentedly for hours at a time in a sand box.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF May 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Extremely positive influences will be in force on this date, which will inure to your benefit in your domestic and personal life, and which will cause an upheaval in business. You will suffer through the stupidity of others.

The child born on this May 9 (especially the boy) will be imbued with the gang spirit, and it should be allowed to have childhood adventures, under supervision, or else it will sneak them. It will have a colorful imagination, and will be a dreamer.

You will probably never regret the inevitable fact of your birth. You create your own atmosphere of optimism and sunshine—your presence dispels gloom. You are not blind to the nice things which are within reach of one and all, and your sojourn through this vale of existence will be a pleasant one, regardless of exterior or regrettable factors with which you may be confronted. The exuberance of your spirits is refreshing, but not alarming to those upon whom expended. There is strength, but not heaviness, to your personality.

You are, of course, egotistical, but it does not slap people in the face. You take your charms and cleverness for granted, and you assume that they are self-advertising enough to be recognized by the whole world—and they are. Your social gifts are undeniably the biggest boosting factors in your nature—they probably, more than any spectacular business gift or other talents, have carried you to the top notches of the ladder of your material and community success. It is probable that the public, at sometime or other, will make demands on your talents. Consciously and unconsciously you are a person of influence, and you hold the power to do good in the hallow of your hand. Much is expected of you.

Successful People Born May 9:

1. William J. Duane, Secretary of the Treasury under Jackson.
2. James P. Espy, meteorologist, "The Storm King."
3. John Brougham, actor.
4. Abby Sage Richardson, author.
5. Edward Weston, electrician and inventor.
6. Sir James Matthew Barrie, novelist.

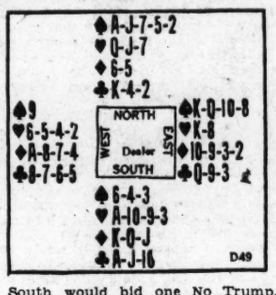
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

An important point for the Contract player to remember is that after an initial one No Trump, the partner, holding a strong hand which includes a strong five-card major, should overcall with three of that major (not two). The three-bid tells the No Trumper not to pass; it gives him an optional game-bid of four of the major or three No Trumps. Look at the following hand.

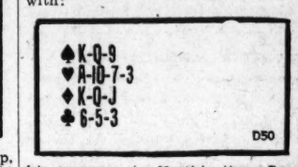


South would bid one No Trump, West would pass and North should bid three Spades, South then would have to determine whether to bid four Spades or three No Trumps, and would have a decision involving some doubt; but having the other three suits all stopped twice and an assurance of strength in the North hand, three No Trumps (nine tricks) would be a better guess than four Spades (ten tricks).

At three No Trumps West would lead a Diamond and Declarer would make game by putting dummy in with the King of Clubs and leading the Heart Queen for a finesse. East would cover and South's Ace would win; so Declarer would win one Spade, four Hearts, two Diamonds and at least two Clubs. If his Heart finesse had failed, he could have tried the Club finesse afterward. With this hand it would be less dangerous to try the Heart and Club finesses than to attempt to establish the Spades.

If South had guessed a bid of four Spades instead of three No Trumps, he would have been defeated.

But if South had bid one No Trump with:



his response to North's three-Spade take-out should be four Spades. With defenseless Clubs there would be a much better chance of game at Spades than at No Trumps.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ONLY two days now until Mr. George C. Tyler's all-star cast moves into the National for one performance of "The Rivals."

Although 155 years old, Sheridan's comedy is still one of the greatest theatrical attractions on the stage. It belongs to the ages.

Mrs. Fiske will be found Mrs. Malaproping this time, as she was in the last all-star cast that gathered here some three or four seasons ago in the same theater.

Jimmy Powers—James T. Powers, no less—will be seen as Bob Acres; a part he also played here in the last revival. They do say, too, that Mr. Powers has a shade on the rendition of this role given by the late Joe Jefferson.

Other roles will be filled by Pedro de Cordoba, Andrew Mack, John Craig, Rollo Peters, Margery Maude, Georgette Cohan, Betty Linley, George Tawde, and Edward Powell.

From that list of names it is easily seen that Mr. Tyler is not fooling when he calls this an all-star cast.

• • • •

WALTER GILBERT, leading man with the National Theater Players, will play the Frank Craven role in "Salt Water," the comedy scheduled for the National Theater next week. Produced in New York by John Golden, the man who gives the world only clean plays, "Salt Water" is the work of Don Jarrett. It is built round a good comedy idea. The main character is John Horner, last of a long line of hardy seamen. All his life Johnny has wanted to sail the ocean blue, the deep, salt sea. Instead of that, he is a candy butcher on an Albany night boat. What, Ho! Well, it ought to be good.

• • • •

TOMORROW, no later, the gates open at Glen Echo Park for what promises to be a merry, merry season. Mr. Ernest Johnston, who always attends these openings, has had his cutaway and high silk hat put in order, his spats shined up, and his shoes slicked for the occasion. He and Mr. Leonard Schloss, the general manager, will be there at 1 o'clock to greet the visiting firemen and the representatives of the press—not to mention the thousands of laymen, women, and children, who are coming into town especially for this event. There will be, of course, plenty of cold lemonade.

• • • •

JUST to make sure that he is not left out of the party, Mr. Lee Somers, the publicist, sends over a little piece about renovations taking place down Chesapeake Beach way; where Mr. Steve Cochran, treasurer of the National Theater, has his summer hide-away. It seems they have a special attraction there this year called Seaside Park which is being all dolled up for the opening—May 24th.

• • • •

TO SHOW there is no hard feelings, Jimmy Lake, manager of the Gayety Theater, on Ninth Street, broadcasts that his summer schedule is in order; that the stock company's idea has taken to burlesque, and burlesque to the stock idea, and that the next revue, scheduled to open tomorrow, will be called "Girls a la Carte."

Catholic Organization Will Install Officers

The Catholic Women's Benevolent Legion will hold its yearly installation of officers at 8 o'clock tonight in the Garden House of the Dodge Hotel. Ninety-six officers are to be installed by Miss Mary H. McCarthy, supreme deputy of the Washington and Virginia organizations.

Miss Mary E. Bannon will become president of the Washington Council for the coming year, Mrs. Cecilia Greer will be installed president of the Reverened Father Walter Council and Miss McCarthy will assume the presidency of Liberty Council. A short musical program will be given during the meeting with solos by Mrs. Agnes Desmond, soprano; Mrs. R. C. Dean and Miss Florence Siegel, accompanied by Mr. Tenley, organist of St. Peter's.

Syracuse Alumni to See Crew Race.

Seventy-four members of the Washington alumni group of Syracuse University will depart at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from 1814 N street northwest in a motorcade for Annapolis, Md., to witness the crew race between Syracuse and the Naval Academy.

Park View Musicale To Be Given Tonight

A community center program of instrumental and vocal music and dancing will be presented at 8 o'clock tonight at the Park View Community School in celebration of National Music week. Community singing will be led by W. Schmucker. The program will be concluded with an entertainment feature by William Baker, dramatic director at Park View.

There also will be an exhibit of work done by the China painting group and a model airplane demonstration by the Boys' Airplane Club of the school.

5,000 CHILDREN PAY HONOR TO MARTYRS

Throngs Drawn to Thirtieth Eucharistic Congress in Carthage.

PONTIFICAL MASS SUNG

Carthage, Tunisia, May 8 (A.P.).—Where followers of Christ were delivered to wild beasts in the beginning of Christianity, little children today took part in a moving ceremony of the Thirtieth Roman Catholic Eucharistic Congress of the World.

Under the warm afternoon sun 5,000 little ones paid their simple tribute to the memory of the countless martyrs whom pagans cast into the ancient amphitheater to make a "Roman holiday."

Catholic tradition preserves the spots where 30-odd martyrs died, each spot being marked with a plaque. The children, most of whom had just entered upon their first communion, marched through the once blood-soaked arena and reverently laid palms upon the plaques.

Pontifical Mass Sung.

The ceremonial of decoration, the children's communion and a pontifical mass sung before a vast assemblage in the Carthage Cathedral, today marked the high lights of the congress.

The program began with the ringing of bells in the churches of Tunis, summoning all the delegates and pilgrims to masses.

The Americans participated in today's religious fetes in the Church of St. Jeanne d'Arc which had been especially assigned to that group.

For most of the day the air was so crisp many of the pilgrims had to wear their overcoats.

Associations of History.

The Right Rev. T. O. Shannon, editor of the New World of Chicago, in an interview, said:

"The Americans in the Eucharistic Congress as a new people are brought for the first time into contact with the historical associations of the Roman Catholic Church. The church is striving to rebuild itself in Africa upon the heritage of its past glory. Here they (the Americans) realize that Saints Augustin and Cyprien are not mere names, but are substantial tradition here present, which this congress revives.

"Moreover, the Americans feel here the encouragement that should be given to the valiant band of Catholic heroes who are waging a desperate battle to reconquer a land once entirely Catholic."

Cemetery Vandals Will Be Sentenced

Two Plead Guilty, Saying They Fled to Graveyard to Escape Police.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 8.—Pleading guilty today to charges of malicious destruction of tombstones in old St. Anne's Cemetery, two Negroes are awaiting sentence by Judge Robert Moss in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. They are Joseph Harris and Samuel Day.

The miscreants claimed they had been drinking on the night of the occurance and sought the confines of the cemetery to prevent arrest by city policemen on a disorderly conduct charge. Admonishing the Negroes from the bench, Judge Moss asserted he did not believe a sober Negro would venture into a graveyard at night. The jurist, after hearing their admission that they had been drinking, decided to send the pair before the grand jury, intimating that if they furnished bona fide evidence of the liquor law violator it might mitigate in their favor in passing sentence.

The graveyard depredations were committed one night last January. More than a score of tombstones and other markers were knocked from their base, and some of them were broken in toppling on others. The damage was estimated at more than $1,000.

KIWANIS WELCOMES CITY COMMISSIONER

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer Becomes an Honorary Member of Club.

TEAM TROPHY AWARDED

Election of Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, as honorary member, was announced at yesterday's meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the Washington Hotel by James B. Edmunds, the club's president.

President Edmunds followed this announcement with the presentation of a silver trophy to the Kiwanis bowling team which won the civic club championship for the 1929-30 season. Members of the team are Earl D Krewson, cantain; Edward C. Baltz, Dr. Charles L. Billard, W. Herbert Gill, Frank P. Howard, John A. Korman, Eugene H. Ruark, Dr. O. U. Singer and Earle G. Wilhoite.

A report read by Charles W. Pimper, chairman of the orthopedic and welfare committee, showed 108 crippled and underprivileged children receiving assistance from the Kiwanis Club. During the past month two cases were reopened and five dismissed. Among the club's "wards" are 65 children at the Children's Hospital clinic. Staff nurses made 192 visits during the month.

Mr. Pimper also read a letter from W. F. Faulkes, member of the Kiwanis international committee on the underprivileged child, to Dr. John F. MacDonald, chairman of that committee, praising the work of the local club.

Mr. Faulkes said that the action of the Kiwanians in presenting the needs of the children to the proper authorities was the correct course in such matters and added that the club was directly responsible for the establishment of two schools in the District for such children, one white and one colored.

It was announced that the next golf tournament for club members will be held Wednesday at the Rolling Road Club in Baltimore.

TEXACO-ETHYL

THE "DRY" ETHYL GASOLINE

The Texas Company announces that now Texaco, the original "dry" gas, is available with the Ethyl compound. It means the linking of two famous names in motor fuels to produce one of the finest premium anti-knock gasolines ever offered the motoring public—Texaco-Ethyl!

The Ethyl compound in itself cannot perform miracles. It's the gasoline base that makes the difference in Ethyls. The better the fuel you begin with, the better the resulting Ethyl Gasoline.

The new and better Texaco, the original "dry" gas that vaporizes instantly, plus Ethyl, equals the last word in automobile fuels. Texaco, the driest of dry gases, permits complete and uniform diffusion of Ethyl through the manifold into the cylinders. It creates higher standards of pick-up, power, speed and mileage for any car, old or new. This new premium grade is now available at Texaco Service Stations to all motorists who desire a superior anti-knock gasoline. Try it today!

STOCK SALES RULED BY IRREGULAR TREND

Wide Assortment of Gains and Losses Appear at Close of Dull Day.

COPPER SHARES CLIMB

New York, May 8 (A.P.). — With much of the corrective readjustment from the recent break apparently out of the way, the stock market turned dull today. Prices shifted erratically, and final prices showed a wide assortment of gains and losses, many of which were the smallest in about a week. Total sales were 3,755,990 shares, the lightest volume since March 17.

In general, the market's tone improved. U. S. Steel dipped to a new low for the year in the course of a fresh bear drive during the morning, but quickly recovered. Short selling in this and other pivotal stocks encountered the strong resistance of substantial buying orders, and the short interest surrendered after only brief skirmishes.

The strength of the copper shares developed on improved inquiry from consumers, who are making substantial purchases at 12½ cents, and had a steadying effect. Short covering in this group, which has been yielding ground steadily under the prospects of reduced dividends, went forward rapidly, and leading shares like Anaconda and Kennecott moved up sharply, closing at or near the top for net gains of 2 to 5 points.

Loans Drop $200,000,000.

There was some surprise at the $200,000,000 decrease in brokers' loans. Although a decline had been expected in view of the recent break, it was believed that the borrowings for scale-down purchases as well as for new bond financing might offset to a considerable degree the heavy loan liquidation resulting from the slump in share quotations.

Not since November 21 last had so large a drop in the total been reported, and not since March 21 had there been any decrease at all. The reduction brought the aggregate to $4,074,000,000 compared with $5,551,000,000 a year ago.

Consumers had been holding out for 12-cent copper, with some talk of even lower prices, but their supplies on hand had become dangerously depleted, and they were virtually forced into the market to meet current needs. Copper Exporters, Inc., is reported to have sold 6,750,000 pounds of metal today, compared to only 1,500,000 yesterday. Several of the leading copper shares were recently hammered down to the lowest levels since 1928.

The market sold off substantially during the morning, several of the more active issues losing from $2 to $4, while a few high priced specialties dropped $7 to $12 a share. The selling was largely a continuation of the movement which developed late yesterday, and appeared to have spent itself around midday, when the upswing in the coppers brought a general rally, reducing or canceling most of the losses. Closing prices were highly irregular, with net gains and losses about balanced. The price index of 90 leading shares advanced 7-10 of 1 point.

U. S. Steel Declines.

U. S. Steel dropped more than $2 to $165.75, compared to the previous minimum of $166, but it then rallied to $169.37, and closed at $168.25, a net loss of 12 cents. Radio and General Electric sold off more than $3, then regained most of their losses. Westinghouse Electric dropped $4 to $168, rebound to $174.50, and closed at $172, unchanged.

J. I. Case was a wide mover, selling off $11 during the morning, then rallying to close with a net gain of $10. Allied Chemical sold off $12, then reduced its loss to $4.

In the coppers, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Smelting closed approximately $5, $4 and $2 higher, respectively. Andes sold up nearly $6 and closed up about $5.

The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Banks revealed a drop of about $31,000,000 in bills and securities. Discounts were up about $4,000,000, while holdings of United States Government securities fell off $2,000,000. There was another decline in note circulation and a reduction of about $35,000,000 in the total of bills bought in the open market.

Time Money Unchanged.

Credit conditions remained favorable. The New York Federal Reserve Bank cut its bill-buying rate one-quarter of 1 per cent, to 2½ per cent, for the short maturities and one-eighth of 1 per cent, to 2⅜, for 60 to 90 day paper. Call money was freely offered at the renewal rate of 3 per cent, which held all day. Time money, which had been easing for several consecutive days, was unchanged.

Some of the motor shares were under pressure. Mack Truck went to another new low and suffered a 3-point net loss. Auburn Auto dropped 5. Allied Chemical tumbled 12½, regaining all but 4 points. J. I. Case turned an 11-point loss into a gain of the same amount.

International Salt was carried to a new 1930 high of 121⅞ on reports of higher earnings. Eastman Kodak sold off several points during one of the bear sallies, but finished about a point higher. A few of the rails turned heavy. Atchison, Illinois Central and Missouri Pacific yielding 2 to 3 points.

Foreign exchanges improved. Sterling Cables, which touched a new 1930 low on Wednesday, moved back to $4.85 15-16, up 3-32.

Wheat closed barely steady, with July ⅝ cent lower on smaller exports. Corn eased about a cent. Cotton, on the other hand, was firm with final quotations up 12 to 43 points. Sugar was unchanged to 2 cents higher.

BONDS ARE STEADY IN DULL TURNOVER

Southern Rail 6½s Climb 1¼ Points Net in Fair Trading.

ITALIAN ISSUES CLIMB

New York, May 8 (A.P.).—The listed bond market held its ground in a rather dull session today.

The investment department maintained a firm tone under the leadership of the rails, which have more consistently reflected the influences of cheap money than any other group. Most active were the loans legal for savings banks and the best gains of the day were in this group. Convertibles and industrials gave the market a somewhat ragged appearance.

Trading was in an extensive list and slackened during the final hour. Total sales were the smallest of the month.

Call money again held at 3 per cent. There was no change in time money but the Federal Reserve Banks of New York and Boston cut their buying rates for bankers' acceptances.

Rails Continue to Climb.

Some of the most popular railroad issues have been steadily climbing toward the year's peak under the impetus of the extremely easy credit conditions.

The most extensive accumulations today were in the Pennsylvania, St. Louis & San Francisco, Missouri Pacific and Erie issues. Southern Railway general 6½s was the best ground gainer, with a net advance of 1¼ points.

Atchison general 4s, Pennsylvania 4½s, Frisco 4½s, Wabash 5s, St. Paul adjustment 5s ended the day ½ point higher.

American Telephone 5s and North American Edison 5s were most in demand in the utility group, which, however, lacked the buoyancy of the rails. American Telephone 5s, Columbia Gas 5s and Electric & North American Edison 5s gained from 1 to ½ point.

Convertibles Are Irregular.

Convertible bonds presented an irregular appearance as they fluctuated with stocks. American Telephone 4½s showed some recuperative power and closed ½ point lower. Missouri Pacific 5½s and Reading Coal & Iron 6s, in which trading was extensive, moved up more than a point.

Italian government and municipal bonds were in good demand. The general tone of the foreign group, however, indicated that it was marking time until the terms of the German annuity issue are made public. The extensive trading in Italian bonds was unusual, and Italy Kingdom 7s gained ⅜ of a point on the heavy turnover. Dullness in the Latin-American group was attributed paftly to the sagging of prices of South American goods.

With no further easing in money rates to stimulate increased buying, United States Governments generally declined under light trading. The heaviest trading was in Treasury 3¾s, and they sagged 7-32.

New offerings of securities totaled $41,825,000 for the day. The Republic of Uruguay is planning to offer a new issue of $17,580,000 at 6 per cent, the first marketed here since 1926.

ACACIA INSURANCE & BUSINESS CLIMBS

Policies Written for April Reach $11,255,000, Report Shows.

$407,000 FOR DISTRICT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

A record-breaking volume of business was written by the Acacia Mutual Life Association during the month of April, according to final figures just compiled by officials and announced yesterday at association headquarters, the Temple of Service, First street and Indiana avenue northwest.

For the 30-day period recently closed, Acacia wrote a total of $11,255,000 in life insurance policies, and of this amount the Washington home office branch accounted for $407,000.

The April, 1930, business is substantially better than that for any corresponding period in the history of the Acacia Mutual Life Association. The Association's records show that in April of last year written business totaled $6,462,000, while in April of 1928 an aggregate of $5,900,000 was written.

Acacia officials expressed keen satisfaction over the record established during the last month, and point to it as an indicator of the fact that business conditions generally over the country are improving. The April results, it is pointed out, are emphatic proof that the business is there and that if consistent efforts are made it can be secured.

With the first four months of 1930 already revealing gains over last year, the association anticipates that the record for the whole year 1929 will be eclipsed in 1930. During the last year a total of $80,000,000 was written. At the rate Acacia now is progressing, it is pointed out, that mark will be bettered substantially in 1930.

City Strawberry Prices Declining

Report Shows Asparagus Season Is Now Moving Northward.

The strawberry season is expected to reach its greatest activity between now and the end of the month, according to the Department of Agriculture. The price tendency has been downward, owing to increasing shipments, the report states, and about half the carlot output is from North Carolina and Tennessee.

The asparagus season has moved northward to New Jersey, while the bulk of the onion supply is from Texas. The potato market has been unsatisfactory so far this month, especially in regard to the price trend of Northern potatoes from storage. Increased shipments from the South have upset the local mart.

There were limited supplies of Eastern sweet potatoes at Washington during the first week in May, and there are still active shipping movements from Tennessee, Delaware and Maryland. Virginia prices were $4.50 in barrels at Baltimore. Carlot shipments of apples have been steadily decreasing, though the Virginia producing sections continue fairly active.

NATIONALS POUND DETROIT PITCHERS FOR 8-5 VICTORY; 11 TO GO IN PREAKNESS TODAY, GALLANT FOX CHOICE

BELAIR COLT REIGNS 8-5 FAVORITE AMONG SMALL STAKE FIELD

Son of Sir Gallahad 3d Is Choice Despite Sulking in Trial.

40,000 to See Race; Snowflake Is Only Filly Entered.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO, Md., May 8.—The renewal of the $50,000 added Preakness every spring, is not merely a horse race for a large purse, but is an event of State importance in Maryland, a kind of carnival, furnishing entertainment for people of all classes.

In a racing way, it carries its appeal to all parts of the country and affords the first big test of the year on the best 3-year-olds and gives a line on the Kentucky Derby, to be run on May 17, the Belmont Stakes, on June 7—the three races of spring forming the triumvirate of the sport, and it has its pointers for all the other large stakes to follow, in the East and West, for this division.

In the thirty-ninth renewal of the mile and three-sixteenths race tomorrow eleven have been named overnight, including one filly, and while this field is small for the stake, it probably will be more truly run because of its size, and on this track, none too wide, with some bad turns, the entry list seems, in a practical way, to be a happy medium.

Track Is Ready For Classic.

Everything has been done in arranging for the entertainment of 40,000 people to see the Preakness, who are expected unless there should be a very bad turn in the weather, now dry and hot, and the field is regarded here as being an open one, regardless of the presence in the entries of Gallant Fox by Sir Gallahad III—Marguerite, which is likely to be an 8-5 favorite. While the Belair stud's colt looks like the logical winner, yet it can not be denied that the race is fraught with uncertainties and that a surprise is a fifty-fifty proposition. This is the element that makes racing's great appeal.

Around Pimlico, Gallant Fox has many knockers, which may be due to the habit formed by the colt here to sulk in his workouts. Not only Wednesday did he sulk, but last Sunday he did the same thing, and while he should be deemed the strongest of the Preakness field, on all the information at hand, workouts, next to actual racing with weights up, is the best line on a horse.

Wood Memorial Win Exaggerated.

It is also cited that he has been credited beyond its importance with his victory in the Wood Memorial. He defeated four horses in the Wood, four lengths in front of the nearest rival, Crack Brigade; next was Desert Light, now declared out of both the Derby and Preakness. The third horse he beat in the Wood, Gold Brook, starts in the Preakness, and is highly rated. The other Wood contestant, Spinach, a good horse, broke down in the race.

Gallant Fox ran like a real race horse and on form he is the best 3-year-old it has developed so far and is selected to win the Preakness and may go further. The things that may count against him have been mentioned and the most serious is the post position.

The Audley Farm seems to have the most dangerous contender in Woodcraft, by Ormondale—Wood Violet. On May 5 he won the fourth race at a mile and 70 yards in 1:44, and worked out to a mile and an eighth in 1:53, which is the best move made here. In that race he beat Crack Brigade and Michigan Boy, both in this field, and the stable is confident. Woodcraft is selected for place.

Canadian Cup Netmen Promise Fight to U. S.

Philadelphia, May 8. (A.P.)—Canadian Davis Cup Tennis Team members, guests at a luncheon today, warned the American players that they would meet with the stiffest kind of opposition in the matches here next week.

"Canada will be a hurdle in the path of the Americans," said Dr. Jack Wright, Captain of the Canadians, "we'll make that hurdle as high as possible and hope that you don't slip and break your necks trying to get over it.

"I hope if the Americans do get over the hurdle, they will reverse the decision against France. We enjoy coming here. We feel just as much at home here as we do in Montreal."

The other member of the Canadian team present was Marcel Rainville. Willard Crocker, the third member, was not present.

Uhle, Detroit Pitcher, Fined for Speeding

George Uhle, star pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, was given a suspended sentence of $10 or ten days yesterday when he was convicted in Police Court on a speeding charge.

Uhle, according to testimony of Traffic Policeman H. O. Tutt, was arrested early yesterday morning on Connecticut avenue, when he is alleged to have been driving between 55 and 60 miles an hour. Uhle was required to post $20 collateral at the Fourteenth Precinct station house. The money was returned to him after his trial.

Uhle was tried in Judge Isaac R. Hitt's chambers, and for several hours after the trial the papers in the case could not be located. They were finally disclosed by Clerk Frank Sebring.

Draw Verdict In Title Bout Eliminated

Referee Says Decision Assured in Fields-Thompson Fight.

Welter Champion and Negro Meet Tonight at Detroit.

DETROIT, May 8 (A.P.).—Elmer "Slim" McClelland, referee of the world's welterweight championship fight between Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson here tomorrow night, said today that he will not allow the bout to end in a draw decision.

"At the end of the fifteenth round Friday, if the bout should go the limit, I will declare one of the boys a winner, no matter how close the match is," McClelland said.

The referee's decisions will not be subject to reversal by the State Boxing Commission.

Fields and his challenger today had practically completed training and their managers expressed satisfaction with the results of the workouts in local gymnasiums.

Thompson Already Below Limit.

Thompson already is safely below the 147-pound limit, while Fields' handlers reported that he will make the weight easily when the fighters go on the scales at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

The weighing in will be rather a ceremonious affair, staged at the stadium under the supervision of representatives of the city sealer of weights and measures and of the Michigan Boxing Commission. The city official will test the scales before the fighters go on and will record the weights.

The management of the stadium reported advance reservations which indicate a sell-out and said that requests for press tickets indicate a wide interest in the contest.

Bill Tilden Win Four Matches in Austria

Vienna, May 8 (A.P.).—Big Bill Tilden won four matches in the Austrian tennis championships today and astounded the spectators with his great variety of strokes.

In singles Tilden overwhelmed Herr Horch, 6—0, 6—1. In the men's doubles the tall Philadelphian paired with Count Ludwig Salm, of Austria, to defeat Barkstein and Decker, 6—3, 6—3. He and Cecille Aussem, of Germany, won two matches in mixed doubles, defeating Tihany and Miss Silbsdorf, 6—0, 6—0, and Adler and Miss Gerich, 6—0, 6—1.

Star May Toss Javelin With Leg in a Cast

Omaha, Nebr., May 8 (A.P.).—The sight of a javelin tosser hobbling forth on crutches to do battle for Tech High, of Omaha, may greet spectators at the Nebraska State high school track meet at Lincoln Friday.

The athlete, Glenn Jones, recently suffered an injury that put him on crutches.

Now Tech coaches, who believe Jones is capable of winning the event, and the star's doctor are considering sealing his right leg in a plaster cast, taping it heavily and letting him hobble to the line on crutches. Once on the line, Jones says he will toss the crutches aside, balance himself on his left leg and heave the spear.

Horton Smith Ties For 2d Place in England

Southport, England, May 4 (A.P.). Len Holland, with a score of 71, led the field in the first round of the northern professional golf championship, which is to be decided over a stretch of 72 holes.

Horton Smith, the only American in the competition; Archie Compson and J. W. Gaudin were tied for second place with scores of 72.

Henry Cotton, Tom Fernie, A. J. Isherwood, Henry Audin and William Nolan followed at 73, and Abe Mitchell, Reggie Whitcombe and W. T. Twine took 74 each.

SANJUL STAR IN G. U. PREP VICTORY

St. Alban's, Held to 1 Hit, Defeated by 5 to 2 Score.

A SINGLE in the first inning spoiled what would have been a no-hit game for Charley Sanjul, Georgetown Prep pitcher, yesterday when that young man was in rare form to turn back the St. Alban's nine, 5 to 2, at the Garrett Park diamond.

With two men on base, Brewer singled to right, scoring the only two runs of the game for St. Alban's, but the G. U. Prep nine tied the score in the second and went on top to win in the later stages of the fray.

All together, Sanjul had a pretty big day, turning back the enemy batters without a hit for the last eight innings and striking out no less than fourteen. Only one ball was hit to the outfield after the first frame, a fly which Jack Robinson easily caught.

WALES' SHOT AIDS JONES IN MATCH

Prince Pairs With U. S. Champ in 2-Ball Match Abroad.

By FRANK H. KING.

SUNNINGDALE, Eng., May 8 (A.P.).—With the Prince of Wales as a partner in a Scotch foursome against Harrison R. Johnston and Sir Victor Sassoon, Bobby Jones today barely escaped defeat in his first golf encounter for 1930 in Great Britain.

The prince and the open champion of the United States were saved at the last hole when his royal highness made a sensational shot from a bunker to place the ball on the green that enabled him and his partner to halve the match.

Sir Victor also had to play from a trap at the eighteenth, but his ball struck the face of the hazard and failed to reach the green. Two deciding shots were played after the two visiting champions had sent brassies off the line with the outcome of the match depending on the play at the same hole.

Jones' Brassie Shot In Bunker.

With his side 1 up and 1 to play, Harrison Johnston, amateur champion of the United States, either for purposes of diplomacy or as a result of a misplaced second shot, sent the ball squarely into a bunker guarding the green.

No one knows but Jones, and he

White Sox Face Brown in Debut In Washington

ANOTHER former Washington manager will lead his forces into town today when Donie Bush's White Sox make their first visit of the season, being booked for here up to and including Monday. Since tackling Eastern teams, the Chisox have found the going rougher than earlier in the season, but they are a greatly improved team over that of last season and the Nats will have to travel at top speed if they hope to get their share of victories. Art Shires, the once great one, is back in the White Sox line-up.

Two players have made the seventh-place finishers of last season look like possible first-fighters for 1930, one being Shortstop Ernie Smith, a former Washington cast-off. He is fielding like a flash and his acquisition let Bush strengthen his whole infield by shifting Chalmers Cissell to second, where he seems perfectly at home, in addition to hitting better than he knows how. The other addition which has helped the Sox is Outfielder Smead Jolly, who is doing all that reasonably could be expected.

Lloyd Brown, the Nats' promising young southpaw, will draw the Wash-

THUMPING the ball in the manner which carried them through their long winning streak, the Nationals yesterday scored an 8-to-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers, evening the series with the Harrismen and pulling up to a virtual tie for second place with the Cleveland Indians, who idled, as they now have won one more and lost one more than the Tribe, although 17 percentage points separate the two teams.

It was a thriller from start to finish, with the Tigers jumping in a first-inning lead, losing it in the third and knotting the count in the fourth. This tie proved to be but a momentary one, however, for the Nats stepped in front again in their half of the fourth and were never headed thereafter, although they were given a mild scare in the ninth.

Jones Performs Well.

The veteran "Sad Sam" Jones did the Washington pitching and performed well after settling down. Following the alien rally in round 4, he allowed but one hit until the ninth. Then the first two up singled, and, when he advanced both runners on a bad peg while trying to pick a man off second, the crowd of about 4,000 began fidgeting. Jones pulled out with but one run being scored against him, however, this resulting from a

UP BEATS HAPPY SCOT BY NOSE IN JUVENILE STAKE

Crofton Colt Winner in Upset

Withstands Challenge of Odds-On Choice in Game Finish.

Gigantic Runs Third, Never Figuring in Running of Stake.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 8.—The Spring Juvenile Stakes, $5,000 added, brought five richly bred 2-year-olds to the starting gate, this being the feature of the card today, five having been withdrawn before post time. The interest in the race centered about Happy Scot, a sensational Scotch Broom colt, winner of the Nursery a few days ago, and a colt which Marylanders have insisted since could beat Vander Pool.

But Happy Scot failed today, for under whip Samuel Ross' odd-on favorite fell short of the $5,600 purse by a nose and the winner was Up, now running under the colors of James N. Crofton, a chestnut colt by High Cloud—Idleness. Gigantic was third, Farr fourth.

Up Gets Away to Fast Start.

Up got in step at the barrier, drew away to three lengths at the first turn. Happy Scot moved up fast and in the stretch kept dogging Up's trail. When Eaby went to the whip at the furlong pole Happy Scot got to Up's saddle cloth, but weakened slightly in the final strides, it appeared, while Coltiletti kept Up in front. It was a toss up in the last strides. Happy Scot was conceding seven pounds to Up. The time, 0:53 3-5, was a fifth of a second off the record, set by Dignus some years ago.

The heat continued all day and the large crowd was uncomfortable, hundreds in shirt sleeves.

A. Williams, who was one of the steeplechase jockeys injured in the second race, on Royal Town, and taken to a Baltimore hospital, was reported late this afternoon by the hospital to be in a critical condition.

Miss Dinwiddie Wins Opener.

Miss Dinwiddie, paying $37.20, winner at Bowie and Havre de Grace at long odds, led all the way in the first race to win by a length, with George D. Widener's Shield second, a neck in front of Dunlin's Lad. Steve O'Donnell had the mount on Miss Dinwiddie and she fairly flew out of the gate and ran the four and a half furlongs in 0:55 4-5. Shield, the favorite, was second throughout. Eaby never let up on her, but she never had a chance to catch the Campfire filly which carries the colors of Mrs. Robert H. Height.

Eider Makes Sensational Finish.

The Glenmore Steeplechase at 2 miles, secondary feature and the second race on the program, had its high light in the sensational closing sprint of the Eastland Farm's Elder, to win by two lengths with W. Collins up. F. J. Buchanan's Author was second and John Bosley, jr.'s Dragon De Vertu was third. My Care, which had set most of the pace, came in fourth.

There was a bad spill in the race, at the first obstacle after the start when Royal Town, Jockey A. Williams, and Lizard, Jockey P. Watkins, went down in a heap. Track assistants extricated the jockey from the jumble of horses and they were taken off the field in an ambulance, evidently badly hurt.

My Care came celar of the spill and took the lead which she held for almost a mile when Elder got to the front. Author moved up quickly, but on the back field My Care again assumed command, but gave way to Elder, Author and the Bosley horse in the stretch run.

Battler Wins From Fallacious.

Max Hirsch's Battler and A. H. Morris' Fallacious had a long, hard contest in the third race for maiden 3-year-olds, Battler winning by a short head. F. J. Buchanan's Morley was third and Kittie Marie fourth.

Battler, Peter Wall up, went to the front soon after leaving the gate and before the end of the back stretch Fallacious was challenging and this kept up to the end, growing fierce in the last sixteenth. The time was 1:14 2-5. A field of eleven started. Morley closed fast from a bad start.

MISS DINWIDDIE, breaking fast and showing good early speed, drew clear rounding the turn, saved ground and, at pressure through stretch, had enough in reserve to stall off SHIELD. Latter followed in nearest pursuit of the winner and held on well for closing test. DUNLIN'S LAD came with a belated rush the last furlong. ROLY POLY weakened the last furlong. NOISY MISS showed a very poor effort in a slow-run race. VOLTABUSH had no speed. SWEET SENORITA ran out at the turn.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. Purse, $2,000; claiming, handicap. The Glenmore Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 4.00. EIDER TAKES CHASE AT FINISH.

EIDER, having good speed early, displaced MY CARE at the fifth fence, lost command again when reaching the ninth fence and, appearing beaten at the final fence, was favored when MY CARE landed badly and came into an easy lead to have enough left to withstand AUTHOR. Latter reserved early, responded willingly and was gaining steadily at the finish. DRAGON DE VERTU finished with a rush the last half mile. MY CARE, losing command early, but fencing boldly, regained lead at the ninth fence and looked a certain winner until the last jump, where he bobbled badly on landing and could not recover to withstand his opposition. TOREADOR II and SMART SINNER were outrun. LIZARD and ROYAL TOWN fell at the first fence. The former ran away two and one-half miles after falling.

BATTLER, moving into a brief lead at once, was steadied along until approaching the home stretch, where he was placed to severe urging and, holding on willingly, F. Walls outrode J. Bejshak when it came to a drive. FALLACIOUS, close up all the way and offering stiff contention, was unable to make up any ground under weak handling nearing the finish. MORLEY began slowly, worked his way up on the outside to close a big gap. KITTY MARIE forced a good pace, but tired. ZETA lacked speed and was held safe. MR. VESTRIS had speed for half a mile. ALWINGTON DOLLY, displaying excellent speed away from barrier, raced clear until approaching the stretch turn, where she was put to a hard drive and, under stout pressure, just lasted. FAIR BOB, following close up, finished resolutely. ELIZABETH BOLLA dropped back when leaving the back stretch, but came again and finished full of run. FAIR ORB was unable to get into a forward position and could not menace the leaders. JANE RINEHART had no mishaps. NORMA JEAN had speed for a half mile and appears to be a nonstayer.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UP, $11.90, $2.90, $2.40; HAPPY SCOT, $2.50, $2.10; GIGANTIC, $3.00.

HAPPY SCOT FAILS TO GET UP IN FEATURE.

UP, breaking rapidly and possessing excellent speed from the barrier, set a fast pace, saved ground and, withstanding a terrific drive under perfect handling, just lasted long enough. HAPPY SCOT, going in near attendance of the winner, staged a bold bid during the final stages and just failed to get up. He was bumped slightly at the final furlong pole. GIGANTIC was unable to reach the first two. FARR was outrun. BLIND LANE weakened fast after a furlong.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:15. Off at 6:17. Winner, John Bosley, jr.'s ch. c. MUSKOGEE TAKES THE SIXTH IN ROMP.

MUSKOGEE, hurried into a contending position at once, raced under slight restraint to the far turn, was shaken up and, moving to the front in the final furlong, drew out readily and BOROUGH MONGER, slow to get into his stride, secured racing room on the inside to finish stoutly. BAGPIPER, well up and going in good fashion, held on well. BUCKY HARRIS had speed in spots and was not good enough. PRAIRIE GIRL went wide for the entire journey. TRAPLAND quit. BAKED ALASKA stopped badly the last quarter mile.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:50. Off at 6:52. Winner, W. Labrot's b. c. (3), by Square Measure—Caine Lady. Trained by C. B. Reid. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16, 1:42 4-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FULL MEASURE, $11.40, $5.60, $3.70; GUNTHER, $6.80, $4.10; PRINCESS HENRY, $3.30.

NOTHING HALF WAY ABOUT FULL MEASURE.

FULL MEASURE, racing HIGH FLIER and REGIMENT into submission, drew clear when leaving the back stretch, was given a breathing spell at the final furlong pole and came away easily when shaken up. GUNTHER worked his way up steadily, closed gamely and outfinished PRINCESS HENRY. Latter, weakly handled, and making several runs early, weakened at end. STAR, far back early, was rushed into contention and tired from his efforts. MARAT was never dangerous. HIGH FLIER and REGIMENT quit.

—Pimlico Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO, Md., May 8.—The Preakness, outstanding feature of Maryland's spring racing season is covered in a separate article. It is the fifth race with eleven starters.

FIRST RACE—FORTE and AVALON are the speed of the juveniles named in the first race. FORTE outfooted Howard Bruce's colt the last time they met. There is no reason why he shouldn't do it again as there is very little difference in weight. FORTE is a fresh horse. He has been to the post but two times. FORTE will have an advantage by breaking from the inside of AVALON. ABDUCTION has won three straight, but he's been beating platers. FORTE and AVALON appear to be above the plater class. REGINA H showed a brief flash Tuesday in a race Avalon won.

SECOND RACE—SUN FALCON, the day's best, may have RED CROSS SISTER to beat in the second race. The latter raced at Havre de Grace with fair company, but showed nothing that would indicate she is a near first-class filly. The clockers are high on SETA. Preston Burch, who trains SETA, can't be so high on the gelding, because he has been running him in claiming races. GNOME BOY may be in over his head. He is only a plater and a cheap one at that.

THIRD RACE—FAIR ALBERT couldn't get to Friedjof Nansen the other day, but he ran his race and it was a good one. He can trim this field in the third if he repeats that last effort. DUBLIN SHOW is much better than his last race suggests. The boys have about soured on him, so don't be surprised if he is close up at a big price. DANGER SIGNAL looks bad. She could beat a field like this if she was at tops. We believe she needs a rest. RUBAN ROUGE won with plenty to spare his last out. We can't see an old antique like this winning two in a row.

FOURTH RACE—This is the second best race of the day and it should bring about a very interesting contest. The chances of WAR SAINT are good, because of his fine effort in the Rennert Handicap last Monday. This was his first start of the year and he showed a nice turn of speed before stopping. He'll go better this time. BATTLING ON won two straight at Havre de Grace, and he won them easily. He may make it three straight, but you're gambling as to whether or not he'll like the Pimlico track.

NED O. is probably the class of the race, but with 126 pounds up and being a slow beginner, he always gets into trouble. This race will be decided over the 6-furlong route. ST. PRISCA is a very true mare. She'll be running stoutly near the end.

SIXTH RACE—After scoring an easy victory, HOMELIKE came back and placed to Cogwheel. If that last race didn't take too much out of him, he should hold the platers safe in the sixth. DERONDA is the one to fear. This horse's last race just about put him on edge for his best effort. MAINSHEET finished third his last start, but he was beaten a long way. Nevertheless, he is next best. He has not started since the Havre de Grace meeting.

SEVENTH RACE—There is no standout in the seventh. It's one of the toughest that has been carded at Pimlico. The distance is at a mile and 70 yards. FRANCES ST. L. has been knocking at the door. She'll be out there winging and she may hang on long enough to earn the verdict. MAXIVA begins slowly.

SHOREY BEATS HUFTY AND PEACOCK AT WOODMONT

Putting Wins 2 Matches On 19th

To Meet Murphy in Tourney Semifinal This Morning.

Weyl, of Host Club, to Play Hunter in Upper Bracket.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE semifinal round of the Woodmont invitation golf tournament will be played this morning with John C. Shorey, Bannockburn, former District junior champion, paired against C. B. Murphy, champion of the Congressional Club, in the upper bracket, and Max Weyl, former champion of the Woodmont Club, opposed to J. Monro Hunter, jr., Indian Spring, in the lower half.

Shorey reached the semifinal round after two 19-hole battles. In his morning match against Page Hufty, Congressional, he was all even at the eighteenth tee and saved himself from defeat on the home green by running down a 20-foot putt for a half.

On the nineteenth hole, Hufty was about a club's length from the cup on his third, played from off the green, and then Shorey, who was on the green in 2, putted to the lip of the cup. In trying to negotiate a half-stymie, Hufty knocked Shorey's ball into the hole and lost the match.

Peacock in Rough On Nineteenth.

In the afternoon, Shorey, out in 37, was 1 up at the turn against Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, but the match became all square at the fifteenth and was still all even at the end of the eighteenth. On the nineteenth Peacock was in the rough short of the green, while Shorey drove into the right-hand trap guarding the green, 280 yards from the tee. He played a fine shot out of the sand and ran down a 5-foot putt for a birdie 3 to win.

Max Weyl was the hero of the Woodmont Club. Although he plays only once a week he demonstrated his golfing ability yesterday when, in the forenoon struggle, he disposed of Harry S. Pitt, Manor, by the wide margin of 6 and 5. He was out in 37 to Pitt's 39, and was 2 up at the turn, thereafter winning four holes in succession in one over 4s. He was driving a long ball and putting with deadly accuracy. In the afternoon he had a comparatively easy victory over Chas. W. Cole, jr., Indian Spring, winning 2 and 1, and playing the last eight holes in one over even 4s. His victories occasioned great joy among the Woodmont members.

Morrow Carries Murphy To Nineteenth.

Murphy was forced to the 19th hole by Chas. R. Morrow, Indian Spring, in the afternoon round and won when Morrow, after driving into a trap, played his second shot into another trap. Hunter had two easy matches, winning in the morning from W. A. Dennis Congressional, 5 and 4, and in the afternoon from J. W. Harvey, Indian Spring, 6 and 5. All of the semi-finalists except Murphy are of the younger generation. Hufty and Pitt, who are playing in the consolation of the first sixteen, are expected to meet in the final round this afternoon and if this should be the outcome, their battle will be a fight from start to finish. PRINCE OF WALES PROVES GOLF STAR will not talk about it, or what he thought, but he obviously was accepting no concessions because he was playing an Anglo-American Scotch foursome on an English golf course with the Prince of Wales as a partner. He took a brassie and slammed the ball into a bunker on the other side of the green.

It was then up to the prince and Sir Victor to determine the fate of the match. The prince cleared the bunker neatly and placed the ball on the green as accurately as Bobby himself could have done.

The three finishing holes were played by the prince and Jones, 3—3—5, giving an idea of the golf produced by the Jones-Wales hook-up during the round which was played over the new Sunningdale layout, not the one where Bobby made his record, 66—68, in 1927.

Bobby would not be interviewed on his play with the prince.

"The prince is a good golfer—all he needs is practice," was all he would say.

"I enjoyed every shot of the match," the prince said as he left the eighteenth green.

Prince Good Golfer, Says Jones.

The prince finished as strongly as any golfer of his class—12 handicap—could hope to with a feature shot at each of the last three critical holes, starting with a fine tee shot at the long sixteenth. Lipping the cup with a 15-yard putt at the seventeenth and sensational recovery at the home hole.

Wales and Jones chatted animatedly between shots, discussing clubs and the strategy of the match. The prince showed Bobby his new black leather golf shoes which he said came from Nairobi, Africa, and were the most comfortable he had ever worn.

Two of the prince's Cairn terriers followed the match and one of them put him off his shot at the sixth hole.

"That dog doesn't seem to be on my side," Wales said to Bobby.

Only 2 of 1929 Winners Return for Meet at C. U.

The fourth annual Eastern Catholic interscholastic track and field championship meet at Brookland Stadium Saturday will be a "wide open" affair in so far as the question of several stars dominating the first places is concerned.

Only two 1929 winners will return to defend their titles, according to the entries announced thus far, and as a consequence the majority of the individual victories will not be regarded as "sewed up" before the competition gets under way.

The two returning champions are Campbell and Jackson, both of West Catholic High School, Philadelphia, the team champion of 1929. Campbell won the 120-yard high hurdles and tied for first in the high jump last year, while Jackson won the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

RHODES PITCHING STAR.

A perfect five-inning game was pitched yesterday by Charley Rhodes, of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Team, while that team was piling up a 31-to-0 score on the Coast Guard Nine on the Monument lot.

LOMAX WINS OWN GAME FOR G. U.

Pitcher Hits Homer, 1 On, to Beat Wake Forest, 6 to 4.

WHILE Pitcher Bill Lomax may not be due all the credit for Georgetown University Baseball Team's 6-to-4 victory over Wake Forest yesterday on the Washington Barracks Diamond, to that young man must go the lion's share of the glory.

All that Lomax did, after holding the enemy at bay all afternoon only to see his lead wiped away by errors late in the game, was to win his own game with a healthy home run over the right-fielder's head scoring Tierney, his battery mate, ahead of him in the eighth inning, to break a 4-4 tie and give Georgetown its eighth straight victory and its eighteenth win of the season in 20 games.

Coach "Red" Smith, of the Hilltoppers, had been saving Lomax especially for this game, the husky right-hander having shut out the same team when Georgetown visited the North Carolina college earlier in the season, and Lomax amply justified this faith yesterday. Starting brilliantly by fanning the side in order in the first inning, Lomax continued to be a thorn in the side of Wake Forest, not only with his pitching, but on the attack.

Twice in the first four innings Lomax knocked out valuable hits, each time driving Bill Rapp home to give Georgetown part of its early lead, while in the sixth frame a long sacrifice fly enabled a teammate to go to third from second.

Evers Fails to Find First Base.

And just when it appeared that Georgetown was to breeze in an easy victor, First Baseman Johnny Evers failed to locate the bag after taking a throw from Johnny Dunn in the eighth inning, and while his foot was searching for a resting place, two Wake Forest runners crossed the plate and the score was tied. But had it not been for Evers' mechanical error, the stage would not have been set for Lomax's Merriwell homer, so there you are.

Georgetown took an early lead in the first two innings when the Wake Forest outfielders were extremely lackadaisical in going after fly balls, giving Hilltop batters two cheap hits and allowing runners to get on the paths. On the other hand, the Hilltop outfielders were functioning in big-league style, running all over the garden and bringing down long and short drives of the Deacons. Wholey and Bozek both came through with beautiful catches and a fine peg by the latter caught Bell at the plate for a nifty double play when the visiting player attempted to score from third on an intended sacrifice fly.

Another fine fielding play was pulled by the home battery when Gillespie tried to come home on a squeeze play in the seventh. After tripling, Gillespie dashed for the counting block when Lanning laid down a perfect bunt, but quick as a flash, Lomax grabbed the ball and whipped it to Tierney to get the runner by 3 feet.

Johnny Dunn, stellar G. U. shortstop, returned to the line-up after a two weeks' absence necessitated by a chipped bone in his ankle. The midfielder contributed neat sacrifices in his first two appearances at the plate. The runner advanced each time, immediately thereafter scoring.

Eastern Rallies to Beat C. U. Freshmen in 13th

Eastern High School's baseball team schored revenge on Catholic University's freshmen nine for the other high schools of the city yesterday when it defeated the Cardinal yearlings, 6 to 5, in a thirteen-inning game at the Lincoln Park Stadium. Previously, the losers had defeated both Central and Tech in games at Brookland.

In defeating the Frosh, the Lincoln Parkers fought a game, uphill battle. On the short end of a 5-to-3 score, Eastern rallied to deadlock the count in the ninth. Then, in the eleventh, Panetta singled, Calevas singled, sending him to third, and when the catcher threw into center field, attempting to catch Calevas stealing, Panetta scored with the winning run.

Eastern's victory is due mainly to the efforts of Dick Lanahan, star hurler, who entered the box in the seventh inning and held the enemy scoreless for the remainder of the game. Previously, the freshmen had scored at will off of Noonan and Phillips.

Brown Due to Pitch Today in Visitors' Debut Here.

ington mound assignment, with a large crowd expected to be on hand, in view of the fact that the usual Friday "ladies day" invitations have been issued.

Two Hits Due to Near Collisions.

It is quite unusual that two hits are credited in the same inning due to near collisions. In the Tiger first, Myer raced all the way to short right for Fothergill's near Texas leaguer, which fell safely, although Rice could have caught it had he not been waved away, while West was credited with an opening triple in the home half due to the fact that Fothergill "butt in" and prevented Funk from making the catch. This latter blow was turned into a run a moment later, while Fothergill's helped nothing but his stick average.

Third Baseman Ossie Bluege did some fast fielding in the first to toss out McManus on a slow tap. The batter was almost to first before Ossie picked up the ball. In the next frame, Buddy Myer came through with a nifty stop to end the round, leaping high for Funk's bounder back of second to force out Rensa at the middle sack.

Rice Runs Hitting Streak to 19

In the fifth inning Sam Rice singled, bringing his consecutive-game hitting streak to the goodly total of nineteen.

Third Baseman Ossie Bluege received a hard blow on the elbow of his left arm while facing Pitcher Hadley in the Nationals' seventh and was excused from further work, Jack Hayes replacing him on the bases and later afield. The regular, who has been hit four times already this season, is expected to be back on the job this afternoon, however.

Sammy West proved to be quite a lead-off man yesterday. He was first up in three different innings and tripled twice and doubled once.

According to reports received from New Haven, where Outfielder Jake Powell has been optioned by the Washington Club, the former Takoma Bearcat has gotten off to a good start. He hit .500 in his first two games, cracking out five hits in ten times up, one of his blows being a double.

Catcher Cliff Bolton, of Chattanooga, on whom the Nats have strings, also is hitting the ball hard, ranking second in the Southern Association with a mark of .432.

Realizing the importance of keeping the batting eyes of his bench performers attuned in view of their occasional use as pinch hitters, Manager Walter Johnson had his entire squad taking part in yesterday morning's stick drill.

Goose Goslin showed lots of power in the fifth. His drive almost knocked down Shortstop Rogell and then the Goose charged into Umpire Dick Nallin, who was in the way while trying to call the play at first, almost knocking the arbiter from under his hat. Rogell managed to turn the blow into a force-play at second, but could not get the ball to Alexander in time to make a double play.

"Pinky" Hargrave, former National catcher, who has been out with an injured foot, hit for Pitcher Page in the Tigers' sixth, and fouled to Judge. He was hitting better than .300 before getting hurt.

In the seventh Myer tore to short center to make a brilliant catch of Gehringer's looper. It was quite a catch, the National second sacker snaring the ball just as it was about to elude Shortstop Joe Cronin, who made a valiant bid for it.

Goslin made a one-handed catch after running a mile for Fothergill's drive opening the fourth which was about as pretty a performance as fans are likely to see this season. He took the ball well over toward center and robbed the chubby Tiger fly-chaser of at least a triple.

Tate Starts First Time This Season.

Catcher Bennie Tate started his first 1930 game yesterday and was so enthused at getting a chance that he cracked out a single his first time at bat, scoring Judge to put the Nats in the lead at the time. Then, after the Tigers had knotted the count, he cracked out another, putting his team in front again.

UNDEFEATED HIGH NINES TO CLASH

Weakened Western Team Plays Business Today.

TWO evenly matched teams will be fighting for the lead of the interhigh school baseball series this afternoon in the fourth game of the series at the Central High Stadium. Both teams won their opening games, and to the winner goes the honor of leading the league for the time being.

Had it not been for the loss of Bill Payne, star pitcher, from Western's line-up, that team would go into the game a heavy favorite, but his absence leaves both teams on a par, with no outstanding pitcher in either squad. Tom Poore is expected to climb the hill for Western, while Business' pitching will be done by either Lester Singman, Jimmy Garner or Spencer Chase, and maybe all three.

Poore to Pitch for Western.

Although probably not up to Payne's caliber, Poore has been doing some nice hurling for the Western Team lately, and followers of that school are hoping he can continue his work in the championship games. With Jimmy Thompson, hard-hitting all-round player, again eligible, Western will be benefited somewhat. Whether Thompson will go to his old post in the outfield or take the place of Quincy Owens, who also "flunked," is still undetermined. In the former case, Fox will go to the initial sack.

Western will be doing well if it can stop Business' sturdy array of sluggers, who ran up 17 hits and 20 runs off of three Central pitchers a week ago today. If Business had one pitcher of even mediocre ability, it might go a long way in the series, as its punch is one of the hardest of the five teams. If it starts hitting again today, by-by, ball game.

And with plenty of scoring in sight, once again we ask, "Where is that scoreboard?"

Blow From Discus Fatal To West Virginia Youth

Buckhannon, W. Va., May 8 (A.P.). Melville Marshall, 18, distance runner and sophomore at West Virginia Wesleyan College, died at a hospital here today from an injury he received when he was struck accidentally on the head with a discus during track practice April 14. The discus was thrown by Paul Sharp, another member of the college track team. Two operations were performed in an effort to save Marshall's life. Marshall's home was in Buckhannon.

Champion Nines Meet At Bowie, Md., Sunday

As a final test before starting next week in defense of their respective championships, the Bowie A. C. and St. Joseph A. C. nines will clash Sunday at Bowie at 2:30 o'clock.

The Bowie Team won the Prince Georges County title last season and then defeated the Montgomery County champions, the Takoma Tigers, in a 3-game series. The Saints bagged the Capital City League unlimited title last season. This season both teams will compete in the Capital City League, the Bowie Nine playing in the Prince Georges County section and the Saints in the District section.

Prince Georges County Nines Schedule Openers

Six teams will start battling for the Prince Georges County section championship of the Capital City League on May 18. The Brentwood Hawks, Berwyn A C., Bowie A. C., Dixie Pig A. C., Hyattsville and Mount Rainier teams posted their franchise money at a meeting in Hyattsville last night.

The schedule for the opening games was drawn as follows: Hyattsville at Mount Rainier, Dixie Pigs at Berwyn, and Brentwood at Bowie. All of these games will start at 3 o'clock. No other teams will be admitted to the league.

Harris Cox, No. 5 man on the Washington and Lee Team, was kept out of the match by a severe cold, while Robert Clapp, No. 6, was called to his home in Frederick, Md., by illness of his mother. Substituting for these men, Veech and Licherie won at doubles and split even in singles.

Proposed $100,000 Horse Race Cancelled

Chicago, May 8 (A.P.).—Arlington Park's proposed international racing classic of 1½ miles with an added money value of $100,000 has been canceled and will be replaced by a $25,000 event to be run August 2.

Inability to obtain suitable entries from European stables forced cancellation of the international classic, Christopher J. Fitzgerald, Arlington's representative in Europe, advised that only a few stable owners desired to ship their thoroughbreds to America and that the few available were not of championship caliber.

The classic was to be limited to 3-year-olds. Most of America's leading 3-year-olds were to enter.

The $25,000 replacement event will be over 1¼ miles, for 3-year-olds, and will be open to the world. Entries in this event will close May 28.

Gettysburg Nine Beats All-Marines, 6 to 2

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., May 8.—Utz, pitching for the Gettysburg College Nine, proved too much for the All-Marine Baseball Team here today and the visitors defeated the Sea Sohldiers, 6 to 2.

The Collegians made the best of their hits, scoring three in the third on four bingles, two in the sixth on two hits and one in the seventh on a solitary. The Marines were only able to break through in the fifth and sixth frames and for a lone tally in each. The home team used four pinch hitters and three pitchers in an effort to win but could not hit Utz to any advantage. Wake Forest will tackle the Marines tomorrow.

The Carolinians used two pitchers, while Woodberry employed three, Venable, finally following Weaver and Andrews to the mound in the seventh and holding the visitors well in check to the end.

ARLINGTON LEADER URGES BOND ISSUE

Measures for Sewage System and Schools Declared Vital to County.

DETENTION HOUSE IS HIT

ARLINCTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A vote for the sewage bond issue means employment and the development of Arlington County far more than any one other project that could be conceived, declared Ashton C. Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce last night.

"When I say a vote for the bond issue means employment, I mean to convey the thought that there is nothing that is needed more, not only in Arlington County, but throughout the county, than some one thing that will give employment to the many thousands that today are walking the streets," he said.

"A statement given out yesterday from the county engineer's office says that since June 26, 1929, to April 26, 1930, inclusive, there have been issued a total of 183 building permits representing an expenditure of $792,987. That figure will be more than doubled when the word goes out to the public that the voters of Arlington County have on June 9 of this year supported the bond issue for the installation of a county-wide trunk line sewerage system," said Mr. Jones.

"Many taxpayers may be worried over an increase in taxes as a result of the passage of the bond issue but stop and consider the question carefully. Is not the health of the many thousands that are now in the county worth a little more in taxes? Put a modern sewerage system in the county and far more people will move in which will increase employment permanently.

"With a modern sewage system in Arlington County, there could be erected on the many hills overlooking the Potomac River apartment houses of which one alone would cost more than the total of homes built in the county during the past year. With this class of building it would be but a short time before the cost of the installation of the sewage system would be almost entirely taken care of without any increase in taxes," he said.

In conclusion, Mr. Jones said: "Support both the sewage and the school bond issue June 9 and these, coupled with the completion of the new Memorial Bridge, will mean the greatest building boom this county has seen since the days before the World War."

The executive committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. Arthur Williams, Livingston Heights, went on record as being unalterably opposed to the establishment of a house of detention in the now unused Cherrydale School Building.

The resolution reads:

"That the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County are unalterably opposed to the establishment adjacent to the Cherrydale School, or any other public school, of a detention house, school for incorrigibles or problem children, or for any similar institution that might have a deleterious effect upon normal children of school age."

The secretary was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to the county board of supervisors.

Final arrangements were completed for the next meeting of the organization, which will be held the evening of May 28 at 8 o'clock in St. Mary's Guild rooms on the Glebe road, Livingston Heights.

The committee also went on record as favoring a College of Arts for Women as passed by the recent session of the General Assembly to be located in the Eighth Congressional District.

Mrs Florence E. Cannon has been designated to represent the organization at the public hearing to be held today in Washington when the Sun Oil Co. makes application for a permit to construct a wharf on this side of the Potomac River above the Key Bridge in Rosslyn.

According to an announcement made yesterday by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, plans are being made in his office for the establishment of bimonthly collection of all trash throughout the county instead of the monthly plan now in force. As soon as an adequate schedule can be worked out due notice will be given to the public, he stated.

Home owners who have tapped into the county water system are warned that in filling up abandoned wells that only clean dirt and ashes can be used. No tin cans or foodstuffs of any character will be permitted to be dumped into the hole, according to announcements from the County Health Department.

Speaking at the luncheon meeting of the Arlington Rotary Club held yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club, M. E. Church, president of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway Co., gave an interesting review of his extended winter trip to Florida.

Concluding the luncheon meeting more than fifteen members left for Richmond, where they will attend the annual State Rotary conference in session there today.

Milton Fairfax, of Alexandria, was exonerated from all blame in connection with the death of Crawford Johnson, of Washington, who died the afternoon of May 1 as the result of an automobile accident, at the hearing in the Police Court yesterday.

The testimony of Bruce Benton showed that Johnson, who was riding a motorcycle and approaching the curve on Mount Vernon avenue, near the Little Tea House, apparently applied his brakes. His machine skidded, throwing him directly in the path of a machine operated by young Fairfax, the machine passing over his body. Fairfax also testified and gave the same story as that of Benton, who was an eyewitness.

William Thomas French, an attorney, member of the Arlington County Bar Association, was yesterday granted an absolute divorce from his wife, Mrs. Caroline T. French. The decree was signed by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

French had been granted a limited divorce on the grounds of desertion in July, 1928.

The Arlington Volunteer Fire Department opened its new $5,000 fire house last night with a capacity crowd which included a large number of the county officials.

The building is a one-story brick structure with provisions for adding a second story when funds permit.

"VICTORY DINNER" HELD BY CHAMBER

$23,666 Toward $25,000 Goal Reported Raised by Alexandrians.

40 SEEK MANAGERSHIP

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The "Victory Dinner," of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce Alexandria Forward Movement, held last night in Gadsby's Tavern to secure final reports on the campaign just ended to raise $25,000 a year for three years for the activities of the chamber, disclosed the fact that the object of the drive has been accomplished for 1930. The amount actually turned in to date was $23,666, with the balance in sight, to be turned in within a day or two.

The reports, as they were made by the successive team directors, were received with loud applause. Talks were made by several of those prominent in the drive, and full credit was given to those who had given their time to the drive, among those mentioned being John Barton Phillips, president of the trade body; F. Clinton Knight, Robert S. Barrett, general chairman; D. C. Book, chairman of out-of-town solicitation; A. M. Remschell, Hugh T. Clarkson, L. H. Dudley, H. H. Newton, and James T. Preston, secretary of the chamber. Frank W. Noxon, who was the originator of the reorganization scheme, stated that steps will be taken immediately to make a selection of an industrial manager, for which position more than 40 applications have already been received. Mr. Noxon is chairman of the committee which will make the selection.

One of the features of the Victory Dinner was the formation of what will be known as the "100 Club," the members of which will pledge themselves to give one full day of their time each year to be devoted to the solicitation of new members. A certain number of members of the 100 Club will meet each month for their intensive drive, and likely prospects will be thoroughly canvassed. F. Clinton Knight was named as president of the club, and a large number of men volunteered their services last night.

According to the plans of the reorganized trade board, the industrial manager to be appointed will be a man of experience and proven ability, who will be paid a salary commensurate with the results he will be expected to achieve. He will be given a contract for three years, and will be permitted to handle the matter of securing new industries without interference. For his salary and other expenses of the chamber of commerce, the amount of $25,000 a year was considered necessary, and this is the amount that Alexandrians have subscribed for the purpose.

For the first time in more than a quarter of a century in the existence of a local chamber of commerce, the organization will be democratic and, while there is a board of directors upon whom the duty of making decisions will fall, it is not the unwieldy board of old, but is composed of but fourteen members. The full membership of the chamber will meet monthly and each member will have an opportunity of expressing his views and casting his vote.

The Chamber of Commerce now has, according to President Phillips, more individual subscribers than it has ever had before; more income than ever before; its program is larger than ever before, and the interest manifested by the citizens of Alexandria is greater than it has ever been.

A decrease of approximately 900 in the number of children of school age within the city limits of Alexandria was shown by the census just completed by Mrs. J. B. Abraham and Mrs. A. M. Sherwood, according to the report just made public by the city school board. The census showed a total of 6,322 persons of school age, including 5,848 ranging in age from 7 to 20 years, and 474 who are six years of age.

The decrease is confined to the old city limits, approximately 400 being colored children, and the increase in the newly annexed territory was greater than expected. Inquiry developed that among the colored population the parents of the children have moved out of the city, and some of the white families have removed from the city and others moved outside the corporate limits. All children of school age, whether attending public or private schools, or no schools at all, are included in the figures given. The city receives from the State $7.58 each for all children of school age.

The result of the school census has created a question as to whether the population of the city is as large as has been believed. Unofficial estimates give the population, with the annexation of new territory containing more than 2,500 population, as approximately 25,000. The 1920 census gave the city at that time 18,500 population and it is believed by most citizens that 25,000 would now be a fair estimate.

Mrs. William A. Powers, of Louise, Va., was reelected president of the Virginia Branch of the Daughters of the King at the thirty-fourth annual assembly of that body held in Grace Episcopal Church, Alexandria; and the other officers, who were also reelected, were Mrs. E. C. Cowles, of Richmond, vice president; Mrs. Thomas E. Bigger, of Richmond, secretary, and Mrs. William Cabell Trueman, of Richmond, treasurer. Mrs. John Winterwerp, of Alexandria, is extension secretary.

Mrs. Winterwerp and Miss Florence Pepple, of Richmond, were elected delegates to represent the Virginia Branch at the provincial synod, to be held in Philadelphia, in October. The principal speaker was Mrs. Lillian J. Soper, of Washington, provincial president, and the devotional service was in charge of the Rev. Robert A. Castleman, of Falls Church, and communion was administered by the rector of Grace Church, the Rev. Edgar Carpenter. Luncheon was served the delegates and visitors, numbering more than 100, by the Girls Guild of Grace Church, Mrs. George W. Roop, president.

Henry Reeves, 80 years old, who lives near Manassas and who was believed to have been seriously injured when struck by an automobile driven by Owen Arbogast, of Quantico, was reported at the Alexandria Hospital last night as having regained consciousness, and slightly improved. Mr. Arbogast reported to the police that while he was driving on North Washington street extended Mr. Reeves suddenly stepped in front of his car and was struck before he was able to stop. Mr. Arbogast took the injured man to the hospital, where he was treated by Dr. S. B. Moore and then reported to the police, being released on his own recognizance.

A verdict of $200 was awarded Elease Dixon, in the Corporation Court yesterday, in her suit against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and Eugene W. M. Recker and wife, for injuries alleged to have been sustained March 20, 1929, when she fell into a manhole of the premises owned by Mr. Recker and leased by the A. & P. company. The suit was for $5,000, and the verdict was against the company, thereby relieving Mr. Recker of any responsibility.

The dancing class of Mme. Catherine Balle will be presented in a May ball, or exhibition, this evening at 8 o'clock in Lyceum Hall, under the auspices of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and for the benefit of that organization. The dancers will be children between the ages of 4 and 12 years, the majority from 4 to 6 years.

Mrs. Priscilla G. Davison, aged 71 years, widow of James B. Davison, died Wednesday night at the home of her son, Emmette C. Davison, 115 Myrtle avenue, Mount Ida. The body was sent to Richmond last night and the funeral will be held there today. She was a native of Chesterfield County, Va., and is survived by three children, E. C. Davison, this city; C. M. Davison, Baltimore, and Mrs. R. C. Marvin, Richmond.

Former State Senator Floyd W. King, executive vice president of the Virginia Public Service Company, was the speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon yesterday. Safety work was demonstrated by George E. Fletcher and Robert J. Kilby. Robert G. Carter, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

H. W. Rudd announced yesterday that the day was the twenty-second anniversary of the organization of Boy Scout work in Alexandria, as on that date he held a meeting in old Serepta Hall with 40 local boys as the pioneers. The first contribution for the movement was given by former Representative Charles C. Carlin, who was at that time the member of Congress from the Eighth District of Virginia.

Fort Myer Soldier Held On Auto-Theft Charge

Lee Ralph Miller, 18-year-old soldier stationed at Fort Myer, Va., was arrested in Baltimore yesterday at the request of Washington police on a charge of having stolen an automobile belonging to Edward West, 2008 Evarts street northeast. LIBEL INDICTMENTS IN COUNTY QUASHED

Pleas in Abatement Filed by Four Editors Are Upheld by Judge.

NOLLE PROSEQUI FILED

Indictments against four editors of the Montgomery Independent, a Rockville, Md., newspaper, charging criminal libel, were quashed yesterday. No further prosecution will be taken against the newspapermen, it was announced by County Commissioner Lacy Shaw and State's Attorney Robert B. Peter.

The four indictments were returned by the county grand jury after an investigation into the management of the county following publication of charges against county officials in the Independent and named Walter S. Casey and Harrison B. French. Other indictments had been returned at the same time against Morris A. Bealle and Walter W. Liggett, also former editors, but who had not been arrested. These latter indictments have been nolle prossed by State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr.

Too Many in Jury Room.

The defense attorneys filed pleas in abatement contending that the full board of Montgomery County commissioners remained in the grand jury room while the individual members were testifying and that Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, and Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners, had left briefs in the grand jury room purporting to explain the libel laws.

The State filed a demurrer to these pleas and in a hearing Monday before a full bench, Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Associate Judges Robert B. Peter and John S. Newman, this demurrer was overruled. Judge Urner delivered a long opinion from the bench in which he declared that the entire proceeding had been entirely irregular although the members of the board of county commissioners and Maj. Lee had been acting on advice of counsel and in the belief that they were within their rights when they appeared before the grand jury.

Secrecy of Jury Room Upheld.

He declared, however, that the secrecy of the grand jury room is a well-established precedent in Maryland and that he believed the acts of the plaintiffs could be construed to constitute prejudice against the defendants.

The indictments were quashed and nolled after County Commissioner Lacy Shaw, acting president of the board, had informed State's Attorney Peter that the board had no intention of making any further effort in the case in view of the decision by the court.

The report of the Fairfax County health unit, which is composed of Dr. Robert E. Peagans, health officer; Robert J. White, sanitation officer, and Mrs. Herbert L. Seamons, county health nurse, for April shows that 100 homes were sanitated, one nuisance abated and three water supplies made safe.

In their fight for disease control 51 diseases were investigated, of which 44 were whooping cough, 1 scarlet fever and 6 other diseases. One was quarantined. Two hundred and twenty-nine toxin-antitoxin immunizations and 30 smallpox vaccinations were given.

A heart and chest clinic was held and 23 persons were examined for tuberculosis. Two were positive and seven suspicious. One person was sent to a sanitarium for treatment and the other is receiving home treatment. Four other clinics were held in which 282 dental cases were found. Ninety-five persons were found with defective eyesight, of which seven were treated; 31 persons had defective tonsils and adenoids, of which seven were treated.

In the health unit's school activities 492 pupils were examined by the nurse and doctor. Eighty-six were overweight. One hundred and forty-eight pupils were found with 509 defects, of which 243 were corrected. There are 60 schools in the county that have regular health programs.

The members of the unit visited 60 homes and 71 persons were referred to their physician or the clinician. Ten persons were examined for work permits, fourteen lectures were given by the staff and one health exhibit made. Miss Edith Thompson, supervisor of the white rural schools in Fairfax County, will have charge of the meeting. As usual the voting place will be in the courthouse. The judges will be Mrs. Marion Earle, H. M. Gibson and Samuel W. Sisson. DEMOCRATIC WOMEN HEAR RITCHIE SPEAK

Maryland Governor Pleads for Harmony at Meeting of United Clubs.

OFFICERS ARE APPROVED

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., May 8.—Government should not have to rely on force or the policeman's club, but should rely on the honesty of the average man, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told 500 delegates to the annual convention of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland this afternoon.

"Human rights," he said, "are not dependent upon the grace of government, since behind the government are the people and their welfare. The Maryland free State and all the term connotes, the State executive declared, stands throughout the country for human rights and against property rights and an arrogant bureaucratic and paternalistic Government.

"The Democratic party will go into the November elections asking a return to power for a fourth term, standing squarely in this State behind the priceless heritage of political and religious freedom and the rights of man, upon which principles the State was founded," he stated.

The governor made a plea for harmony among all Democratic factions in the next election, in which he will seek reelection. The convention, which adjourned late this afternoon, went on record as favoring combined party parleys of men and women in making up campaign slates. Thus far, it was brought out, women leaders have been left out of party councils, but they have been asked to work for candidates in the campaign. Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, of the First Maryland District, and Comptroller William S. Gordy, of Maryland, also spoke. Attendance was swelled by incoming delegates this afternoon. The slate of officers presented by the nominating committee this morning was adopted by the convention, as follows:

President, Mrs. Mary A. Duvall, Baltimore; secretary, Mrs. W. Ernest Offutt, Rockville; treasurer, Mrs. Fanny B.
